$6 million eyed for L.B. area projects

By NOEL SWANN
From Our L.A. Bureau

Some $6 million, mostly for plan preparation and checking, has been included in the preliminary 1973-74 county budget for capital construction projects in the Long Beach area.

While the $6 million includes some construction funds, most of the projects under consideration have been scheduled for revenue bond financing under joint power agreements or other public authority long-term financing pacts.

Since this type of financing is raised outside of the normal county operation the actual construction cost for this type of project is not included in the budget spending program.

Thus, if all the projects under consideration in the $6 million budget figure were to go ahead in 1973-74, the total planning and construction cost would run into many millions of dollars.

In recent months, however, supervisors have become skeptical of the use of joint powers agreements to finance county buildings. And because of this many of Long Beach area projects could be stalled should the board vote to hold up sale of proposed revenue bonds.

On the other hand the supervisors this year have a $172 million "bonanza" in the form of federal revenue sharing funds to play with. And it is possible some of this money might be channeled into the Long Beach area projects so they can be paid for on a cash basis rather than involve the county in long-term debts.

A breakdown of the Long Beach area projects for which funding has been proposed in the budget follows:

—Harbor General Hospital, Torrance. Funds recommended: $1,411,100.

This includes $10,000 for survey of fire sprinklers; $220,000 for state checking of plans for proposed $22 million acute unit and clinic addition; $266,000 for partial construction costs and plan checking on alterations to intensive care unit; $889,000 for equipment and central plant expansion; and $26,100 mostly for plan checking for cafeteria alterations.

Construction costs for the cafeteria alterations are estimated at $564,100 and may be met from federal revenue sharing money at supervisors' discretion. If the board denies use of these funds, the money will come from the proposed sale of revenue bonds which also will be used to finance the $22 million acute unit addition.

—Rancho Los Amigos Hospital, Downey. Funds recommended: $1,063,100.

This includes $3,500 for inspecting air conditioning; $33,000 for fire sprinkler installation; $23,100 for plan checking on proposed $748,000 medical supplies center; $30,000 for construction alterations in medical clinic; $10,000 for kitchen alterations; $291,000 for expansion of electrical system; $134,200 for alterations to Bonita Hall. Also recommended is $528,000 mostly in plan checking funds for the proposed $50 million Stroke Rehabilitation Center.

—LONG BEACH El Cerrito Hospital. Funds recommended: $30,900.

These funds cover an elevator replacement and alterations to facilities, clinic and medical record storage area.

—Long Beach General Hospital. Funds recommended: $10,000.

These funds are to cover plan checking for the proposed $46 million new hospital which currently is in limbo as a result of community opposition to the project.

Munitions blast shatters Roseville

Many hurt in boxcar explosions

ROSEVILLE (UPI)--Railroad boxcars loaded with nearly two million pounds of bombs and with propane gas exploded one after another Saturday in deafening and window-shattering blasts which lasted five hours and were felt 100 miles away.

Sacramento County Sheriff Dwane Lowe said later that the situation remained "very hazardous" because about 10 boxcars laden with bombs and three propane cars—unexploded—were in the rail yard's burning rubble.

The loudest blasts came from eight propane cars which blew up, deputies said.

More than two dozen persons were injured. Lowe said some 35,000 persons were evacuated from their homes in a 15-square-mile area at the peak of the blasts. However, Alan Sherwood of the state office of Emergency Services said only 3,000 to 5,000 persons were evacuated.

The sheriff said 10,000 to 15,000 were permitted to return to their homes in the evening.

Small explosions were heard during the night after the large blasts tapered off about 1:30 p.m.

Lowe said the damages would be in the "millions upon millions" of dollars. He added, "it's a miracle—the grace of God--we don't have innumerable fatalities."

He showed newsmen small pieces of a plastic explosive which were sprayed as far as 1 ½ miles from the rail yards. He said they were dangerous and had been found in the front yard of a home. The officer said he has warned residents to call his office if they found such chunks of explosive.

Two undetonated bombs were found embedded in a paved street a half mile from the disaster scene, the California Highway Patrol reported. Bomb squads were sent to render them harmless.

U.S. cancels union-Mafia wiretapping

By DENNY WALSH

Two ranking officials of the Department of Justice eight weeks ago turned down a request by the Federal Bureau of Investigation to continue electronic surveillance that had begun to penetrate teamsters' union connections with the Mafia, according to reliable government sources.

Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst and Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen were said to have made the decision after 40 days of FBI wiretapping had begun to help strip the cover from a Mafia plan to reap millions of dollars in payoffs from the welfare funds of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. The officials acted on the grounds that investigation had failed to show "probable cause" to continue eavesdropping, the sources said.

They reportedly acted after having received a memorandum, prepared at the direction of L. Patrick Gray III then the bureau's acting director. The memorandum, indicated the sensitivity of the investigation, which was reportedly producing disclosures potentially damaging and certainly embarrassing to the teamsters president, Frank E. Fitzsimmons, the Nixon administration's staunchest ally within the labor movement.

Removing roadblocks to learning

Getting the student to buckle down

By LESLIE J. NASON, Ed. D.

No one lives up to his learning potential.

Everyone has at least a partial block in some area of learning. Some can't remember what they have read even after reading an article two or three times. Some have trouble putting their thoughts on paper. Some are poor testtakers. The list of blocks to learning goes on and on.

Learning blocks are not outgrown. Just keeping students in school is not the solution since group methods of teaching do not automatically remove learning blocks.

The Council for Educational Development and Research, Inc. opened a report on secondary education with the statement, "A student who does poorly in elementary school generally carries his learning handicaps into high school — providing he stays in school that long."

Indeed some learning blocks are carried throughout a person's life even though he may have graduated from college.

With proper coaching these blocks could have been removed.

Teachers and counselors should show students how to remove learning blocks. They can't do it for them — the students must be willing to TRY!

Motivation alone is NOT the answer!

Each student must be given the personal attention and support that will get him to try in spite of his feelings of inadequacy and fear of failure.

First in a series.

To get that first try a specific procedure must be suggested that will bring some immediate success. That's what the series "Removing the Roadblocks to Learning" is all about — suggestions to students and adults on how to solve their learning problems.

For example: Sam was failing spelling tests. This was more than just low marks in spelling. He had a serious learning block. He avoided written assignments because he didn't know how to spell the words he wanted to use. He had trouble with word recognition and consequently was a slow reader. He pictured himself as a poor student — unable to learn along with his classmates.

His lack of confidence which started with spelling had spread to all of his learning activities.

Sam was studying spelling the wrong way. He depended entirely on reading the words. Immediately after seeing a word he could spell it. In the classroom he could only hear the word as the teacher pronounced it. Unfortunately Sam had not trained his mind to bring up the correct spelling of the word as it was heard.

My suggestion to Sam:

Learn to "SEE" how a word is spelled when you HEAR the word.

Learn to pronounce it correctly and glibly.

Close the book or turn the list over and again pronounce the word seeing in your mind how it is spelled.

You should then practice writing the word. The writing is important since in taking a test it must be done fast enough to be ready for the next word. Writing the word has another advantage — you are associating the correct spelling with your own handwriting rather than with the printed word in the book.

Sam studied spelling in the evening and his mother tested him in the morning before school.

His success in spelling tests was immediate.

The big step in getting him to try had been successful. His self-confidence was returning. He was now willing to try out suggestions for the improvement of his reading.

$2,000 awaits tip in girl's brutal slaying

It was shortly after midnight on the morning of Jan. 1, 1972, when 21-year-old Joyce King, of 5221 Cortland Ave., Lynwood, left her home to walk to a nearby drive-in at Century Boulevard and Atlantic Avenue. It was her last walk.

A passerby found her partially clothed body nearly eight hours later in an alley behind the 11600 block of Louise Avenue, in Lynwood. She had been slashed to death, her body mangled by 40 to 50 knife wounds.

Lynwood police have repeatedly gone over the route from the dead girl's home to the drive-in, but have not found anyone who saw the

Warren sad to see politics become like guerrilla war

Combined News Services

Former Chief Justice Earl Warren, recalling Harry S Truman's "wholesome approach" to running for office, said Saturday he regrets that politics sometimes becomes like guerrilla warfare.

Warren addressed the 16th annual meeting of the Truman Library's board of directors in Independence, Mo.

"Politics is not guerrilla warfare where booby traps are laid for the opposition. . ." the retired jurist said. "(Truman was always) 'give 'em hell Harry,' but always on the issues and not on personalities.

"I often wonder if that wholesome approach to politics is gone forever."

Warren reminded listeners that he was Thomas E. Dewey's running mate against Truman in 1948, saying that only Truman's "indomitable courage when his party deserted him" kept Warren from being "vice president in another administration." Warren said although he and Truman were of different parties, they found "political affiliation need not affect friendship."

Philosopher

Jacques Maritain, the famous Roman Catholic philosopher who wrote many books on man, the state and the church and who was once called "my teacher" by Pope Paul VI, died Saturday of a heart attack. He was 90.

Maritain, who converted from Protestantism to Catholicism and played an active role in academic life, died at the Rangueil Convent in Toulouse, where he had lived since the death of his wife in 1960.

Maritain published more than 24 theological and philosophical works during his lifetime, encompassing topics from religion and culture to reflections on America and man.

Charmers

The American pop group 5th Dimension charmed young Czechoslovak audiences in Prague Saturday in a pair of concerts that some spectators described as "fantastic."

The group's concerts were part of a State Department-sponsored tour, the first by a major U.S. singing group in Czechoslovakia since 1968. The five singers also are touring Turkey, Romania and Poland. Before Saturday's two Prague concerts, the group rated as best their appearance in Slovakia's capital, Bratislava, where applause forced the performers to return for several bows. In Ostrava, a Moravian mining town, police had to cordon off enthusiastic fans trying to get up on the platform.

Commuted

Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel announced Saturday he has commuted the sentences of 13 inmates who helped save the lives of eight correctional guards during a March 29 riot at the Maryland Penitentiary in Baltimore.

Two of the guards were hanged with bedsheets but were cut loose, averting their deaths. The other six guards were being beaten and pummeled until a group of inmates came to their rescue.

"I am taking this extraordinary action to show how much we appreciate what the 13 men did who placed their own lives in danger to help save the lives of several of our correctional officers," the governor said in a statement issued by his office in Annapolis.

Quint critical

The last quintuplet born to Mr. and Mrs. Eric Anderson, Brush Prairie, Wash., was in critical condition Saturday in a Portland, Ore., hospital, and doctors said the next day would be crucial for the infant.

Diane Katherine, who was suffering respiratory difficulties, was being given oxygen, additional ventilation from a respirator and intravenous fluids and antibiotics.

Tight ship

David K. E. Bruce, who will head the United States' liaison office in Peking, has won a bureaucratic battle in Washington to keep his mission's top jobs limited to State Department officers.

According to administration officials in Washington, Bruce was able to win White House backing for his plan to keep the initial mission "a tight little ship," with only trained State Department officers holding substantive positions.

This reportedly led to protests from the Commerce Department, Agriculture Department and United States Information Agency, all of which wanted their representatives assigned to the mission. Moreover, except for six Marine guards and some Navy Seabees, there will be no Defense Department personnel.

Untraditional

Jennie Heubach, a Wellesley College (Mass.) senior, won the 71st annual hoop rolling contest Saturday, but she wants no part of the tradition that goes with the victory.

According to that tradition, the winner will be the first member of the class to get married. "I definitely am not getting married," said Miss Heubach, 21, of Hollywood. "I'd like to go to law school."

Brotherhood

Shirley MacLaine and 11 other American women wound up their first week in China on Saturday, leaving Shanghai en route to Peking.

Miss MacLaine, who organized the three-week tour during which the women are making a film of their experiences, said the best part she has seen so far has been "the quality of brotherhood — the genuine impulse to help one's neighbors."

Backers push Congress to save OEO

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional supporters of community - based antipoverty programs are mounting a rescue operation in hopes of saving them from President Nixon's budget ax.

They are willing to make a major concession in the way the programs operate in exchange for continued federal funding of them.

A federal court ruled that the administration is acting illegally now in phasing out the Office of Economic Opportunity's community action agencies. But the situation will be different after the fiscal year ends June 30.

Nixon has not asked for any money to continue them after June 30, and if Congress doesn't provide any they will be out of business unless taken over by the states or cities in which they operate.

That places the immediate effort to save them in the appropriations committees of the House and Senate, which is just where the administration wants it. A secret memo on the dismantling of OEO, uncovered by Congress two months ago, contains this advice:

"Debate should be steered to the appropriations committees, whose interests most closely align with the President's, and which, unlike their legislative committee counterparts, have few members with strong feelings for OEO."

The administration is relying on the strong anti-OEO sentiment in the House Appropriations committee to block any funding of community action agencies in fiscal 1974.

OEO supporters, in their effort to preserve federal funding, are telling the Appropriations Committee the issue goes beyond OEO, involving the basic rights and powers of Congress.

Their main ammunition is the April 10 order of Federal Judge William B. Jones prohibiting the administration from continuing its phaseout of community action programs.

Judge Jones said the administration could not shut down OEO now simply because it decided not to fund it in 1974.

"The budget is nothing more than a proposal to the congress for the Congress to act upon as it may please," said the judge, noting that Congress voted last year to extend the OEO through fiscal 1974.

"The administration really argues that the Constitution confers the discretionary power on the President to refuse to execute laws passed by Congress with which he disagrees," Judge Jones said.

OEO's friends in Congress, in letters to Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, are saying that Congress will be conferring such powers on the President if it declines to fund the community action agencies.

All the congressional OEO supporters are asking for now is enough money to let the community action agencies meet administrative and overhead costs after June 30. Meanwhile, they plan to seek new legislation that would place the agencies under the direct control of state or local governments.

This would resolve one of the major disputes surrounding the community action program since its inception in 1964. Most antipoverty agencies are funded directly from Washington, bringing them into frequent conflict with state and local officials.

Nixon is proposing that state and local governments use their federal revenue sharing funds if they want to continue their community action programs. The new approach being proposed in Congress would provide specific federal support for them.

There has been no response from Mahon yet, but an aide for the legislative committee handling OEO, who has sounding out Appropriations Committee staff members on the idea, said Friday: "There's been nothing negative, at least. That's something."

Resolution on rabbit not going in hopper

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — The taciturn fertility of the rabbit was extolled this week as a reason for making it Iowa's state animal.

A resolution circulated in the Iowa House declared that "the hearts of Iowans are sorrowful because of the failure of the General Assembly to designate a state animal" and nominated the rabbit.

"The silence of the rabbit sets a worthy example for legislators and other politicians," the resolution said. It also hailed the rabbit as "a symbol and hope to Iowa communities suffering from population decline."

It called on Gov. Robert Ray to proclaim the rabbit the state animal while standing on the state rock (a geode) under the state tree (oak) with the state flower (wild rose) in his hair and the state bird (Eastern goldfinch) perched on one ear.

If the governor finds he has no hair remaining at the adjournment of the General Assembly, he would be excused from the flower mandate, the resolution said in a postscript.

However, he would be required to pull the rabbit from the hat of House Democratic Leader Dale Cochran "unless he has eaten his hat by then."

Finally, "in keeping with the spirit of the resolution," it called for appointment of a committee to select a state nut, specifying that members of the General Assembly shall not be eligible regardless of their qualifications."

The resolution was written as a joke by Rep. David Stanley, R-Muscatine, who said he has no intention of formally introducing it in the House.

ANDREW (LEFT) AND JACK YEISER WITH 'EAVESDROP' GEAR
Brothers demonstrate Earthquake Sensors and Recording Devices

Pair 'bugs' earth for quake hints

By BOB GEIVET

It's said that animals become uneasy and birds sometimes leave an area where there will be an earthquake.

The reason, according to brothers Andrew Yeiser of Huntington Beach and Jack Yeiser of Mission Viejo, is that they are disturbed by ultra-sonic, high-pitched acoustic emissions from deep in the earth.

And now the brothers are hoping to duplicate the early-warning capabilities of the animal kingdom — by eavesdropping on those pings, groans and chirps produced by rock slippages.

ANDREW Yeiser, a psysicist, and John Yeiser, an engineer, devised an ultra-sonic sensor — or microphone — to pick up those noises from the deep which may portend an earth slippage or movement which becomes, on the surface, an earthquake.

They began as "back yard experimenters," finally set up a small plant in Costa Mesa, and dipped into the engineering problems of making scores of high-sensitive microphones which would detect the deep-earth slippage sounds.

The goal was to get an ultra-sonic "signature"

TO DO it, they planted five microphones near Hollister, which sits astride the San Andreas Fault.

Six other sensors are in Orange County, which also has experienced earthwuakes and minor shocks. They are divided between Mission Viejo, Huntington Beach and Costa Mesa.

The ultra-sonic sensors are linked to the shop, which the brothers are about to name Seismic Surveillance Systems. A complicated electronic wizard transcribes the messages onto tapes, which can be read to interpret the earth noises — so high-pitched that they are inaudible to human ears.

THE YEISERS explained that they would like to have 5,000 or more of the tiny sensors planted along the state's earthquake faults. They would hope to compile a "signature," or history, of what the noises mean, their depth, where they originate — and if they warn of an earthquake.

The brothers said they do their own engineering, based on the theoretical work of Dr. Baxter Armstrong, who advanced the theory of acoustic emissions from rockbursts and earthquakes in a paper in the Bulletin of the Seismological Society of America, in June 1969.

Armstrong suggested that acoustical monitoring might produce up to a 30-hour warning of an impending earthquake.

Such an alarm would be immeasurably useful in evacuating dangerous structures and in giving people a chance to protect themselves and their valuables.

THEY SAID that acoustic emissions are currently being used to warn of impending rockbursts in mines in Russia, and that the U.S. Bureau of Mines is studying how to apply such a warning system in this country.

That work is based on the theories perfected by H.R. Hardy Jr. of the University of Pennsylvania. The Yeiser brothers said that they are not as interested in this phase of seismic warning systems.

They acknowledge that their work is based on theory, needs an earth slippage or earthquake to prove out, and so is highly speculative.

"First, we must have ultra-sonic recordings immediately preceding an earthquake, from a station near the epicenter. Obviously, the more pilot stations we are able to install, the more likely it will be that we will obtain the needed data," physicist Andrew explained.

THEIR work seems so logical to them — in view of the theoretical approaches thus far made — that they are puzzled — and pleased — at being engineering pioneers.

"The thing that surprises us is that no one has used it before," engineer John explained.

Although all is not going according to plan, they are not discouraged. Their sensors are "picking up extraneous noises," they do not have enough microphones planted, and there has been no earth slippages, rock movements or earthquakes since they were placed. But the brothers are certain they are on the way to establishing a system of early warning networks for earthquakes.

To them, the theories behind their engineering are solid.

There is much to be learned: not only where to place the sensors, but how to eliminate outside noises, how best to protect the sensors, a sure-fire method of reporting and interpreting the results, and finally interpretation of the difference stresses and rock movements which give off acoustic emissions.

By triangulation, they hope to be able to determine the dimensions of rock stresses, and pinpoint the locations. And then pinpoint the time of an oncoming quake — a goal of scientists for years.

Teen-ager tied to car, dragged to his death

Homicide investigators in Barstow Saturday waited for a witness to provide their first clue in the murder of a teen-age boy from Tustin who apparently was tied behind a car and then dragged for nearly a mile along a desert highway.

Detectives Saturday identified the victim as Jimmy Lee Manning, 17. They said he died in the arms of a motorist who stopped to give aid about 9:30 Friday night.

The motorist, Carl Delane, told investigators he spotted the youth huddled in a center divider on Interstate 15, about 25 miles north of Barstow.

Delane sped by, then doubled back to aid the young man, whose clothing was in tatters, investigators said.

Detectives said they found bloodstains and shreds of the youth's clothes along eight-tenths of a mile of the freeway.

The youth was conscious when Delane reached him, said detectives, but died moments later without speaking. Investigators added that a length of rope was tied around the victim's legs.

Coroner's officials, who conducted an autopsy on Manning at a Barstow mortuary, listed the cause of the youth's death as multiple head and back injuries.

According to investigators, the youth apparently was returning home from a rock concert in Las Vegas. Site of his death, they added is on the main traffic artery between Los Angeles and Las Vegas.

Bandit

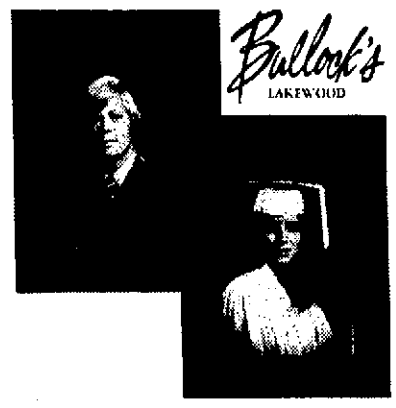

A bandit took $25 in cash and $7 worth of gasoline from the Thrifty Service Station, 2698 E. South St., at about 1:40 a.m. Saturday, Long Beach police said.

Is your clock saving time?

Did you remember to set the clock ahead an hour when you went to bed last night.

If not, you walked into church to meet the congregation coming out.

And if that didn't remind you that Daylight Savings Time officially began at 2 this morning, you have admirable composure — because you're sitting here reading the paper, letting us remind you.

I prayed 'very hard'

By CHARLES McFADDEN
Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO — "I feared for my life. I was praying for protection . . . praying very, very hard. Several times shrapnel came whizzing by my ears. It actually made a buzzing sound that hurt," he said in an interview.

Terry Toller was talking about the explosion of a Navy munitions train Saturday at Southern Pacific's Roseville railroad yard near here.

"Schrapnel was falling . . . zinging, you know . . . all around me. I started to run but then I figured it wouldn't be right, so I lay down on the ground in a ball," Toller, a 25-year-old, freelance photographer, recalled.

The big chunks of shrapnel rained down around him as a highway patrolman 200 yards away urged a group of curious motorists to evacuate the area.

WHEN TOLLER dared to get up, he snapped a picture of a huge, pink-grey cloud boiling above the yard — but not before he noticed that a piece of metal shrapnel about 1½ feet long had dug into the earth only a few feet from him.

At another point in the yard, Southern Pacific switchman Joe Visker, 57, of nearby Citrus Heights, said the first explosion "blew guys right off tractors . . . I'd say a good two blocks away."

Up to 40 miles from the blast site, residents in small Sierra foothill towns such as Placerville, Nevada City and Auburn felt the booming reverberations. Some wondered if the Air Force was testing planes.

A Sacramento man living 10 miles from the site felt an explosion so strong he said, "I thought a tree fell on the roof of my house."

Security guards at the California Capitol reacted to the explosions by blocking off the dome portion of the 103-year-old structure to keep tourists out of the area in case the dome roof caved in. Last year the state architect warned that a moderate earthquake might cause the unreinforced brick structure to come tumbling down.

Closer to the blast, residents reported vases knocked off mantels, bottles hurled out of medicine cabinets, countless windows smashed.

L.A. launches ban on aircraft noise

The most drastic airport noise restrictions in the nation are scheduled to take effect in Los Angeles today against a backdrop of mounting public hostility to jet noise that has all but halted the start of new jetports across the country.

In an attempt to still long-standing community protests over disturbed sleep, and to counter billions of dollars in lawsuits over noisy over-flying planes, Los Angeles International Airport will ban virtually all landings and takeoffs over populated areas between 11 p.m. and 6 a.m.

Instead of approaching the airport from the east, over residential areas as they do normally, jetliners at night will have to approach from the west over the Pacific Ocean. Meanwhile, jets on other runways will be taking off toward the ocean.

The airport will become the first in the nation with regular two-way traffic in the same airspace. Some airlines pilots have asserted such a procedure — called "nose-to-nose" operations by one — is potentially unsafe. But the Federal Aviation Administration says air controllers will supervise the ebb and flow of traffic and there will be no safety problem.

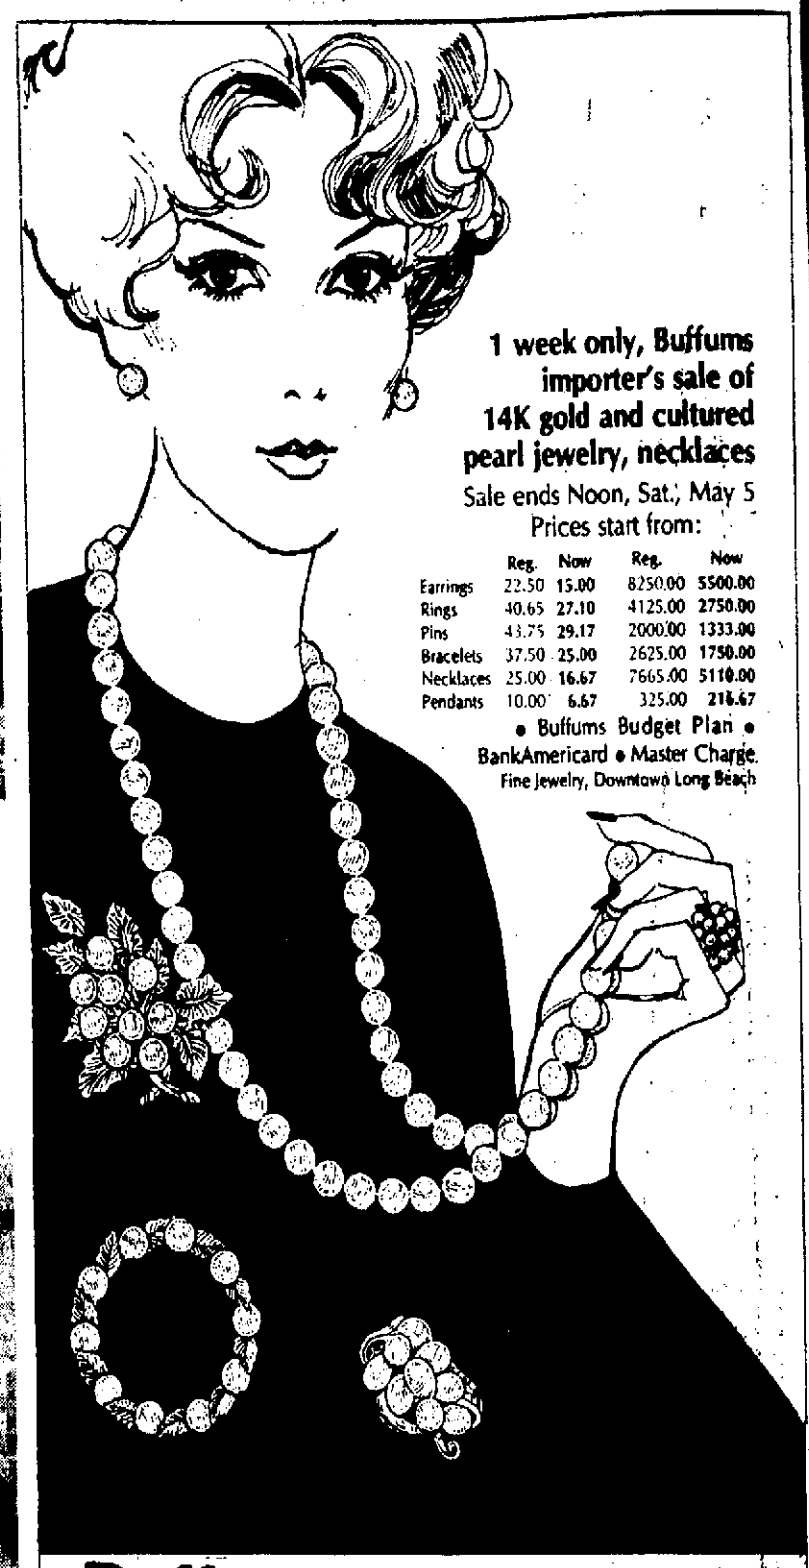

Motorist killed on freeway

SAN LUIS OBISPO (AP) — A Santa Maria man thrown from his car onto Highway 101 was killed and a woman who went to his aid was injured seriously Saturday, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The CHP said Richard Ford, 23, was riding northbound in a truck when a tire blew out, overturning the truck and throwing him into the fast lane of southbound traffic.

Ford was pronounced dead at the scene.

Police said no charges were filed.

Ellsberg claims trial a ploy to hurt McGovern

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press

Daniel Ellsberg says a newly reported link between Watergate conspirators and his trial has convinced him that the Pentagon Papers prosecution was related to efforts to re-elect President Nixon.

"I've never spoken of this as a political trial. But now I'm beginning to wonder," said Ellsberg in a Los Angeles interview. He spoke in the aftermath of the courtroom announcement that G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt are suspected of burglarizing the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist to get Ellsberg's files.

LIDDY and Hunt have been convicted on conspiracy, wiretapping and burglary charges in connection with the break-in at Democratic national headquarters in the Watergate last year.

The 42-year-old Ellsberg, on trial with Anthony Russo for espionage, conspiracy

"It appears that they wanted to smear me and then connect my name with the Democratic presidential candiate," he said.

To support his theory, Ellsberg cited a reported effort to have him attacked by two Cuban nationals and called a traitor when he delivered a speech at an antiwar rally in Washington, D.C., in May 1972, six months before the presidential election.

Two Cuban exiles said in an interview in the Miami Herald last weekend that they accompanied four of the Watergate conspirators to Washington twice during May on what they were told was a Central Intelligence Agency mission to disrupt antiwar demonstrations.

They said Ellsberg was a particular target of the first trip, May 2, on which they were to disrupt demonstrations during the funeral of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover. Neither Hunt nor Liddy was among the four Watergate conspirators involved.

ELLSBERG also said that in December 1971, the indictment originally issued against him the prior June was replaced by one charging more serious offenses, including espionage, and naming Russo as a codefendant. This, he said, may have been aimed at reinforcing the view of him as a possible criminal, rather than a hero "who had committed an act of conscience."

As the final point in his argument that the GOP re-election effort was linked to his prosecution, Ellsberg cited transcripts of television interviews broadcast in October and the first days of November 1972.

He said the transcript of the TV show, "Face The Nation" of Oct. 29, 1972, quotes Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., then chairman of the Republican National Committee, as saying: "I say the seven men who've been indicted (for Watergate) whould be entitled to a fair trial just as Mr. McGovern, when he lauds Daniel Ellsberg for stealing top-scret documents — he's entitled to a fair trial."

ELLSBERG also pointed to a copy of an Oct. 25, 1972, Dole press release on Republican National Committee stationery. It accused McGovern of encouraging Ellsberg "to take the stolen Pentagon Papers to the New York Times and other publications." The statement referred to "the Daniel Ellsberg case" as "the ultimate in hypocrisy by George McGovern."

Kemper shows victims' graves

SANTA CRUZ (AP) — A headless body, a human arm and a possible human pelvis were found at separate locations in the Santa Cruz Mountains Saturday by deputies guided by Edmund Emil Kemper III, who claims killing nine women.

Santa Cruz County Sheriff Douglas James said Kemper, who was returned here from Pueblo, Colo. under heavy guard Saturday, "led investigators to various locations where bodies, parts of bodies and clothing have been found."

Kemper, held in the county jail, will be arraigned in Santa Cruz Municipal Court Monday on first-degree murder charges in the slayings of his mother and another woman, the sheriff said.

With the huge 24-year-old former mental patient showing the way, investigators said they first uncovered a decomposed, decapitated body near the old Santa Cruz Highway off Summit Road here.

A bone, possibly a pelvis, and some items of clothing were recovered about three miles away, authorities said.

At a third location, an arm was found in a plastic bag in a steep mountain area on Rodeo Gulch Road, six to eight miles from the other sites, they said.

On Friday, authorities impounded a battered car they said belonged to Kemper after finding inside it strands of human hair, a blood-streaked back seat, a shovel, a whole clip of .30-caliber ammunition, and a spent bullet.

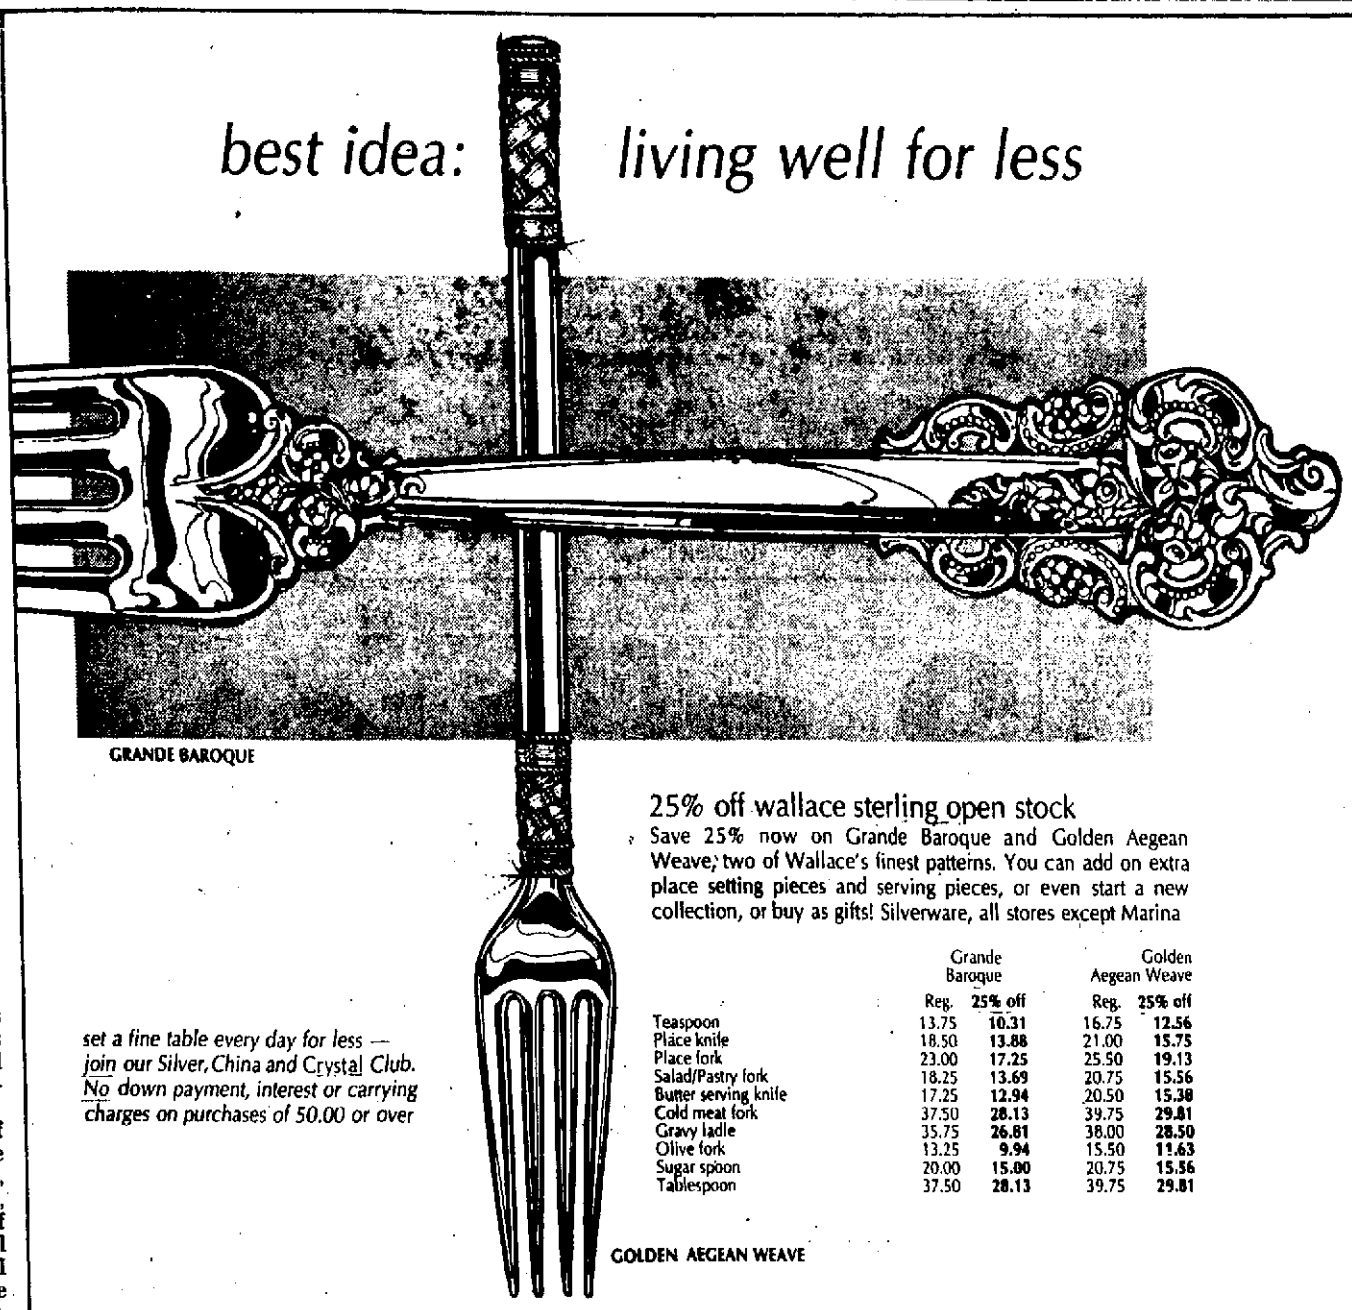

Kemper was arrested Tuesday in Pueblo after calling police here and threatening a killing spree if not picked up.

In his phone call to police the six-foot-nine, 290-pound Kemper told police of murdering his mother and a friend and stuffing their bodies in the mother's Aptos apartment closets.

Little peace in 25 years

Israel — a fight for survival

By MARCUS ELIASON

JERUSALEM (AP) — "We were landing in Israel and it almost drove us insane with emotion. It wasn't a dream any longer — it was the homeland."

Pale and emaciated from years in concentration camps, her family wiped out by Nazi bestiality, Donia Rosen and 2,500 other survivors stared over the rail of a rusty refugee ship at the port of Haifa.

It was 1948, Donia Rosen was 17 years old, and Hafia was panicky — barbed wire in the streets, patrolled by British troops, Arabs and Jews sniping from the rooftops.

Today Haifa is one of the quietest and most picturesque cities in Israel. Most of its Arab population has fled. Elderly Jews sun themselves in the cafes on Mount Carmel, sipping tea and watching bustling Haifa harbor, where computers are being installed to handle more than 5 million tons of cargo a year.

AND TODAY Donia Rosen, the orphan from Poland, is an Israeli, an attractive blonde of 42, the charge of a government office tracing gentiles who helped Jews in World War II. She rarely wakes up with nightmares now, but sitting alone in her Jerusalem apartment, she worries that Israel is losing its sense of values and joining the rat race of the West.

Avishai Amir has never suffered from nightmares, and he has few worries about Israel's future. Amir is a "sabra" — the name for a native-born Israeli, from the country's prickly, but sweet cactus plant."

Amir was born in the same year as the State of Israel, 1948. Like Israel, he grew up in war, austerity, and a sense of economic uncertainty so strong that Israeli cynics used to joke, "Whoever leaves the country last, please turn off the lights and give the keys to the United Nations."

But Israel celebrates its 25th anniversary May 7, and nobody jokes anymore about leaving — except American and other prosperous immigrants who complain that the phones don't work, the red tape is maddening and the taxes are ruinous.

PLANS for the $5 million anniversary parade illuminate a cocky self-confidence that sometimes borders on arrogance.

Two thousand troops with 200 tanks and guns are marching in Jerusalem, past the walled Arab city that contains the Jewish Wailing Wall, captured in the 1967 war, and through the newer sections where stunningly designed university buildings and museums underline the ancient past and imaginative future of the Jewish nation.

Off the parade route are the slums that show the huge problems still to be solved.

"There are a lot of things that haven't been done here yet," says Ya'acov Kirschen of New York, a 35-year-old artist, who once drew cartoons for Playboy magazine and now writes Israel's only comic strip, "Dry Bones." The strip attacks the bureaucracy, the inefficiency and the irritants of life in Israel, although Kirschen insists life is pleasanter and more natural than in New York.

"Sure, Israel could be better and many things are wrong with it," says Kirschen, who lives in the new desert city of Arad and led the town's first demonstration, against housing problems.

"But the fact is that the Hebrew language has been restored to everyday use, the Jewish people are being ingathered as the Bible said, and Tel Aviv is a thriving city. It's all amazing.

Amir's Russian father was a construction laborer then and his mother worked in a textile factory. In 1961, they bought an apartment and a motor scooter. Now the father runs his own dry goods factory.

Avishai is now a reporter for the Maariv newspaper. He is paying his way through college in Jerusalem, where he shares an apartment. He drives a 13-year-old car that cost him $1,500.

In 1956 Israel won another war, the Suez campaign. Amir's father served as an army communications officer and Amir and his baby sister went into the shelters for Arab air raids that never came.

The Israeli kidnapping, trial and execution of Nazi war criminal Adolf Eichmann in 1962 made Sabras like Amir aware, for the first time, of what other Jews had endured.

"We were numbed. At school we stopped playing at lunchtime to hear the trial on the radio. We were all about 13 years old and we were like zombies." As day after day of testimony recalled the gas ovens, "we began to understand why our parents feared for our survival."

"I think the Eichmann lesson had a stronger influence on my life than anything I have known," says Amir. "I think that was the reason my friends and I worked so hard in the 1967 war."

"Hanging Eichmann couldn't atone for Germany's crimes," says Miss Rosen, but West Germany was doing its best. Since 1952, Bonn has given about 50 billion marks — some $16 billion — to Jewish war victims, and the money has helped Israel prosper.

Israel's prosperity sagged in the 1960's. Immigrants began leaving. But the lightning war of 1967 started a boom that hasn't slowed yet.

"When we were kids, everyone wanted to be an officer," Amir recalls. "But I didn't want to fight the Egyptians or Jordanians." But like all Israelis over 18 he was in the military and he headed a ground crew at an air force base.

"I got the call-up order one Friday night. It was stuck on the door because nobody was home. I caught a bus to the base.

"We worked and worked without a stop. What devotion — it was beautiful to see. Loading bombs, refueling, at three times the normal speed. The planes just came and went, came and went. In six days it was over."

In her air raid shelter, Miss Rosen didn't share the elation.

"I was terrified. Being defeated was too disastrous to imagine. Three Arab armies, threatening to throw us into the sea, and our army so small. . . .

"I knew we deserved this country."

Israel lost 803 men in the war, the Arabs about 30,000.

Israel, the midget, emerged from the war a goliath, holding 26,000 square miles of Arab land — western Jordan, part of Syria, the Gaza Strip and the entire Sinai Peninsula with its Egyptian oil wells.

But the fighting resumed in 1968 on the Suez Canal and the borders, and Israel lost another 827 soldiers and civilians. With the American-sponsored cease-fire of 1970, most of the guns fell silent.

SINCE THEN Israelis have had the time and leisure to look more closely at themselves than ever before. And many worry about what they see.

Scandals and mismanagement came to light. Israelis were shocked to hear of war profiteering by contractors supplying the army and building fortifications. Colossal waste was disclosed in government enterprises. Israel's plan to become an automobile - producing country collapsed in a $25-million controversy.

Young couples who fought in the army complain that new immigrants are given housing while they can't find or pay for a place to live. Others grumble that taxes in their Socialist state — among the heaviest in the world — are not fairly spread between the poor and the well-to-do.

Black Panther agitators have appeared on the scene, claiming Israel discriminates against Oriental Jews — 65 per cent of the population — in favor of Jews of Western descent, or the Russian immigrants now coming at the rate of 3,000 a month.

OVADIA SADIK, a Baghdad-born garbageman, agrees. An early immigrant, he lives in squalor in Tel Aviv's Hatikva — hope — quarter with his wife and five children. "We have been living in this hut for 23 years. Twenty-three years ago they promised us a flat, but we got nothing. We have no sewage system, the road outside isn't paved, rats used to chew my son's hand while he slept and I cannot afford the fees to send my children to high school. Some boys on the street are in jail.

"The Ashekazis — Westerners — get everything, but the government ignores us," he protests.

The Hebrew poet Chaim Bialik once said Tel Aviv would never be a city until it produced its first Jewish thief and its first streetwalker. With the new prosperity, the epigram has become real. Crime, prostitution and drugs are on the increase.

Friction grates between Orthodox Jews and nonreligious Israelis who want to scrap the old rabbinical rules.

Many Israelis simply turn backs on the problems and seem more interested in acquiring new television sets or thoroughbred dogs or cars than pursuing their earlier ideals.

"PEOPLE around the world are discarding things like suits and ties, but the Israelis are just starting to wear them. Israeli women suddenly think they have to wear high fashions," says Ya'acov Kirschen, an American immigrant.

"I am sad and worried to see how materialistic the young people and adults have become," says Donia Rosen. "Day after day life gets better, but we decline."

Avishai Amir admits the deterioration, but contends, "People want to live good lives because we are sick of living in tension. Most of us hold two jobs to make ends meet.

"Peace will come eventually and then everything will improve. The old generation will die out and the immigrants will vanish as a class, and we will be a strong, united nation."

Many disagree that peace alone will solve Israel's problems.

Yet European immigrants like Donia Rosen, young Israelis like Avishai Amir, newcomers like Ya'acov Kirschen, all agree that Israel's main challenge at 25 is to attain, somehow, peace with the Arabs. Militarily, they know Israel can defend itself, but a peace agreement seems no closer than it was 25 years ago.

SOME heroes of Israel's birth are still alive to glow at its achievements and fret over its future. Moshe Dayan, the dashing young officer of 1948, is minister of defense. Golda Meir, who disguised herself as a Bedouin to bargain with the Arabs, is prime minister. Yigal Allon, who commanded the Palmach strike force, is deputy premier. Teddy Kollek, who organized arms smuggling through British blockades, is mayor of Jerusalem. And David Ben-Gurion, 86, who led the founding government; is writing his memoirs in a desert kibbutz.

But more of the old

Native-born Israelis Learned What Other Jews Had Endured

Israelis worry: will the rat race catch them

Zionists, who tried to build a model Socialist state with their bare hands in the sand and the swamps, have not survived to its 25th birthday.

Israeli writer Amos Elon once described them as "remnants of a small group of Eastern European romantics...stooped, burned out by the fires of their youth, and yet surrounded by the sovereign power of a nation which half a century before had been but a figment of their wild imagination."

It would take just as wild an imagination to forecast Israel's future.

"TWENTY-FIVE years ago, who would have bet on this happening?" Who would have bet that Israel would survive, let alone develop far beyond the Arab world that tried to wipe it out?

When Britain pulled out of Palestine and David Ben-Gurion proclaimed Israel independent May 14, 1948—the anniversary date changes because of the Jewish calendar—the state had no real government, no civil service, no official army. It was bankrupt. Thousands of homeless Jews were arriving on the seashore.

Arab troops invaded from Egypt, Jordan, Syria, Lebanon, Iraq and Saudi Arabia, and the state, armed only with smuggled guns, was born in war.

"I was working on a farm, but I spent the war making bombs and bullets in a factory," says Donia Rosen. Other young Jews, still shattered by their lives in concentration camps, went straight from the immigration ships into battle.

Miss Rosen joined the makeshift army as a secretary, making her first Sabra friends—"so new, so different, suntanned, healthy, open—not like Jews in the ghettoes."

The Jews won the war, barely, With food rationed and immigrants jammed in tents—Israel had 650,000 Jews then, 2.8 million now—the Israelis began building apartments, schools, planting trees, developing industires and organizing one of the world's crack armed forces.

MAKING the desert bloom was a vision of the early Zionists, and the vision has become real. Towns and settlements stand where nothing existed before 1948, and the Israelis have planted so much greenery that the climate is changing, becoming more humid.

Many survivors of the German death camps settled into lives of numb stagnation, but Donia Rosen struggled as Israel struggled—learning Hebrew, fitting into a new life, forgetting the horrors. She went to the university and studied literature.

But she is reminded daily of the past—since graduation she has worked at Yad Vashem, the government authority and museum commemorating the Nazi holocaust.

Sabras like Avishai Amir remember only the hardships.

"I remember there was no butter and little meat when I was small," says Amir. "Six of us lived in a 1 ½-room house in the sand dunes north of Tel Aviv"—now the city's most fashionable quarter. "I remember hearing about food riots by hungry immigrants, and floods in their tents, but I didn't know how difficult things were."

L.B. plans to celebrate Israel's 25th anniversary

The State of Israel's 25th anniversary will be celebrated in Long Beach through May with a community picnic at Recreation Park, events of songs and dances, an entertaining Israeli "coffee house," and special presentations at public libraries.

An "Israel Birthday Party in the Park" will begin with a noon picnic next Sunday in the picnic area of Recreation Park at Seventh Street and Park Avenue. Everyone is invited to bring lunch. There will be free hot and cold drinks, along with a birthday cake.

ISRAELI music and folk dancing will be presented on the band shell stage, and there will be a "Children's Maccabiah" — games and races for youngsters.

A dramatic tribute to Israel will be presented about 2 p.m. with a parade of children, a symbolic candle-lighting ceremony, dramatic presentations, songs and dances.

Special guests will include Mayor Edwin Wade, Long Beach Councilwoman Renee Simon and Lakewood Councilwoman Sheila Pokras.

The participating children will be from the Long Beach Jewish Community Center Nursery School, Kindershule, Hebrew Academy, Temple Beth Shalom, Temple Israel, Temple Beth Zion and Temple Sinai.

The day's final event will be a special concert of Israeli music by the Long Beach Municipal Band.

The festival day is free and open to all. Further information about the event may be obtained from celebration coordinator Shelli Saferstein at the Long Beach Jewish Community Center.

Another dramatic tribute to the 25-year-old state will be the "Voices of Israel" production of songs, music, poetry, visual effects and folk dances May 12 at the Long Beach Jewish Community Center's Schulman Auditorium, 2601 Grand Ave.

THE production will feature composer-pianist Hayim Fershko, and his wife, mezzo soprano Sarah Fersko. Other participants will include Romola Temkin, Miriam Lapid, Dr. Richard Kelvin, Anita Bard, Daryl Temkin, and the Hillel-CSULB Folk Dancers.

Tickets to the 8:30 p.m. tribute, at $1 per person, can be purchased at the center.

Cafe Israel, an Israeli coffee house program, will open at 8:30 p.m., May 19 at the center's Schulman Auditorium. The cafe-style entertainment will include singers, dancers and musicians. The entrance fee will be 75 cents to be paid at the door.

May has been designated "Spotlight on Israel" month at Long Beach public libraries which will display Israeli materials, distribute lists of Israeli-related books and records, and highlight Israeli children's literature in regular story-telling sessions.

A free, five-part program on Israel will be held every Thursday night from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the El Dorado Branch Auditorium, 2900 Studebaker Road. The scheduled programs are:

Thursday — "Israel on Film." The films "Israel" and "Israel — Middle East Neighbor."

May 10 — Israeli Folk Dancing. The Center Folk Dancers of the Long Beach Jewish Community Center. Performance and audience participation.

MAY 17 — "Israel and Jewish People Through Books." An historical book revue presentation by Alvin Haimowitz.

May 24 — "Voices of Israel." Romy Temkin's dramatic and musical production saluting Israel's 25th anniversary.

May 31 — Israel Travelogue. "Jerusalem to the Sinai: We Were There." A slide presentation of Israel's development the past 10 years by Herbert and Mildred Trattner, Leo and Bea Aron.

The entire Long Beach community is invited to all Israel Silver Celebration events.

Nixon signs bill hiking aid to students, Viet vets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has signed a $1.36 billion bill increasing funding for loans to college students, benefits for Vietnam era veterans and aid for school districts with heavy concentrations of federal employes, the White House said Saturday.

Under provisions of the money bill, signed by Nixon before he left Friday for his mountaintop retreat at Camp David:

— Public schools districts serving a large number of children whose parents are civilian or military government employes will receive an extra $86 million in federal aid for school construction or maintenance between now and July 1, the start of the next fiscal year.

— The Health, Education and Welfare Department (HEW) will have an additional $872 million for higher education student assistance, with an increase of $122 million in so-called basic opportunity grants, $210 million in supplemental grants, $270 million in work-study programs and $269.4 million in direct student loans.

— The Veterans Administration will get $468 million for increased GI education and training benefits under the 1972 Vietnam Era Readjustment Assistance Act.

THE MONEY was contained in an emergency supplemental appropriation measure passed by Congress before the Easter recess.

It raises total federal spending for impact aid — financial help for school districts which can't tax federal installations but which must educate children whose parents work there — to $593 million for the current fiscal year. The administration had announced April 13 a spending level of $507 million, far less than Congress wanted.

Burial of Indian stirs new conflict

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — An argument over the burial of an Indian wounded in gunfire at Wounded Knee threatened a new conflict at the besieged settlement.

A member of the American Indian Movement (AIM) said Saturday that the widow of Frank Clearwater had received permission to bury her husband in Wounded Knee. An Interior Department spokesman said, however, that Mrs. Clearwater had been served with a tribal court order restraining her from bringing her husband's body onto the reservation for burial.

Clearwater, 47, of Cherokee, N.C., was wounded in gunfire between militants who hold the village and federal officers on April 17. He died at a Rapid City, S.D., hospital last Wednesday.

$6 million in budget for area

—Bellflower Civic Center. Funds recommended: $660,000.

This is mainly for completing drawings and checking plans for proposed $12 million civic center slated for financing through joint power revenue bonds.

—LONG BEACH County Building. Funds recommended: $95,000.

This is to cover possible plan changes for court building and plan checking for 750-car garage at proposed $11.3 million civic center to be financed either through revenue sharing money or joint power revenue bonds.

—Carson-Dominguez Sheriff's Station. Funds recommended: $58,500.

This is mainly for equipment and construction funds to complete the $1.5 million project now under construction.

—LOMITA Sheriff's Station. Funds recommended: $21,000.

This is for plan checking of $1.1 million station to be financed either through revenue sharing money or joint power revenue bonds.

—Los Padrinos Juvenile Hall, Downey. Funds recommended: $20,000.

This covers inspection funds for alterations done last year.

—Cerritos Regional County Park. Funds recommended: $221,000.

This money covers plans for development of proposed $4.5 million park.

—LAKEWOOD County Golf Course. Funds recommended: $429,000.

This includes $423,000 for a tennis court complex and $6,000 to finish inspection of service building completed recently.

—Los Verdes County Golf Course. Funds recommended: $76,000.

This is to cover planning costs for development of regional park.

—COMPTON Airport. funds recommended: $628,000.

This is to cover construction of new administration building, aircraft wash and paint stripping facilities and installation of visual slope indicator.

In future weeks as supervisors go over the preliminary budget certain capital projects are bound to be dropped in an effort to cut costs. However most of the Long Beach area programs already have received past approval in principle and may therefore escape the paring knife.

Man killed in street shooting

A young man was shot to death early Saturday night, possibly by juveniles in a passing car, while he and two friends walked along a street in Carson, Firestone sheriff's deputies reported.

The victim's name was withheld pending notification of next-of-kin. Deputies said he was rushed from the scene, near 192nd Street and Avalon Boulevard, to Gardena Memorial Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

3 teens arrested in armed robbery

Torrance police arrested three Los Angeles teenagers, one of them a young woman, on suspicion of conspiracy and armed robbery Saturday evening following a holdup in which $2,000 was taken by a gunman from a Torrance dress shop.

Police Lt. Donald Feil identified the suspects as two 17-year-old boys and 18-year-old Cheryl Loften, reportedly a clerk at Nobby's Dress Shop in Del Amo Fashion Square Shopping Center.

Child killed in shooting spree

EL MONTE (UPI) — An angry young husband wounded his wife and killed their 3-year-old son Saturday, then turned a pistol on a neighbor and finally tried to commit suicide by shooting himself in the head.

ACTION LINE is your service, solving your problems, getting your answers, cutting red tape and standing up for your rights. To get action, write ACTION LINE, Box 230, Long Beach, Calif. 90801, or dial 432-3451 between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m., Monday through Friday. Questions to be answered are selected for their general interest and helpfulness. Please, do not send original documents you wish returned.

Write and wrong

A year ago I sent two manuscripts of reading lessons for adults and teens to the Educator's Publishing Service in Cambridge, Mass. They agreed to purchase the lessons but as yet I've received no money and the books haven't been printed. Another publisher is interested in seeing my manuscripts but I have been unable to get them returned. Can ACTION LINE help? M.E., Seal Beach.

Your works are being returned. Editor Robert Hall told us the manuscripts were ready to be set in print when you called off the deal in February. "We had the manuscripts edited and we'd spent some $3,000 on typesetting," Hall said. He couldn't explain why your manuscripts had not been returned earlier. Any writer who puts in hours of work on a manuscript, then sends it off in the mail without retaining a copy, is taking an unnecessary risk and no experienced free-lancer would do such a thing.

Fall guy

A large tree fell on my car. The tree was old and decayed and the city should have cut it down a long time ago. I'm told the city isn't responsible for the damage because it was caused by an "act of God." Can I sue the city? I'm without a car. C.G., Long Beach.

You can sue but you should first file a claim with the City of Long Beach to try to recover your loss. You can get a claim form at the city clerk's office in City Hall, 205 W. Broadway. After you fill it out and file it with the city clerk your claim will be put on the agenda for the city council. The council will refer it to the city attorney for investigation. Malcolm Uptegraff, assistant city attorney, said you should hear about two weeks after you file whether or not the city will pay your claim. If it does not do so voluntarily, you may file suit to recover your loss in small claims court or through an attorney.

Directly to jail?

Some time ago a young single woman got a ticket for driving without a license and she neglected to take care of it because of finances. She has moved to another part of the state and needs a driver's license. What will happen to her now if she applies for one? Will she automatically be arrested? She has a young child and a very small income and is afraid to go to the Department of Motor Vehicles. D.H., Long Beach.

She will not be arrested if she applies for a license and it is highly unlikely that she will be arrested if she goes voluntarily to the court in the jurisdiction where she was cited to clear the ticket. But, since there is an outstanding warrant for her for failure to appear, she is subject to immediate arrest if she is stopped for any violation, even jaywalking, according to James Weaver, chief clerk of the Long Beach Municipal Court. She will not be given a permanent license until the ticket is cleared. Weaver said she should apply for a license then bring her temporary license with her to the court in that jurisdiction to show she intends to get a license. She should be prepared to post at least part of the bail which will probably be $63.50. Weaver said she probably will not be fined as much as the bail and she may get it all back if she can convince the judge she had good reason not to appear earlier.

Pressure question

I added a very accurate barometer to my small weather station. How can I calibrate this instrument? T.K., Lakewood.

If you are located near sea level, obtain the current barometric pressure from a radio or television weather forecast, then set the barometer needle to that reading by turning the adjusting screw at the back of your barometer with a screw driver. As barometric (atmospheric) pressure varies with altitude, the sea-level pressure will not be accurate at higher elevations. But for home observors, the pressure fluctuations are relative so no compensation for altitude really is necessary. You should also be able to obtain the current sea-level barometric pressure by phoning the Los Angeles Weather Service office at 824-7211. But good luck with the extremely rude, hostile and unhelpful female civil servant who normally answers the telephone there.

culminated last year in a teamster endorsement of the President's re-election, and Nixon has made it clear that the door to his office is always open to Fitzsimmons.

The Kleindienst-Petersen decision came less than a month before Charles W. Colson, special counsel to the President, left the White House to join a Washington law firm to which Fitzsimmons had transferred the union's legal business.

Before leaving the White House, Colson had been instrumental in formulating administration political strategy regarding organized labor.

The electronic surveillance began on Jan. 26 under an order of the federal district court in Los Angeles authorizing the FBI to tap 11 telephone numbers in the offices of People's Industrial Consultants, 9777 Wilshire Blvd., Justice Department sources said.

The consulting firm is a Mafia front set up to channel teamster welfare money to underworld figures, the sources said.

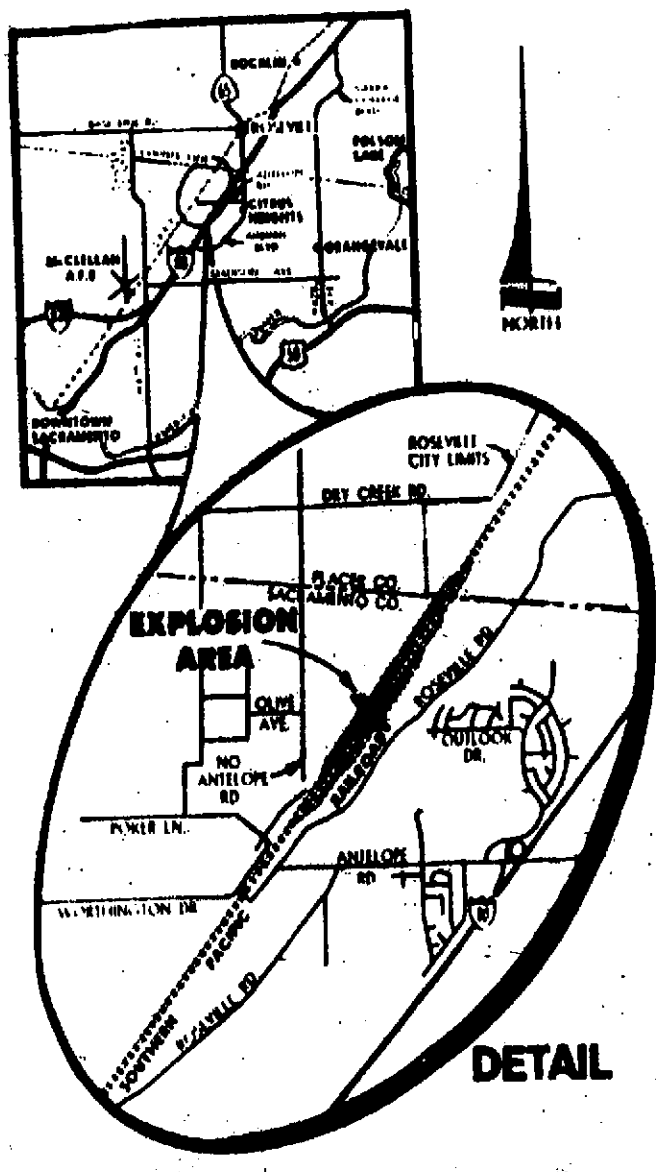

On Feb. 14, the court authorized an extension of the taps until March 6. The taps were requested and installed under the omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968.

What was learned from the taps was described in an FBI affidavit submitted to Justice Department lawyers. The affidavit asked for continuance of the existing surveillance for 20 days and installation of new taps on a public telephone and the office telephones of an alleged mobster implicated in the plot to siphon money from the teamsters.

The affidavit said that investigation up to then, including the use of electronic listening devices, had indicated "a pattern of racketeering activity — that is, a series of payments of commissions or kickbacks" flowing from corporations controlled by a doctor in league with the mob through People's industrial consultants "to the officers and agents of the employe welfare benefit plan," in violation of federal statutes.

Petersen and Kleindienst however, would not allow an application for renewal of the court order.

The FBI affidavit cited information reportedly given to the bureau by an informant in contract with an associate of Allen Dorfman, consultant to the teamsters' billion-dollar Central States, Southeast and Southwest areas pension fund, who began serving a federal prison term a month ago for conspiring to receive a kickback.

Bombs rock Roseville 'like atomic explosion'

ed down the small, wooden Citrus Heights fire station a quarter of a mile away and four homes in the subdivision of Antelope. An old Grange meeting hall was damaged and a traller was leveled.

A Space Agency U2 spy plane equipped with infrared cameras flew over the disaster scene. Military authorities said it was hoped photographs taken by the plane would show whether there were any unexploded bombs in the rubble.

Bomb disposal squads from Army and Navy bases will be sent to the scene today.

Citrus Heights assistant fire chief, Charles I. Jackson, said the blast leveled the station just after firemen left in their trucks. "That was all that saved their lives," he said.

The California Highway Patrol said pieces of undetonated explosives have been found as far away as three-quarters of a mile from the blast site. Officers warned residents not to touch any chunks believed to have come from the explosions.

State officials sent 60 Army National Guardsmen to assist city police in maintaining security and in preventing looting of homes and businesses.

Fire engulfed the ammunition cars and sent vast, mushroom-shaped clouds of smoke into the air as the bombs went off with the sound of a battlefield and hurled chunks of metal up to three miles away.

The century-old state capitol at Sacramento, 15 miles from the disaster scene, was closed to tourists because authorities feared its fragile dome may have been weakened by the shock waves.

The OES said that everything within a quarter-mile of the boxcars was leveled in a giant Southern Pacific railroad yard.

"The eye of the disaster looks like a hydrogen bomb might have been dropped on it," Sheriff Lowe told newsmen after completing a helicopter tour of the area.

Shrapnel rained over a wide area, with pieces of metal dropping from the sky as far as three miles from the blasts, reported Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke after flying over the yard. He also saw five or six trains of rail cars had been destroyed.

Hospitals in the area reported treating 31 persons, including two railroad employes, a sheriff's deputy and a 4-month-old girl cut by shattered glass from a window as she was sleeping in a crib.

An OES spokesman said all of those evacuated would be put up for the night at 10 area high schools and that no one would be allowed in the sealed-off, 10-square-mile area until today, at the earliest. He estimated up to 50,000 people were affected, but other officials at the scene said a much smaller number would need emergency shelter.

"It was almost like an atom bomb, there was a mushroom of smoke, of fire, that went about 300 yards up into the air, and then there was a loud noise," said George Manzoli, a Southern Pacific switchman waiting at one end of the sprawling yard for his shift to change.

"I WENT through a war in Europe when I was a kid but I never could imagine what it would be like to see a lot of bombs go off in a boxcar," said Manzoli. "If it had been a few minutes later, there would have been about 50 persons there (in the yard)."

The first explosion occurred soon after 8 a.m. in a string of 21 cars that only an hour earlier had arrived as part of a 102-car train. The ammunition cars carried 7,056 bombs, each weighing 250 pounds, bound for Port Chicago, Calif., near San Francisco, for shipment to the Far East.

A spokesman for the Hawthorne, Nev., Naval Depot, where the cars were loaded, said the bombs, called Mark 81s, were composed of TNT and mixed with aluminum powder.

Ronald Sixby, a Sacramento SP official, said the intense fire from the explosives engulfed 100 other boxcars in the yard, the main SP freight depot in the West.

In Washington, the National Transportation Safety Board said it was sending three investigators to look into the explosions.

Weather not likely to be summerlike

If you didn't like Saturday's weather, you'll won't like today and Monday: The National Weather Service forecasts call for the same daylong low clouds, with only partial clearing during afternoon hours.

While there's a slim possibility of a few light, scattered showers both days, forecasters said, most places will have only clouds, with highs today and Monday in the Long Beach area of about 63.

New Watergate coverup reports

WASHINGTON (AP) (Sunday) — As President Nixon secluded himself to decide on his next steps in the Watergate scandal, there were fresh reports Saturday that two of his top aides supervised a coverup of the bugging raid.

The Washington Post reported in today's editions that at least two high-level White House officials pinned the coverup squarely on presidential aides H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman.

A third White House official, presidential lawyer John W. Dean III, plans to swear under oath that he gave regular reports on the coverup to Haldeman and Ehrlichman at their direction, said the Post.

According to one high-level White House source, said the Post, the President and his top advisers are aware of Dean's plans and are attempting to devise a strategy that would offset Dean's charges.

The Post quoted its source as saying that the current state of White House confusion and internal staff warfare is largely attributable to what Dean has already told federal investigators — and the fear that he will reveal more.

The Post's sources said Dean has knowledge of illegal activities, including wiretapping, by the Nixon administration dating back to 1969.

The Post quoted its sources as saying that Dean was directed by Ehrlichman and Haldeman to insure the Watergate incident never be linked to the presidential aides or to the re-election committee.

Dean, said the Post sources, was directed by the two to prevent the disclosure of other campaign espionage and sabotage activities.

Previous reports have identified Dean as among those present when the bugging was plotted. He issued a statement saying he would not be made a "scapegoat" in the affair.

Sources raised the possibility of dramatic moves by the President — perhaps next week — in an effort to defuse what has become the most serious crisis of his political life. But no firm evidence was available to indicate that Nixon had decided to do.

Meanwhile, there were these Watergate developments:

— Sen. William F. Proxmire, D-Wis., said William D. Ruckelshaus will be serving illegally as acting FBI director unless his nomination is submitted to the Senate for confirmation within 30 days.

Ruckelshaus, who replaced L. Patrick Gray III on Friday, has said he will serve only a few months.

— Amid reports that Haldeman and Ehrlichman were fighting to keep their jobs, Sen. Robert Dole, the Republican national chairman in 1972, said the two men ought to resign. The Kansas senator also said members of Nixon's re-election camp "were questioning everyone's loyalty to the President during the campaign, but now hey're jumping off the ship saying 'this guy did it' or 'that guy did it.'"

Flood victims lifted to safety; relief seen

Associated Press

National Guardsmen used amphibious landing craft to evacuate stubborn farmers from the flooded Mississippi Delta Saturday as sunny skies promised some relief to America's water-soaked heartland.

More than 12 million acres of land have been inundated by the spring flooding along the Mississippi and Missouri rivers and their tributaries. Damage estimates top $200 million and at least 10 deaths have been attributed to the floods. Thousands are homeless.

But the forecast brought little comfort to the cottonlands of the Mississippi Delta, where some 50 determined farm families had scraped up dirt levees in a weeks-long battle to hold back the rising waters that have covered some two million acres north of Vicksburg, Miss.

Saturday they began surrendering to higher ground with the National Guard's help.

Civil Defense officials estimate some 11,000 families fled the Delta area earlier.

In Ste. Genevieve, Mo., a predominantly German Catholic town some 60 miles downriver from St. Louis, federal officials had to plead with flood victims to apply for government relief.

A few miles south in St. Marys, Mississippi River waters cut the town in two stranding 150 families and a nursing home. A Coast Guard boat was standing by to evacuate the residents.

Just north of Ste. Genevieve, Coast Guardsmen carried feed to 400 hungry cattle, 1,000 hogs and 15,000 chickens stranded on an island.

The Mississippi River at St. Louis was reported at 43.2 feet Saturday, some 13.2 over flood stage, and a crest of 43.5 feet was expected by today.

College — its values in focus

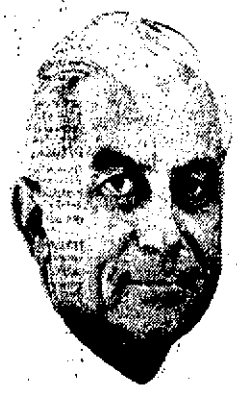

By RALPH HINMAN Jr.
Education Editor

"Dishwasher wanted. College graduates only need apply."

No such sign presumably has appeared as yet in a U.S. restaurant window. But what of late-20th Century America in which most young Americans could be pursuing higher education?

What will a bachelor's degree mean then?

This is a question presently unanswerable — outside the pages of science-fiction. It also is typical of those points, both practical and abstract, which were raised and debated last week on a Southland mountaintop by 150-plus members of California's academic community.

No "hard answers" emerged from a study conference called by Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke of the California State University and Colleges System. None was intended, however, as students, professors and administrators from across the state met at Cal Poly, Pomona's Kellog West retreat center to brainstorm the present and future "Meaning of the Baccalaureate."

The three-day event was part of a continuing study funded by the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education, officials said.

In one major sense, the conference was still another manifestation of education's current attempt to set goals and objectives for itself. Unlike the kindergarten-grade 12 level, where such self-analysis now is required by California law, it was completely voluntary.

Meeting in 14 groups ranging in size from 10-15, participants grappled with the issues, many of which were discussed earlier in a formal speech by Dr. Irvin E. Lunger, president since 1957 of Transylvania University, Lexington, Ky. In summing up, he called for a philosophy of higher education in which:

"It is the goal of an undergraduate education rooted in the liberal arts not only to prepare the student to play the game, but to lay upon him the obligation to take his 'shot at the goal.'

"He (the student) may acquire the skills necessary to play the game on his own," Lunger said, "but is it not our task as educators to confront him with the necessity of learning what the game is all about and what constitutes a viable and valid goal?"

Almost diametrically opposing views were expressed by Dr. David E. Sweet in a speech describing Metropolitan Minnesota State College, an institution he heads in the Twin Cities region.

"Students should have the responsibility and authority over their own educations," he said. "It's his or her own education — and life."

But it was to Lunger's ideas that the Californians returned in agreement or disagreement during their sessions — as later reported in writing.

Consider then some of Lunger's major views — and some responses they evoked:

— "Many in academe today seem to be abdicating their responsibility as educators and justifying their actions by dignifying the process by which students determine the means and ends of their education," he began.

Few, if any groups, were willing to shrug off all responsibility for student programs. "Society has a right" to expect that certain knowledge be transmitted to the younger generation, one group said.

"Higher education should perceive as a role, not only to add to or teach human knowledge, but to positively influence the quality of life of its clientele," said yet another workshop.

Generally speaking, most of the groups favored more flexible curricula or programs, possibly shortened from the present four years. Ultimate jurisdiction would remain with faculty.

— On the future of liberal arts, Lunger rhetorically asked, "Should not undergraduates be required to gain a measure of experience and understanding in each of its several disciplines? How else can he gain insight into the intellectual and cultural heritage which is his?"

Wrote one group in an opinion seemingly shared by many present:

"...We see a clear need for the development — at appropriate academic levels — of abilities to read with understanding, to write and speak with precision and clarity and to develop a facility in understanding different types of ideas. We deem it necessary that every graduate have the ability to solve problems in at least one discipline, and to pose or recognize problems in more than one."

Almost without exception the workshops said a bachelor's degree should represent "demonstrated competency" in several fields of human learning.

As for a future society glutted by college graduates, at least two study groups proposed highly specialized vocation preparation as a possible solution.

By the 1980s, it was suggested, the university might add rigorous and sophisticated "certificate programs" in professional areas such as accounting or advertising, computer technology and other specialized fields. Today's general education programs would be bypassed and diplomas would not be awarded.

"Such a program would satisfy a need felt by many of our (CSUC) students that their education should guarantee them a job or produce other monetary benefits," one professor commented.

"Who knows?" he added wistfully. "It might even turn on many vocationally minded youngsters to the larger values of a full four-year education!"

13-year-old wins essay contest

Cynthia Yee, a 13-year-old student at St. Athanasius School in Long Beach, won the second annual essay contest for junior high school-age youngsters sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Uptown Long Beach.

The topic, for the contest which elicited responses from 13 seventh, eighth and ninth graders, was "What is the Role of my Church in Shaping the Morals of our Community?"

First prize of a 10-speed bicycle or its cash equivalent was presented at a regular noon meeting of Uptown Kiwanis this week. Cynthia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Yee of Compton, opted for the cash so she can continue her religious education.

Carole Dillinger, 14, who attends Hoover Junior High School and Community Presbyterian Church, won second place and Mary Merva, 14, who attends St. Joseph's School and Church, third.

Effect of education law told

Teacher-parent partnership goal

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

The days are gone when a kindergarten teacher would be instructed on how to get parents to go home on a child's first day of school, a State Department of Education official predicted Saturday in Long Beach.

Spelling the end of the era when the classroom was the teacher's exclusive domain, added Dr. Dorothy Blackmore, is Senate Bill 1302—the Early Childhood Education law enacted last November.

Dr. Blackmore, head of preschool programs under State Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson Riles, explained the law's expected effects to about 300 persons at an Early Childhood Education conference luncheon aboard the Queen Mary.

THE LAW which will affect about 12 per cent of California's kindergarten-through-third grade students by next fall, "means that we in the public schools have established a full working partnership with our (children's) parents," said the educator.

It also means changes in basic educational philosophy "more important than any we've seen in our lifetimes," she added. For example, she told of a letter received by Riles last September from the frustrated parent of a kindergartner.

The parent explained to the youngster's teacher on the first day of school, "This child can already read. Her two older sisters taught her. What do you do in this school for a child that can already read?"

THE TEACHER'S answer, said Dr. Blackmore, was this: "Isn't it too bad that she learned so much so soon? In this school, she will just have to mark time while the others catch up."

The state's Early Childhood Education program will end that kind of situation, said the woman, because it aims to create "individualized programs for every child" by having parents assist educators in planning, classroom work and evaluation of their success.

With parents — some of them specially trained — providing this assistance, said Dr. Blackmore, a "new adult-pupil ratio" will begin to show up in classrooms as the program spreads to schools all over the state.

THE IDEAL ratio specified in the law is one adult working with 10 children, she said. Some schools now work on a ratio of one to 33, or as high as one to 38.

Because an untrained parent can only accomplish a minimum while working with teachers, she added, the law provides for creation of training programs that will help adults make a greater contribution.

Dr. Blackmore also cited problems with the Early Childhood Education program—most of which were simply misconceptions that California residents still have about specifications in the law.

While the bill originally contained "an option for a preschool year" that would have involved 4-year-olds, she explained, in the final legislative version that option "was amended out — it's not there any more."

She told her audience — half parents and half teachers of education and elementary grades — that because the option was eliminated, "I think you could be very valuable" in efforts to have legislators return 4-year-olds to the program with a follow-up bill.

TWO OTHER widespread misconceptions about the program, she said, are that it will bring "earlier pressure on kids" by forcing first grade level work on kindergarten children; and that the program is only for disadvantaged schools.

Watergate

Political outcome murkily profound

By ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Predicting the effect of scandal on politics has some of the hazards of lighting a match in a dark room — even if the first flare doesn't blind you, the useful illumination may be limited in range and duration.

The example may seem elaborate, but it could be apt in attempting to speculate about the impact of the Watergate affair on U.S. politics — both in next year's congressional elections and in the 1976 Presidential contest.

With new Watergate disclosures popping at his feet, it does seem likely that President Nixon, his associates and his political party will be hurt. But the record of the political effect of such scandals in the past is mixed.

Obviously, anyone who proved directly involved in the burglary and wiretapping at Democratic National Committee headquarters is going to be regarded as a political leper when the next two campaigns are run.

ANALYSIS

BUT THAT does not mean that everyone in the administration is going to be damaged. For example, there is no way of knowing how Watergate will affect Vice President Spiro Agnew, the early favorite for the 1976 GOP Presidential nomination.

Calvin Coolidge was Warren Harding's vice president and actually occupied the White House during the most sensational disclosures of the Teapot Dome scandal. It didn't hurt Coolidge a bit; he won the 1924 election easily.

On the other hand, scandals have destroyed politicians and political organizations. James G. Blaine, one of the most powerful post-Civil War Republicans, was dogged to the end of his life by charges of complicity in the Credit Mobilier scandal. He was defeated by Democrat Grover Cleveland, who acknowledged an extra-marital dalliance with a woman who later bore a child.

Another example is the reputation that Tammany, the once-powerful New York City Democratic organization, built for corruption in the 19th century. From that day to this, no national Democrat has been able to regard Tammany's support as anything but a liability, despite the machine's vaunted ability to deliver votes.

THE POLITICAL possibilities of Watergate seem to be these:

—Nixon's moral authority and credibility are going to be hurt, even if he never had a whisper of information about Watergate.

Such a loss, in turn, would make it less risky for the Democrats who control Congress to defy Nixon on such issues as cutting back federal involvement in social problem solving.

Nixon also could lose the last potent weapon of the lame duck President — the power to endorse a successor.

— Agnew could be hurt if he was expecting Nixon's blessing to give him a shoo-in for the nomination in 1976. And his possible rivals for the GOP standard — say Sens. Charles Percy of Illinois or William Brock of Tennessee — could touch him up simply by emphasizing their own distance from the White House and the Watergate.

— REPUBLICAN candidates for the House and Senate next year could be vulnerable if they were among the GOP figures who got on record early pooh-poohing Watergate as trivial. They can be sure their words will be quoted back at them by their opponents in the fall of 1974. On the other hand, Republican senators like Lowell Weicker, Edward Brooke and Barry Goldwater — early voices for complete disclosure of the Watergate facts — would seem to have little to worry about in the way of backlash from the scandal.

— The Republican Party may have to kiss goodbye its hope of forming a "new majority" coalition of middle-class Americans who may have viewed the Democrats as permissive on crime, moral standards and the work ethic.

Although not very many Republicans besides Nixon benefited from what was believed to be such a coalition in 1972, the hope obviously lingers in the bosoms of GOP leaders that they have not lost this vote.

— Depending upon the fall of events, the Democrats may be able to use the Watergate as a prime campaign issue in 1974, but it may not last all the way to the presidential year as a talking point unless the Republican nominate a candidate with a connection to the scandal.

Otherwise, the memory of the episode may have faded to the point that voters will be as put off by its mention as they were last fall by Sen. George McGovern's incessant demand for withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam at a time when Nixon was doing just that.

JAMES HOFFA

Hoffa defends Nixon on bugging

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former teamsters boss James R. Hoffa said Saturday that President Nixon probably was an unknowing "victim of circumstances" in the Watergate scandal and discounted possible Teamster involvement in financing the bugging.

"I sat at 25 Louisiana Avenue (Teamster national headquarters here) long enough to know that I couldn't keep track of everything that went on in the Union," Hoffa told a news conference, "and I'm sure President Nixon couldn't either."

Hoffa, who backed Nixon's re-election last year, met with reporters before attending a $100-a-plate dinner arranged by the National Association for Justice (NAJ) to honor him for his prison reform efforts since being paroled from a federal penitentiary in 1971.

He disclosed that he planned to run for president of his home local in Detroit next year if he can win a pardon and have his restrictions lifted.

Much to talk about as top Demos meet

HURON, Ohio (UPI) — Democratic governors gather today on the shores of Lake Erie "to talk of many things" — shares and snares and budget cuts . . . and Watergate, of course.

GOV. BUMPERS

The 31-member Democratic Governors caucus will be assembling for a two-day session at Saw Mill Creek Lodge to vent dissatisfaction with President Nixon's budget proposals and his strategy to expand revenue sharing, which some governors now claim has developed into a trap for them.

While the clash of federal-state interests was high on the official agenda, the Watergate bugging affair and its political impact were likely to be prime topics of private discussions.

Gov. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas, caucus chairman, says he does not plan to bring up the Watergate, but indicated he would not be surprised if one of his fellow governors did.

Republican agony over Watergate gives the Democratic governors' gathering a far different tone from their last session. They met last December in St. Louis in the gloom of their party's presidential election disaster, and there brought into the open the party revolt that ended with the ouster of Jean Westwood as chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

The current meeting was called specifically to work out a party position and prepare resolutions for the National Governors conference June 3-6 at Lake Tahoe.

Bill would aid workers hurt by base closing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said Saturday he plans to introduce legislation to aid workers affected by military base closings.

The legislation will provide readjustment payments, continuation of health benefits, emergency employment, new manpower training programs, and early retirement options.

Kennedy called the closing of 274 defense installations in 32 states "economic and social chaos for 28,000 civilian defense workers whose jobs were abolished."

Dent due in Newport Beach

By By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Secretary of Commerce Frederick B. Dent will speak at a public dinner meeting of Republican Associates of Orange County Wednesday in the Newporter Inn, Newport Beach, chairman James Beam announced.

Reservations for the $10 a person dinner may be made by calling (714) 541-3861. A social hour is scheduled for 6:30 p.m., dinner at 7:30 and Secretary Dent's talk at 8:30.

License Profiles

State Sen. Joseph M. Kennick, D-Long Beach, has introduced a bill requiring full face photographs on all drivers' licenses, eliminating "the double standard of profile photographs on the drivers' licenses of minors."

Calling the current law "a slur on the maturity of California teen-agers," Kennick said the policy also is discriminatory. "As 18th birthdays and 21st birthdays do not necessarily coincide with license renewal dates, the youthful profile photographs are no positive indication whether a driver is a minor or an adult.

"Now that in most activities the age of majority has been attained at age 18, it is time California adopted a single standard on its drivers' licenses photographs."

The Department of Motor Vehicles, which is sponsoring the Kennick legislation, estimates that more than $13,600 a year will be by eliminating the duplicate system of photos.

Watergate Talk

Joseph R. Cerrell, owner of a Los Angeles governmental consulting and campaign management firm, will discuss "The Implications of Watergate, 1974 and 1976" at the Wednesday noon luncheon meeting of the Democratic Women's Study Club in the Lafayette Hotel.

Cerrell has held key posts in the presidential campaigns of Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

Winner Booked

The Democratic winner in the Tuesday special election in the 38th Assembly District will be the featured speaker at the 7:30 p.m. Thursday meeting of the Bellflower Democratic Club in the board room of the Bellflower School District Administration Building, 16703 S. Clark Ave., Bellflower.

Also scheduled are recent election victors Mrs. Louise Hastings, for Cerritos College Board of Trustees, and Mrs. Georgia Mullen, for Bellflower Unified School District.

Rock fans riot

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Hundreds of youths threw bottles, broke furniture and smashed windows at the Las Vegas Convention Center Friday night when rioting erupted because the main rock concert act failed to show up.

STUDENTS PREPARE GOURMETS' BARGAIN

MENOMONIE, Wis. (AP) — A 14-course, six-hour dinner that would cost an estimated $200 per plate in New York went for $25 a plate Saturday night at the University of Wisconsin's branch here.

Officials of the school's hotel-restaurant management course said they filled the allotted 100 reservations 15 minutes after they began taking them.

The extravagent six-hour dinner included nine wine courses, four main dishes — and two intermissions.

Afterwards, dishwashers sloshed through 2,250 plates, 1,500 wine glasses and 2,500 pieces of silver.

The meal, a final project in a classical cookery and formal service course offered on the campus, had the theme, "A Night at Delmonico's-1873." Delmonico's Restaurant was the ultimate in New York dining in the late 1800s, and many of the dishes prepared by the students were created at Delmonico's.

The main dishes included: rack of lamb served with sauteed artichokes; roast capon with peas and braised lettuce; roast duck with curry jelly, and lobster mousse. Tim Ross, director of hotel-restaurant management, said a dinner similar to the one students are preparing would cost a New York restaurant at least $200 a plate to prepare and serve.

Ford on sentimental journey

NEW YORK — Glenn Ford strolled into the Hotel Plaza Palm Court the other afternoon wearing dark glasses. "Do you always wear dark glasses?" a reporter asked him. "I was out late last night," he said. A few seconds later he confessed, "I didn't even know I had them on."

That's what happens to Hollywoodians when they get to the Big City.

The night before he'd seen "Irene" and taken its sensational star Debbie Reynolds to supper at 21 where they sat near night owl Aristotle Onassis. The hour had grown late. But it was not just to see "Irene" and Debbie that he was here. Glenn Lord was in town on a sentimental voyage — back into radio.

"It's just for the hell of it," he said. "It's not for money. We work for scale . . ."

A young Los Angeles ad man and entrepreneur, Jay Kholos, had discovered radio drama of yesteryear and was going to bring it back in a series of syndicated shows, "Zero Hour," with Rod Serling as host.

"Benny Rubin got a parking ticket when he did that one," Glenn said. "He said, 'That'll cost me more than I made on the show.' "

WHEN THE producers asked AFTRA how much the radio regulars were paid back in the good old days of the '30s, '40s and '50s, they had to look down in the cellar for the records and came up with "About $40."

Les Tremayne, who was "Mr. First Nighter," Carl Swenson "Lorenzo Jones") and Janet Waldo ("Corliss Archer"), probably got much more. And Glenn Ford as "Christopher London," a soldier of fortune created by Erle Stanley Gardner, believed he got as much as $2,500 a show.

"Tell how you found that sound effects man," Glenn said.

"Gus Bayze was working at CBS-TV city calling out 'You have just won a color TV set,' "Kholos said. "We asked how he'd like to do radio? He'd be thrilled.

"He showed us all the old sound effect tricks. Cellophane crackling for fire. Coconut shells for the plop, plop, plop, plop of the horses' hooves. Old flash bulbs for ice cubes. Why flash bulbs? 'Don't be silly, because they don't melt.'"

Patty Duke, too young to have done radio drama; Howard Duff, Orson Welles, Joseph Cotten and other big names of the radio drama era of the Armstrong Theater and Norman Corwin will be invited back into Marconiland — for scale.

"I'll do one big one," Glenn said. "Radio was alive," he remembered. "Playhouse 90, Lux Radio, were all live. When that red light went on, you were on your own. If you made a mistake you had to cover it up for there was no returning. We could do three or four shows a day."

Ford's "Cade's County" TV series which lasted one season on CBS is now the top-rated American TV show abroad. He also has two feature movies, "Schizo" and said, 'I got a new script for you.' He despised anybody who was afraid of him."

"Who was that girl?" I naturally asked.

"Not telling you." Glenn had his dark glasses off now. "Beautiful girl," he said.

Today's Best Laugh: A girl snapped at her boyfriend, "Believe YOU? I'd believe a TV commercial before I'd believe YOU!"

Wish I'd Said That: An art expert said it long ago: "American collectors are keen on French painters. Corot painted about 3,000 pictures, and about 5,000 of them reached this country."

N.Y. begins year fete

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — New York City begins celebrating its 75th anniversary as Greater New York Monday.

The kickoff will be at noon on the city hall steps, Mayor John V. Lindsay announced in detailing some plans Saturday for the year-long birthday party.

Jubilee will be the theme as show folk, baseball players, business executives, politicians and intellectuals join at city hall to start the scores of affairs that will proliferate in all boroughs for all age groups.

"The diamond jubilee celebration," said Lindsay in announcing the plans, "offers us all a chance to salute the city that we live in and love."

Myth of rural blacks' city aid-grab killed

New York Times Service

NEW ORLEANS — Southern blacks, who have moved by the hundreds of thousands to the crowded inner cities of the North over the last two decades, are less likely to be poor or on welfare than their urban-born counterparts, according to a new study of 1970 census findings.

In a report to the three-day annual meeting of the Population Association of America, which ended here Sunday, Larry H. Long, a bureau of the Census demographer, said that the widely held view that black migrants from the South were principally responsible for the dramatic rise in recent years of northern welfare rolls was not true.

Conceding that black migration has added to the welfare population in the North, Long, who made the study, declared that "black migrants have accounted for a less-than proportionate increase in the welfare rolls" compared with those born in the cities.

His findings, which are to be published soon by the Census Bureau, were based on responses to the 1970 questionnaires from New York, Phildelphia, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles and Washington, D.C., chosen because they all had at least 500,000 black residents.

Long also suggested that the results of the study made it appear unlikely that large numbers of blacks have been attracted to the North by the prospect of higher welfare payments, another notion that has been broadly accepted and even espoused by President Nixon.

In a speech on welfare payments and other domestic matters in August, 1969, the President said, after citing discrepancies in welfare payments among the states, that "one result of this inequality is to lure thousands more into already overcrowded inner cities as unprepared for city life as they are for city jobs."

Noting the traditional theory that "people in economically-depressed areas tend to move to areas where income-earning possibilities are greater," Long contended that it was "impossible to decide how many of the people moving to the high-income high-welfare states were moving because of the high income and how many were moving because of the high welfare."

"This fact is not well understood by the general public," he added.

Working with data from responses to census questions on state of birth and county or city or residence in 1965, as well as on total money income in 1969 from various sources, including public assistance, Long concluded that black southern migrants were "more economically successful" than blacks born in the norther cities.

He also discovered that even black women who were heads of households who had migrated from the South were less apt to be on welfare or to have incomes under the poverty level than those born in the states in which the cities were situated.

However, he found that blacks who had moved from the South since 1965 were more likely to be poor or on welfare than either the earlier migrants or the urban-born.

"That blacks having recently arrived from the South have higher rates of poverty and welfare dependence than earlier migrants may suggest either of two interpretations," he said. "On the one hand, this finding may suggest that after an initial period of adjustment the recent migrants from the South will be more successful in finding and holding jobs than blacks born in the cities where they were living in 1970.

"On the other hand, it is possible that the recent black immigrants from the South represent a change of migration patterns. Perhaps they will continue to have rates of poverty and welfare dependence as high as the urban born. That is, the recent southern migrants may not come to resemble the earlier migrants."

As for whites, who were also included in the study, Long found "no consistent differences" between all migrants and natives as far as percentages on welfare, but the migrants were less likely to be below the poverty line.

However, he discovered that southern white migrants were more likely to be poor or on welfare than whites born in the cities.

"When one compares black urban natives with blacks born in other states," he said, "the conclusion is that southern birth is not a handicap. But when one compares white urban natives with whites born in other states, southern birth is a definite handicap insofar as poverty and welfare dependence are concerned."

CORE joins busing opponents in test case

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Congress of Racial Equality, a longtime foe of racial discrimination, has lined up with the Nixon administration and the state of Virginia in an attempt to block Supreme Court approval of public school integration across city-suburban lines.

The civil rights organization has filed a friend of the court brief in a major test case before the court, opposing one of the first plans to combine a heavily black city school system in Richmond with two virtually all-white surrounding counties.

The case was argued before the high court this week, so that a decision almost certainly will be handed down before the justices adjourn the 1972-73 term in mid-June. The court normally resolves all cases it had heard before adjourning.

The CORE brief charged that Supreme Court approval of the merged city-suburban integration plan would cause "disastrous consequences to black children by their only find, as countless black parents expect."

Kidnapers free boy; others held

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Kidnapers, who had threatened to cut their 10-year-old victim in two unless they received $50,000 ransom, released him unharmed Saturday after his family paid them equivalent of $5,000.

Five other persons remain in abductor's hands in seperate kidnaping incidents, three of them reported during the past four days. The latest abductions raised to 36 the number of such incidents reported in Argentina this year.

At least two of the victims have been killed when their families could not raise or refused to pay the ransom.

The family of 10-year-old Daniel Lopez told police he was returned "safe and sound" Saturday. A police spokesman who made the announcement gave no further details.

Allende opponents under fire

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — The headquarters of the opposition Christian Democrat Party was closed by court order Saturday as part of an investigation of the slaying of a Communist construction worker during a politically motivated riot.

Criminal Court Judge Maria Peralta ordered the 11-story building evacuated and closed. Detectives searched the party's offices, and riot police detoured traffic outside.

Police said the construction worker, Jorge Ahumada, 23, was fatally wounded by gunfire Friday night during an assault on the party's headquarters by thousands of supporters of the government of Marxist President Salvador Allende.

Daniel Vergara, under secretary of interior, identified Ahumada as a Communist. Vergara also said another construction worker who was shot during the incident and was in "grave condition."

SOME of the building's windows were smashed and five men and a teenaged girl were hit by rocks and required hospitalization before the hour-long siege was broken up. The party headquarters building is on Bernardo O'Higgins avenue, the capital's principal thoroughfare, three blocks from the presidential palace.

Ahumada's death came after two days of violent political confrontations in Santiago and provincial areas, sparked by proposed education reforms. More than 600 have been arrested and at least 130 injured, police said.

Sen. Renan Fuentealba, chief of the Christian Democrat Party, said "submachine gun fire" from the crowd was the only gunfire during the assault.

THE PRESIDENTIAL press office said that the shots "could have come" from the building.

Ex-Yugoslav official jailed

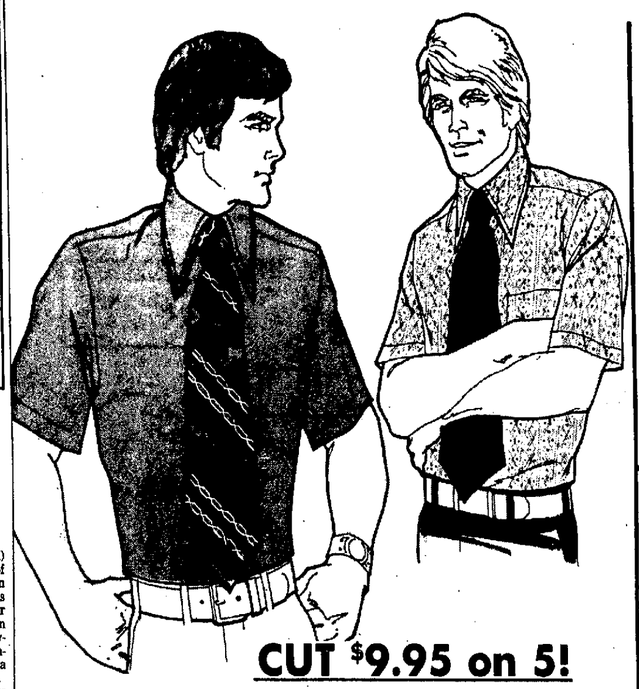

BELGRADE (AP) — Vojin Lukic, former Yugoslav and Serbian interior secretary, was sentenced to 18 months strict imprisonment Saturday on conviction of spreading hostile propaganda and other antistate activities.

Lukic, 54, was dismissed from his official posts after the downfall of Vice President Alexander Rankovic in 1965. He pleaded not guilty to the accusation.

Until his arrest last December, Lukic had practiced law. He claimed in court that prosecution witnesses gave false or distorted evidence.

Soldier killed in Belfast

N. Irish reject Britain's plan

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — A sniper killed a British soldier in Londonderry on Saturday and guerrilla ambushers seriously wounded two others in Belfast.

On the political front, Protestants of the powerful Orange Order rejected Britain's plan for a settlement of the Northern Ireland feud involving Roman Catholics, Protestants and British authorities. The rejection opened a deep split in the Protestant majority.

The sniper victim in Londonderry was the second soldier slain there in 24 hours. The killing brought the death toll in the British province since August 1969 to 778.

THE MAN WAS killed by a single shot fired from an apartment building in the Shantallow district.

In Belfast, an army patrol was trapped in an ambush in an alley on the edge of the Catholic Falls Road sector. One trooper was shot in the chest, the other in the abdomen.

The Grand Orange Lodge of Ireland said in a communique that the British government's proposals, which would give the Irish republic a voice in Northern Ireland affairs, hold the "seeds of destruction for Ulster."

This put the Orange Order and the Ulster Unionist Party of former Prime Minister Brian Faulkner in direct confrontation for the first time in the province's 50-year history.

FAULKNER and the party which ruled Northern Ireland for 50 years until March 1971 gave cautious approval to London's proposals announced nearly two months ago. The British government took over direct rule of Northern Ireland in March 1971; and dissolved the provincial Parliament. Faulkner and his government resigned.

The British proposals would give the minority Roman Catholics a share in a new government for the province and in a new legislative assembly to be elected in June but defense and security matters would remain firmly in London's hands. The Irish republic would be represented in an all-Ireland council to be set up at some unspecified future date.

The Orange Order thus joined other militant Protestant organizations in opposition to the British proposals and Faulkner. Others are the paramilitary Vanguard Movement and Ulster Defense Association, the United Loyalist Council and the Rev. Ian Paisley's Democratic Unionist party.

THE ORANGE Order was founded in 1795 and named in honor of William of Orange, 18th century king of England. It is dedicated to maintaining Protestant supremacy in Northern Ireland and defending its ties with Britain.

Nearly all local Protestant leaders belong to it and its membership is said to number in the hundreds of thousands.

The order urged its followers to vote only for candidates "pledged to restore a fully democratic Ulster government" in the local ballot next month and the voting for the assembly in June.

The grand lodge's announcement came after thousands of militant Protestant guerrillas demonstrated in Belfast bringing traffic to a standstill for one hour on Saturday.

THE UDA MEN, wearing masks and military uniforms, were protesting against extradition of a young Protestant wanted in the Irish republic on a double murder charge.

The youth, Robert Taylor, 18, of Londonderry is charged with murdering a man and his fiancee in County Donegal on New Year's Day.

Hunters Pt. builds last ship

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The submarine rescue ship Pigeon, the first of a new class of naval vessels, Saturday became the last ship to be commissioned in the Hunters Point Naval Shipyard.

The yard is to be closed as part of the Nixon administration's economy program.

The twin-hulled Pigeon is designed to save crews of stricken submarines at depths of as much as 5,000 feet. The vessel displaces 4,555 tons and cruises at 13 knots.

It was built to house the Navy's deep submergence rescue vessel, a kind of miniature submarine designed to dive to a full-size sub and remove the crew 24 at a time.

Tour Soviet Ports

A three-man delegation from Long Beach Harbor is expected to report Monday on its recent trade development to the Soviet Union.

The delegation, headed by Commissioner Robinson A. Reid, visited the Soviet Far East Port of Nakhodka and viewed construction of the Vostochny Port in Wrangel Bay.

Reid, along with James McJunkin, assistant Harbor Department general manager, and Dean Petersen, director of trade development, met with officials of the government-owned Far Eastern Shipping Line which announced recently the first all-container ship would make its maiden call at the Port of Long Beach next month.

Valentin P. Biankin, head of the line, said that at present, cargo moving between the U. S. West Coast ports of Long Beach and Oakland are transhipped through Japan. He said recently that direct shipments between West Coast U. S. ports and the Siberian ports are under study but indicated they are not in immediate future plans. The Long Beach delegation is expected to have some comment on that plan during Monday's Board of Harbor Commissioner's meeting.

The first Russian containership to call here will be the Alexander Fodeev, commissioned last year. The ship, one of several scheduled to be put into the U.S.-Far East trade routes, can handle 358 40-fooi containers, including reefer units.

The Far Eastern Shipping Line operates a combined merchant fleet of 256 ships ranging from tankers, to breakbulk cargo carriers, to containerships.

Bart, who has been vice president of sales since July, also will be responsible for operations, contracts and agency affairs. Haskell, who has been vice president of engineering and marine operations since December 1970, also will be responsible for industrial engineering and purchasing.

And in another matter effecting Matson operations, Capt. Anthony D. Haydon, assistant regional marine operations manager in Honolulu for the past four years, will become regional manager, marine operations for Southern California. He will succeed the late Capt. John Van Orden, who died March 15. The late captain joined Matson in the early '30s as a deck boy and rose to become chief officer on the company's passenger liners and finally as master of several of the company's cargo carriers.

More promotions

Two promotions in the general manager's office at Bethlehem Steel Corporation's Terminal Island shipyard have been announced by A. J. Maloney, general manager.

David L. Shortt was promoted to assistant general manager and Carl B. Karls was advanced assistant to the general manager. Both men were former sales engineers.

Shortt, a graduate of the Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N.Y., served seven years in the Navy and was discharged in 1954 as a lieutenant commander. He joined Bethlehem the same year as a coordinator in the production department.

200-foot yacht stuck on sandbar

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — The 200-foot yacht New York was hard aground Saturday despite an attempt by two Navy tugboats to free it from a sandbar.

The Coast Guard said the boat, once a New York Harbor pilot's boat, ran aground Friday morning about 1,000 yards off the naval station here.

Zumwalt draws hairline

By BUCK LANIER
Military Editor

Adm. Zumwalt is going to shear his flock.

"We are not going to have ill-groomed, dirty-haired, scruffy and scroungy sailors," the chief of naval operations said in issuing a "sweeping clarification" of the Navy's hair regulations.

The "new look" in hair is spelled out:

No plaited or braided hair. Muttonchop or other exotic sideburns are banned and all sideburns must be trimmed neatly and must not extend past the ear lobes.

Hair will be neat, clean, trimmed and present a groomed appearance. This includes no touching the collar and off the ears.

FRONT HAIR will be groomed so that it will not fall below the eyebrows when any headgear is removed.

Hair bulk cannot interfere with proper wearing of any military headgear.

Afro, naturals or other ethnic hairdos are permitted as long as they fit all the listed requirements.

The admiral expressed regret at this and the earlier necessity of rescinding his dungaree directive and said:

"When the directives (Z-Grams) were issued they were for the purpose of making the Navy man's life easier and also recognizing the trends in these times.

"When approving wearing dungarees to and from home after duty hours were completed I believed this would ease things for the sailor. It was incredible to see the deterioration of this regulation.

"Too many Navy men took it upon themselves to make their own interpretations and consequently everyone lost the privilege.

The dungaree wearing got to be a big joke as sailors were seen all over Long Beach and other Navy home ports in banks, bars, stores, pleasure palaces and even at airports—maintaining when picked up that they "were on the way home."

In most cases the dungarees were dirty and grimy from ship's work.

Adm. Zumwalt indicated in the new hair directive that unless things shaped up his next move would be even tougher and "shorter."

A Washington source said the hair policy change came following some "horror" stories about the appearance of 6th Fleet sailors in European ports. A followup check on the East and West Coasts netted a similar pattern.

'Seafarers' quit bus for military 'Y' haven

Long Beach's Armed Services YMCA has opened its facilities to the Seamen's Center, which hitherto has operated out of a converted bus at Pico Avenue and El Embarcadero in the Port of Long Beach.

Robert Farnham, YMCA executive director, said Saturday the group now calls itself the Long Beach International Seafarers Center. It is sponsored by the Seamen's Church Institute of San Pedro.

"We are glad to have them aboard and we feel they will complement our operation of service to the young servicemen assigned to ships and bases in this area," Farnham added.

The name change follows a movement to call merchant seamen "seafarers" said Arthur R. Bartlett, executive director of the center.

"We are glad to accept the Y's invitation and get out of that bus," he added.

Skylab—a house in the sky

By AL ROSSITER JR.

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The Skylab space station set for launch May 14 is by far the roomiest spaceship ever prepared for flight and one of the project's objectives is to see how well men adapt to its size.

"It's sort of like flying a phone booth and flying a house," mission commander Charles Conrad said in comparing Skylab to the Gemini capsule in which he first orbited earth 7½ years ago.

With a habitable volume of 12,396 cubic feet, Skylab has 59 times as much room as the Apollo that ferried men to and from the moon during the last 3½ years. And the Apollo command module had much more space than a two-seater Gemini.

SKYLAB is more like a small house than a spacecraft. It has a little bedroom for each of its three crewmen, a ward room with dining table, refrigerators, cabinets and the like, a bath room, a large medical and experiment area and an even larger general work area on a second level.

The living and work quarters are 21 feet in diameter and 48 feet high and will enable astronauts to move freely about in an enclosed weightless area for the first time.

With so much space, engineers wonder how well the Skylab crewmen will be able to move about and work in the orbiting laboratory.

"I think it's going to take us a little while to adapt," Conrad said in an interview. "I don't envision any major problems, but I think we're going to get some surprises. And I think some of them are going to be pleasant surprises."

C. C. Johnson, a habitability specialist at the Johnson Space Center in Houston, said it may turn out to be a very difficult job to move from one point to another in such a large weightless space, completely unhindered for the first time.

Johnson said there is even a chance an astronaut would become "temporarily marooned" in the middle of the cabin by weightlessness, floating around with not enough speed to reach a wall.

"HE'LL have to have some patience and wait until he drifts to the other side," Johnson said.

Conrad said one of the more likely problems might involve moving large pieces of equipment, such as food lockers, about in the spaceship. He said this will require two men with one firmly anchored to a floor or wall while he guides the gear to the other.

Since there is no gravity in space, there is no need for stairs or a ladder between the two levels of Skylab's living and work area. Instead, the astronauts have a central handrail called a "fireman's pole" to guide them between floors.

Conrad and his two crewmen, Dr. Joseph Kerwin and Paul Weitz, plan to spend 28 days living and working in Skylab. Two later crews will each live in Skylab for 56 days.

Rolls-Royce, GE partnership seen

If the Navy ships out, let's shape up

UNDOUBTEDLY, April 16 will go down in Long Beach history as "Blue Monday." Meaning Navy blue, of course.

If you don't recall, that was the day we got the word from the Pentagon. Since then, all of Long Beach has been in a mad scramble trying to figure out how to live without the Navy and like it.

Headlines have screamed. Local officials have expressed "shock and alarm." California's elected government officials have scurried back home from Washington to assess the situation. The business sector has taken a new look at its profit and loss statements.

Not since the subsidence crisis has anything created such citywide pandemonium.

BUT IS IT really the end of the world? I say no.

Sometimes a crisis can be a blessing in disguise. Sometimes it can, often does, galvanize a city into action, resulting in accomplishments never dreamed possible.

Take subsidence. In the 1950s Long Beach made national headlines. We almost lost the Naval Station then, too. Also the rest of the city. Part of it was sinking away, possibly to be gulped up by its greatest natural resource, the Pacific Ocean.

The maximum drop measured 27 feet — yes, 27 feet! — at the center of a 20-square-mile bowl. Damages from subsidence reached $90 million and properties valued at $500 million were endangered.

BUT YOU CAN'T let a perfectly good city sink in the ocean. The city marshaled all its available forces. And a solution was found.

To prevent a "man-made" tidal wave from sweeping Long Beach into oblivion, great quantities of sea water were injected into the ground to replace oil that had been taken out.

The sinking stopped. And, much to everyone's delight, oil began flowing from 2,900 "dry" wells operated by private firms in and near the city. According to research by John L. Chapman, author of "Incredible Los Angeles," the sea-water injection "forced more oil into pumping wells and improved productivity up to 75 per cent."

Because of that crisis, Long Beach emerged from the depths of despair — and possibly the ocean — into a new era of unexpected productivity.

AND TAKE San Diego. Imagine how that city felt back in 1959 when its major employer, Corvair, announced the layoff of 21,000 workers.

It was labeled "bust town" by the national press. Retail sales dropped 30-40 per cent and business failures skyrocketed.

Help! It was enough to make all of San Diego sit up and take notice. Many organizations started programs to overcome the disaster. Most were economic-oriented, including downtown development by the San Diegans Inc., a retail group.

It was a disaster of the first order, but it galvanized the leadership of that city and sparked a determination which, ultimately, produced one of the great community success stories of the West Coast.

LONG BEACH, by mobilizing all segments of its leadership, can also accomplish major downtown revitalization. And it's high time.

By its very structure, a Navy-oriented economy is temporary and fluctuating. Recent cutbacks and changes in regulations already have left gapping holes in the downtown area. An example is a solid block of vacant store fronts on Pacific Ave., just a few steps off Ocean Blvd. All are deserted locker clubs.

The Armed Services YMCA has been wondering, for two or three years now, where all the sailors have gone. Up and down the Pike, operators complain and recall the days when hordes of blue uniforms moved through their concessions in a payday frenzy.

The colossal decay is all around. Stores, tailor shops, bars, restaurants, billiard halls, porno movies and locker clubs, with little reason for being, all appear to be waiting for some sort of last rites.

IT'S TIME — as never before for the business sector to consider its 350,000 permanent residents. To think in terms of providing a vital downtown area where they can park free, browse and shop, go for lunch at noon and for entertainment at night, where they can find sidewalk cafes, quality merchandise, designer fashions, unique attractions, a pleasant atmosphere.

If they don't find it in their own downtown, they'll find it elsewhere. That's a very large economic potential — 350,000 permanent residents. Even bigger than the Navy.

Treated waste said not hurting ocean

Sewer study jars conservationists

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Staff Writer

Conservationists are finding it difficult to believe a recent report which states that most present methods of treating sewage do not harm the ocean environment.

The 531-page report disputes some long-held ideas about dumping treated sewage water into the sea.

It charges that laymen and scientists alike have failed to recognize the differences between processes which take place in chemically complex oceans and those in fresh water bodies.

The document was prepared after a study of treated sewage water disposal in the Southern California Bight, an area extending 300 miles from Point Conception to Cabo Colnett in Baja California and reaching 120 miles out to sea.

A $1.3-million study grant was provided by Ventura County, the Cities of Los Angeles and San Diego, and the county sanitation districts in Orange and Los Angeles Counties.

Called the Southern California Coastal Water Research Project, the study was conducted by a staff ot 22, sumervised by Dr. George Hlavka. Live marine scientists advised the researchers.

Its purpose was to establish scientific data to support or refute charges of environmental damage by discharging treated sewage water into the ocean.

What has excited conservationists, ecologists, and environmentalists is a conclusion in the study that "there is little cause for concern" that the present methods of treating sewage dumped into the California Bight significantly harm the ocean environment.

The study was conducted to challenge the stringent requirements for the quality of treated sewage water imposed by the California State Water Resources Control Board in July, 1972, the report admits. Dr. Hlavka claims the state agency based its requirements on the effects of discharging into fresh water and not the ocean.

He said the studies were initiated as a "different response" to actions taken by the state.

The report claims that nutrients added to the ocean actually improve rather than harm the ocean's marine life cycle by adding nutrients on which the simple marine organisms feed. They in turn become the food for high forms of marine animals.

The report alleges that except for the elimination of (oils, waxes, the elimination of floatables (oils, waxes, tars, fats, greases, fragments of wood, plastics, and other debris) there is no reason for making any major changes in present sewage treatment. It says however that "improved control of the discharge of highly toxic metals would be prudent."

The debate that is certain to take place between the environmentalists and various agencies concerned with sewage treatment is not likely to be purely academic. It has been estimated that if sewer agencies are forced to meet the stringent requirements of the Environmental Protection Agency it will cost taxpayers in excess of $600 million within the next 10 years.

Long Beach City Councilman Bert Bond, who serves as president of the project commission, claims it will cost Long Beach taxpayers about $8 million if the city must meet the EPA standards.

About highly toxic materials being dumped into sewer lines and ultimately into the ocean, Bond said apprximately 72,000 questionaires had been sent out to firms so dumpig industrial waste, asking what chemicals are being dumped.

"We intend to get tough with chromium-plating companies, photo processors, medicine-making companies and anyone else dumping toxic materials into our sewer systems. If necessary we will cut them off, even their drinking fountains just like we did with the firm in Torrance that was dumping DDT into the sewer system," Bond said.

FOR THOSE WHO PREFER THE SEA, A FLYING BRIDGE AND SALT SPRAY

Scouts, seafarers and landlubbers, have full day

Some scouts prefer the sea.

Others are landlubbers.

But whatever their preference, there was plenty of action for all in Long Beach Saturday as a flotilla of 13 Sea Explorer craft sailed from the marina while 1,350 Boy Scouts pitched their tents in El Dorado Park.

Competition keynoted the Explorers' cruise as the 225-man, 35-woman contingent was piped aboard for the Annual Squadron Review, each of the 13 crews competing for two trophies.

Under the close scrutiny of visiting dignitaries from the U.S. Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard and Power Squadron — led by Rear Adm. V.G. Lambert, commander of the Los Angeles-Long Beach Naval Station, who served as reviewing officer — the young sailors "heaved to" in their bids for perfection in the seamanship and best-drilled categories.

The trophies will be awarded May 4.

But there will be no trophies for the landlocked scouts, whose annual "camporee" was a series of public scouting demonstrations.

Awards are a little matter, though, said participants of both events.

"You get out of scouting what you put into it," smiled one of the sailors, "and that's all the satisfaction I need."

Across the city, a land-based scout was silent, busily munching on his "trophy" — a tin-plate meal, fresh off a makeshift stove.

Lakewood trys to stretch funds cash

By LARRY LYNCH
Staff Writer

Lakewood officials are again trying to stretch the city budget to encompass growing ambitions.

Already on the drawing boards: A new 65-acre park. A major street and shopping center beautification effort. And the still-pending modification of city hall.

Now the City Council is beginning to talk seriously about another costly new program: some kind of improved bus service for residents.

This year, as budget time approaches, the city is also considering a new way to raise money: a business license requirement that might bring in $110,000 a year.

Talk of a public transportation system in Lakewood is at the insistence of Councilwoman Sheila Pokras.

The city is served on major north-south streets by Long Beach Public Transportation Co. buses. Southern California Rapid Transit District buses also pass through along Pioneer and Lakewood Boulevards.

COUNCILWOMAN POKRAS frequently points out that nearby La Mirada and La Habra are experimenting with taxi-like dial-a-bus programs. The Lakewood staff in investigating alternatives has tentatively concluded that the addition of east-west bus service, perhaps with the help of Long Beach Transportation, is more practical. No one yet has put a cost figure to any of these proposals for Lakewood. (La Mirada has budgeted more than $100,000 for the first year of its bus operation. A Lakewood staffer wished that city "Good luck to get by on that.") A likely first step in Lakewood will be the Long Beach company some $15,000 a year to offer the suburban city's senior citizens a reduced, 10-cent fare.

The business license is suggested in a staff-prepared document leading to a five-year capital improvement program for the city. The staff's capital improvement proposals are now under study by city commissions, and are expected to be taken up by the council beginning with a study session May 15.

Revenue and expenditure projections for the coming fiscal year will take on a firmer tone when the staff presents a detailed operating budget to the council early in June, for the council to rework prior to the July 1 beginning of the new fiscal year.

IMPROVED bus service and a business license are the newest ideas among a variety of alternatives the council may be discussing during June budget sessions.

Also expected to engender considerable debate is a determination of which outside organizations, like the Chamber of Commerce and the Lakewood Aquatic Club, the city should underwrite with special funding.

Mayor Mark Hannaford has said the city's financial shape is as good as ever, despite curtailment of federal aid and a new state prohibition against any increase in local property taxes. At the same time, there are many places the city would like to spend large sums.

The council voted this week to spend $158,000 for 12 acres that will be part of a 65-acre park along the San Gabriel River flood control channel. A general fund allocation of $300,000 is being considered for improvements on the park site during the coming fiscal year, an addition to the staff's original projection of $492,500 for all city capital improvement programs during the year.

Beautification of the shopping center area and image corridor streets will use up $32,000 in general funds during the year, if the council adopts the staff's original proposal.

OTHER PARK improvements—$82,000 for lighting an athletic field at Boyar Park, 6701 E. Del Amo Blvd., and $170,000 for replacing the swimming pool at Mayfair Park—are being discussed as major remaining general fund items.

Also being considered is $60,000 for new carpet and drapes at city hall.

Black judges predominate in Compton court

By MOLLY BURRELL
Staff Writer

Black is not only beautiful, it is eminently judicial in Compton.

This week the black-white ratio in Municipal Court officially jumped from 2-3 to 4-1.

Judges Homer Garrott, 58, Palos Verdes, and Everett E. Ricks, Jr., 38, Los Angeles, donned robes they have been wearing since their appointments in March of this year and December of last, respectively.

And the two who marked the official jump, viewing the scene from different generations and backgrounds, agreed on a basic relevance:

Both think black people are getting a fair shake in court.

But while one looks back on a past colored by intense prejudice, the other is seemingly untouched personally by racial discrimination.

Judge Garrott, the first black man on the Highway Patrol, felt the color ban from the day he applied for the CHP job in 1942 through the next nine, grinding, hurtful years. Nine in which his only communication with fellow motorcycle riders working out of the East Los Angeles station was the silent treatment. There was never an answer to his own "Good Morning," and the man assigned to train him got ostracized so completely he lost heart and quit, the judge recalls.

When people ask him now how he survived, he replies:

"I really don't know. I just did it. I had a wife and daughter to support, jobs were hard to find, and besides, I just hate to let anybody get the jump on me."

It wasn't until he transferred to El Monte in 1951 that he encountered a new atmosphere. There, the captain called him in on his second day on the job and told him: "As far as I'm concerned there's no such thing as a black patrolman — or a white one. There are CHP officers, period. You're here to do a job and you'll be assigned to work with partners and you'll both do the work as it comes."

And his fellow officers called him by his first name and he knew he belonged.

But, although he scored high on promotion tests, he knew he wasn't going to get promoted. So he decided to go to law school, worked his way through Southwestern, got a degree, and passed the bar in 1960. He stayed on with the CHP until he retired April 30, 1964, then went to work the next day as a deputy public defender. Six years later he was appointed a juvenile court referee, then was named in 1968 as municipal court commissioner. Last month Gov. Reagan appointed him to the municipal court.

For Ricks, it was a different scene. He arrived in Long Beach in 1952, graduated from Long Beach State College in 1959, from UCLA Law School in 1962. That year, he and a fellow black attorney, Huey Shepard, opened a law office in Long Beach and remained partners until Shepard was appointed a referee and went to Los Angeles.

Ricks, rotund, serene, and with a penchant for brevity and conciseness, not only had full calendars of civil, criminal, and trial work, he took cases to the State and U.S. Supreme Courts, and conducted courts-martial in Long Beach and San Diego.

He served on the boards of the Downtown YMCA, Red Cross, NAACP, Selective Service, and the New Hope Baptist Church.

He collected resolutions of commendation for community service from Long Beach, Los Angeles County, the Assembly Rules Committee, the State Senate. He was named an honorary citizen of Compton, and appointed to the District Attorney's Advisory Commission and the County Delinquency and Crime Prevention Commission.

And in all his 38 years, he says, he's not had an uphill battle because he's black.

"I had no problems in school, I played a little football, and I've always been able to laugh — or at least smile . . . Nor have I had any trouble while in practice. About 80 per cent of my clients were Caucasian...

"Actually, and I know it sounds simple, but I've always just treated everybody like I'd like to have them treat me," he summarizes.

Why do both men think that black people are getting their fair day in court?

Both base the judgment on their own judicial experiences and both cite conclusions in the recent Rand report on the county's courts.

Judge Garrott adds: "Publicity has helped it happen. Public pressure is a lever and the criminal justice system is sensitive to it."

Ricks, who worked as a pro-tem judge in Long Beach, adds: "I have the feeling that black people relate better to a black judge, that maybe they listen more."

Judge Garrott agrees to an extent but says: "I think juveniles are more inclined to listen than adults. It was in juvenile work that I felt I was really effective in efforts to explain and counsel."

Both say they are delighted with their Compton assignments.

Ringo pops up again

Next Thursday at 9 a.m. one more effort in an 11-year drive to establish Ringo in Long Beach will be made in a hearing before the City Planning Commission.

A variation of bingo, Ringo has many times in the last 11 years been labeled a gambling game by the chief of police, the city prosecutor and the city attorney.

Ringo already has something of a toehold in the city in that a court has ordered the granting of a business license.

THAT SITUATION resulted from a city council action taken on Oct. 28, 1969. At that time, Vice Mayor Bert Bond and Councilman Wayne Sharp took the lead in granting a business license to Ringo applicant C. Ray Shira, 122 Junipero Ave. — a man who has twice pleaded guilty and been fined for operating a lottery.

Two other council members, Russell Rubley and E. F. Cruchley, also voted to approve Shira's application. Three voted no, and two were absent.

At that hearing, the police, prosecutor and city attorney all advised the council that in their opinion Ringo was only bingo disguised. They said it should be considered an illegal gambling game.

The following week the council, with all members present, heeded the advice of the legal experts and reversed itself.

Later, the courts held that the city council could not withdraw the business license. The court, however, carefully pointed out that it was not ruling on whether Ringo was a gambling game but was only ruling on the method used to reverse the council action.

THE ISSUE before the planning commission this time is not whether a business license should be granted, but whether a special use permit should be issued to allow Ringo in a building at 2680 E. Pacific Coast Highway.

The question is whether Ringo — labeled by Shira an amusement game — should be allowed by exception in a C-3 commercial zone instead of the amusement zone in the Pike area.

To grant that exception, the commission would have to find — among a number of things — that the exception is consistent with public health, welfare, safety and morals.

Whatever decision the commission makes Thursday at its hearing in the city council chambers will probably be appealed to the council itself.

IT IS IMPORTANT for responsible individuals and groups in the community to make their views known both to the planning commission and to the council.

The broad issue before the community, the commission and the council is whether any governmental action should be taken that would further the institution of gambling in Long Beach.

The fact that we already have some highly questionable games in existence in the Pike area — an argument advanced by Bond and Sharp in 1969 — is not in our view a valid reason for helping to establish even more questionable operations.

Historically, gambling interests have been among the biggest corrupters of government. We have had good, clean government in Long Beach in recent years. We should do all possible to keep it that way.

Omit the explanation

Students of Richard Nixon's first six crises will recall how Mr. Nixon, who was then vice president, handled the question of a proposed invasion of Cuba when it arose during his television debates with John Kennedy.

Being a firm believer in the invasion, but not wishing to give Cuba any reason to think an invasion was planned, Mr. Nixon denounced the idea as ridiculous. He went on to build a strong case against the plan he secretly favored.

According to some current Washington reports, Mr. Nixon had something similar in mind when he telephoned presidential counsel John Dean III March 26 to announce that he had full confidence in him.

Mr. Nixon did that, unidentified sources have told newsmen, because he had learned that Dean had lied to him from the start about Watergate. By allowing an announcement that he had expressed his confidence in Dean, the President was allegedly sending a sort of code message. The message: He expected Dean to tell all to the Watergate grand jury, as Dean had promised the President he would.

The sources say the President plans to explain that phone call publicly in this fashion at some appropriate time.

We would like to think that the sources made up this silly plan by themselves.

As vice president, Richard Nixon could well justify dissembling when a Cuban invasion was discussed. Fidel Castro was listening along with the American people. But dissembling on a matter of primary interest to the American people cannot be justified, and we should hate to see the President attempt to do it.

What others say

Kissinger's forthright message

(From the Christian Science Monitor)

The first reaction of the overseas friends and allies is now coming in. It is not entirely favorable — but for an obvious reason. Henry Kissinger's speech on the "Year of Europe" is not only a statement of a high, worthy — and vital — task. It is also a negotiating position. The others, being skilled in diplomacy, will fasten upon that aspect of the matter. Mr. Kissinger clearly says what the United States expects from Europe in the crucial negotiations that lie ahead in trade and monetary matters, and also on European security and defense.

The new Atlantic charter which President Nixon and Mr. Kissinger envisage would set forth principles and guiding lines to govern relations between the United States and its allies in the years o to come. Mr. Nixon has already talked over his ideas for the charter with Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain and Premier Giulio Andreotti of Italy. He will discuss them also with Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany when he visits Washington next week, and with President Pompidou of France at a time and site still to be set.

Naturally the Europeans are gratified that the White House is now following through with its promise to make this the "Year of Europe." Mr. Kissinger's reasurance that there will be no unilateral withdrawal of American troops from Europe is welcome. But there is also some skepticism about the desirability of a new declaration of principles, coupled with a suspicion that the proposed charter would be more useful to Mr. Nixon for prestige purposes than of real value for Europe.

However, if the charter can revitalize a sense of unity and purpose among the Western allies, as Mr. Nixon and Mr. Kissinger intend it should, it will surely be worthwhile. The coming negotiations between Washington and the European Community can only succeed if there is such a sense of purpose.

Hart plans to split big auto makers

WASHINGTON — The Senate Antitrust Subcommittee is studying secret, detailed plans for the biggest trust busting since Standard Oil was broken into 34 different companies 60 years ago. Locked in the files of chairman Phil Hart, D-Mich., is a blueprint for splitting Detroit's giant auto companies into numerous pieces.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

by

Jack Anderson

Hart has also retained consultants to prepare similar plans, in the strictest of secrecy, for breaking up other great concentrations of industrial power such as steel, chemicals, energy, drugs, computers and communications. He expects to begin exhaustive hearings in June.

Hart's purpose is to restore competition to the free enterprise system. More diversified ownership, he believes, would give consumers better products and lower prices. He is also convinced that, as in the Standard Oil break-up, the ordinary shareholders wouldn't suffer.

His studies show diversification would also give workers a better chance to move into the management of their companies. This could reduce the worker-management friction that hampers U.S. productivity.

IT IS A measure of Hart's political courage that the senator from the auto state may make the auto companies the target of his first hearings. Under the secret antitrust plans, General Motors wouldn't be divided merely into Chevrolet, Pontiac, Buick and Cadillac but would also be compelled to divest its lucrative auto-finance division, AC sparkplugs and other moneymaking subsidiaries.

Ford, by the same token, would lose Philco, and Chrysler would give up its air-conditioning division.

The same kind of drastic spin-offs would be sought for such conglomerate giants as ATT, ITT, IBM, U.S. Steel and the big oil companies, with their huge coal and natural gas holdings.

The government moved in the early 1900s to break up not only Standard Oil but U.S.Steel. The splintering of Standard Oil had a healthy effect on the oil industry and the stockholders wound up with a more profitable and balanced portfolio of oil and gas stocks

In contrast, a plan to split U.S. Steel into 11 fully integrated steel companies failed. Commented the eminent economist, Dr. Willard F. Mueller, on the aftermath: "The leading steel companies clearly had a lackluster record as inventive and innovative forces in this most basic industry. The accomplishments of U.S. Steel have been especially disappointing."

Hart contends that a giant corporation, by its sheer, hulking size, tends to inhibit competition. A woman seeking to begin a small computing service, for example, couldn't get financing. Bank after bank turned her down not because of her own shortcomings but because of her poor prospects for survival. "How," they asked, "can you expect to make it when IBM dominates that industry?"

It is also a fact of economic life that a few large firms can rig prices with virtual legal immunity. The signals are subtle, the collusion never overt. Yet this kind of market power is practiced by autos, steel, rubber and virtually every other industry dominated by a few huge corporations.

This makes economic monarchs of the great industrial tycoons, with the kind of power over production and prices that the Constitution forbids over our political institutions. With around 400,000 manufacturing firms in the country today, a mere 200 control two-thirds of the total assets.

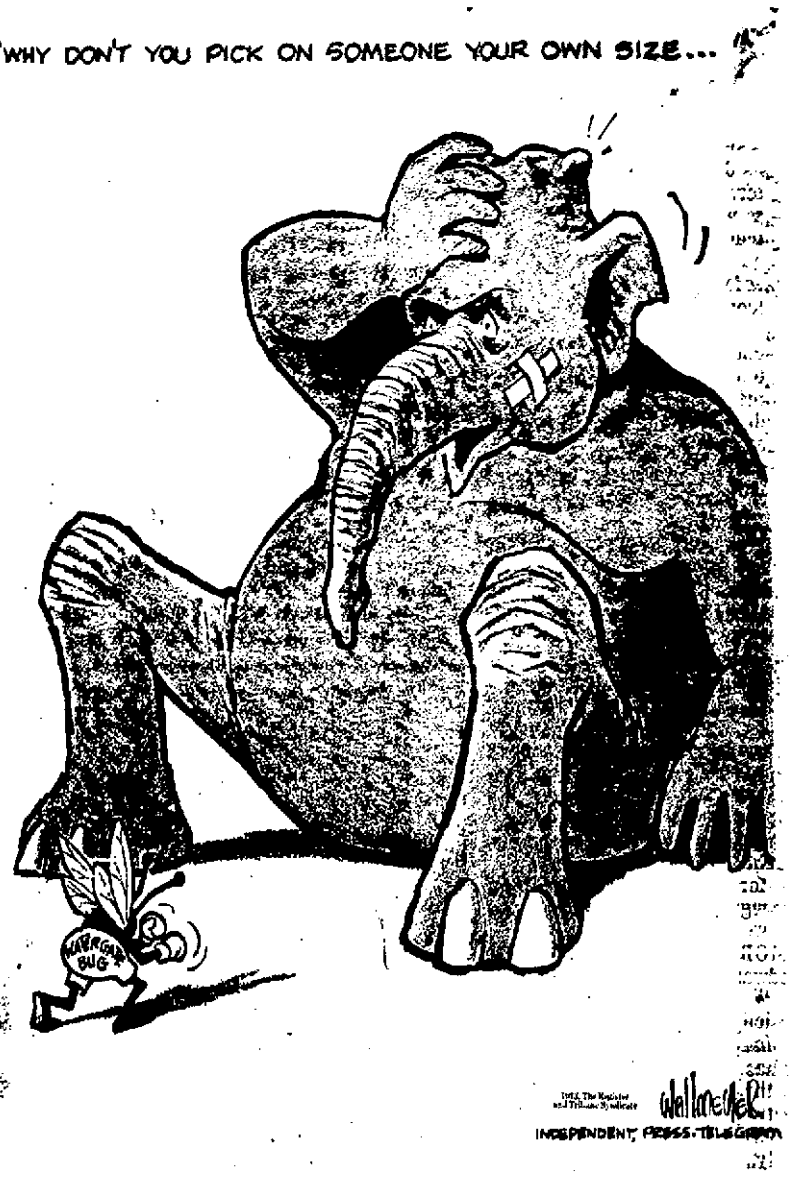

Nor can the government easily restrain the economic Frankensteins. An antitrust case against IBM has been dragging on for four years and the best estimate is that it will take another four years to complete the case and appeals. As part of the discovery process, IBM produced a staggering 400 million documents. The index alone cost $3 million to compile, yet the Antitrust Division's total budget is only $12.5 million. Insiders complain this corporate Goliath is simply too big for the antitrust Davids; therefore, the IBM case probably will never be prosecuted effectively.

Not only is small business the backbone of the capitalist system, but diversification makes our industrial base less vulnerable to sabotage and attack. Military planners concluded after World War II that defense production should be spread geographically around the United States so no one industry could be bombed out of commission and that too much production shouldn't be concentrated in big companies.

Under the late Gen. George Marshall, planning contracts were awarded to many small firms and production was located all over the United States. He split up defense contracts among several suppliers and kept vital plants operating at low levels. For Marshall understood the peril of keeping too many military eggs in too few baskets.

But Marshall had scarcely left the Pentagon before his successors began pulling down the structure. They contended that money would be saved by concentrating defense work in larger, more efficient factories. This idea was encouraged, of course, by the industrial giants whose defense orders and dividends began soaring.

The result was the military-industrial complex which so worried the late President Eisenhower.

Letters to the editor

When simplicity ends

EDITOR:

"It's a simple matter of supply and demand." That's what I read in a recent issue of your paper, when a bunch of "housewives" all over the nation wanted to know why meat prices were soaring to ridiculous heights.

Well, the least informed of our housewives would know that she couldn't do anything about the "supply." So, in a magnanimous gesture of thoughtful involvement, a lot of housewives decided to reduce the "demand." Obviously, they thought they were making a "simple" effort to correct this "simple" problem.

Then, before they could even get their helpful efforts in gear, your paper quoted big-name individuals, including our President (whom my own political party nominated), telling us how "naive" and "unwise" our dear housewives were to involve themselves other than in tearful frustration.

I believe Shakespeare put it in these words: "Methinks thou protesteth too much." How would you put it?

Long Beach GEORGE S. LANNAN

An honest report

EDITOR:

Mark Clutter's column, "The right to peace in schools" (April 9), stated that the teachers who walked out of Whaley Junior High School in Compton in protest are not strikers. All they want are conditions of peace and good order in which they can teach students who want to learn.

This article seemed to best describe the Compton school's problems. I was truly glad to finally read an article about a predominantly black school, and have it explain that all the crime, etc., isn't the majority of the school's fault.

I would like to thank Mr. Clutter for being so honest.

A utility bill postmarked Jan. 15 was not received until March 5. In the meantime, the final bill was received Feb. 12 saying our power would be discontinued unless paid by Feb. 14. These bills were for a church only a few blocks from Edison and the post office.

It took one week for my bank statement come seven blocks. I still have not received my gas bill for July 1972.

A friend had to wait three weeks for a check from the Elks Lodge. It had gone all the way to New York and back.

If only we could get the Pony Express back!

Fair and accurate

EDITOR:

Recently a series of three articles appeared in the Life/Style section of the I, P-T concerning the Mexican-American Chicano community in Long Beach.

These articles were excellent and presented the complex and sensitive issues fairly and with the urgency necessary if Long Beach is to correct the inequities that have existed within that community for far too long.

You are to be congratulated for having Ms. Pat Quinn on your staff. She has done her homework well; she has contacted a broad representation of that community; she has quoted fairly; her writing indicates a rare depth of understanding of the issues and the feelings of the Chicano community.

Thank you for this coverage. It is only as the broader community understands these issues and problems that any changes can be made.

Statement of beliefs

EDITOR:

Individual members of the Session of the Christ Presbyterian Church of Lakewood now that all prisoners of the Vietnam war have been returned and their well being is no longer in jeopardy, do hereby take the following stand. 1. We feel that physical torture of prisoners of war in even the slightest degree is barbarous, inhumane and shows utter disregard for the dignity of human life. 2. We are proud of those prisoners who so gallantly and to the best of their ability withstood the worst their inhumane, godless and animalistic captors could produce. 3. To signed was a lie!" 4. To those exceedingly few who collaborated with the enemy, we signed was a lit!" 4. To those exceedingly few who collaborated with the enemy, we say, "you are more to be pitied than censured, for your captors will never really trust you." 5. We therefore reaffirm our utter disgust and hatred of the system of communism, wherever it is found that seeks to enslave and destroy. 6. We express no fear of communism whatever, rather we reaffirm our faith, trust and belief in an omnipotent God who was literally able to see the pride of our country through their darkest hour. 7. So help us God, this is where we stand.

Don't blame farmer

EDITOR:

I think farmers should stop being blamed for high food costs. Food prices are the result of inflation, not the cause. Food prices are regulated by supply and demand.

Look at it this way: In the past eight years, retail food prices have increased 33 per cent, but per capita disposable income has climbed 62 per cent.

Farmers are also consumers, and their operating costs have tripled in 10 years.

Farmers are the only ones that buy at retail and sell at wholesale.

I wish our city friends would keep in mind some of the above facts when they blame us for high food costs.

History of famine

EDITOR:

Mr. L. A. Collins' nescient condemnations of Russian socialism never fail to amuse me.

His column of March 29 opens with the statement that the recent crop failure in Russia is a result of the "failure of a socialistic system to produce what is successfully done by a free enterprise system." How then does he explain the chronically severe famines under the Romanovs, whose system of government was anything but socialistic?

Watergate: Police reporting that wrote history

WASHINGTON — Like archeologists digging for the artifacts of a lost civilization, the two young reporters who unearthed the Watergate scandal say they never doubted the existence of what they were looking for.

Nevertheless, Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward of the Washington Post admit that they were surprised by President Nixon's dramatic admission last week that at least some of their disclosures of political skullduggery in his administration probably are true.

Albert Eisele

View From Our National Bureau

"We never doubted that we were on the right track, but what astounded us was that there was such an early vindication of our efforts," the 30-year-old Woodward commented the other day. "We thought maybe we would have to wait for the historians to say we were right."

MORE THAN anyone else, Woodward and his 29-year-old colleague Bernstein are responsible for finally uncovering the political espionage and sabotage scandal that has rocked the Nixon administration and clouded President Nixon's second term in uncertainty.

In the 10 months since they helped report and write the Post's initial Watergate story, Bernstein and Woodward have made their joint byline famous by teaming up to write some 200 stories related to the bizarre and complex case.

Already the recipients of eight major journalism awards for their reporting on the Watergate, Bernstein and Woodward and their paper are almost certain to receive the 1973 Pulitzer Prize for national affairs reporting next month.

USING OLD-FASHIONED police reporting, techniques all but forgotten by most of the huge Washington press corps, the two young newsmen painstakingly pieced together the puzzle that transformed the Watergate story from a police blotter incident into the nation's biggest political scandal since the Teapot Dome affair of the 1920's.

In separate interviews this week, Bernstein and Woodward and the editor they worked with most closely, Barry Sussman, discussed their roles in unraveling the Watergate mystery, which they concede may still be far from solved.

Sussman, who is in charge of the Post's District of Columbia coverage, had no idea that he was about to help the two obscure reporters write American history when he reported for work on the Post's metropolitan desk on the morning of June 17, 1972.

Sussman knew only that he had a potential major story to cover with a short-handed Saturday staff when he learned that five men carrying sophisticated electronic surveillance equipment had been arrested during the night inside Democratic party headquarters in the elegant Watergate complex.

HE QUICKLY ORDERED a half-dozen people to work on the story, including Bernstein and Woodward, two fresh-faced investigative reporters who had shown promise but were virtually unknown outside the Post city room.

Bernstein, who was working that day, was a native Washingtonian who had started his newspaper career as a copyboy with the rival Washington Star. Although only 28 at the time, he had been a reporter for almost 13 years, including six with the Post covering the Virginia State Legislature and working on special projects for the city desk.

Woodward, who had the day off and was sleeping when he got an 8:30 a.m. telephone call from Sussman, was 29 at the time. A Chicago native, he was a Yale graduate and ex-Navy communications officer who had joined the Post only 13 months earlier as a police reporter.

Bernstein and Woodward worked on the first Watergate story that ran in the Post on Sunday, June 18. Two days later, the joint byline that was to become famous appeared for the first time as Bernstein and Woodward reported that one of the men who had been arrested was James McCord Jr., the security coordinator for the Republican National Committee and President Nixon's re-election committee.

AFTER THE FIRST wave of headlines and the accompanying denials by administration spokesmen of any knowledge of or connection with the break-in and attempted bugging, most newspapers temporarily relegated the Watergate story to the back pages. But the Post decided there was much more to the story and assigned Bernstein and Woodward to cover it fulltime.

"The decision was made at the top that there was something there and that we had a major responsibility to find out what it was and Carl and I were given a blank check in terms of how we should do it," Woodward explained.

Although the two reporters had known each other only casually and never worked together on a story, they quickly went to work. They set up files and began knocking on doors, checking hotel and telephone and travel records, and tracked down every lead they could find. Gradually they began putting the bits and pieces of the story together.

"Working together gave us more flexibility and enabled us to follow up leads we couldn't have if we had been working alone," Woodward said. "The paper made the commitment to have other people cover the public events, the press conferences and trials that are public and are going to be covered by everybody else anyway, so we didn't get seduced away from really looking under the rocks.

"WE THINK PAPERS have to make a full-fledged commitment when something important comes along so you don't have to stop investigating to cover the public story. All you're doing then is turning yourself over to the people who want to orchestrate the story."

The first big break in the story came in late July when Bernstein went to Miami and found out that a $25,000 check intended for Nixon's re-election campaign had been deposited in the bank account of Bernard Barker, one of the five men arrested at the Watergate, and that $89,000 in other campaign contributions had been laundered through Mexican banks.

The story, which appeared in the Post on Aug. 1, convinced the two reporters that the Watergate break-in and bugging attempt "was not a bush league effort," according to Woodward. "It showed us that there was big money behind it and it established the first financial connection with the Nixon re-election committee."

THEN, IN THE two months preceding the presidential election, the Bernstein-Woodward team delivered one sensational expose after another. They reported:

— On Sept. 1 that E. Howard Hunt Jr., a former White House consultant, and Gordon Liddy, former finance counsel for the Nixon re-election committee, actually were inside the Watergate on the night of the break-in.

— On Sept. 17 that a secret political espionage fund of between $350,000 and $700,000 was kept in the office safe of Maurice Stans, the Nixon committee's finance director, and was under the control of top aides to John Mitchell, the former attorney general and ex-director of Nixon's campaign.

— On Sept. 29 that Mitchell personally controlled that fund during his last 10 months as attorney general.

— On Oct. 10 that FBI investigators had learned that the Watergate break-in was only part of a massive campaign of political sabotage and espionage and that Donald Segretti, a young California attorney and ex-Treasury Department aide, was a paid recruiter of some 50 Republican political saboteurs.

— On Oct. 15 that Nixon's personal appointments secretary, Dwight Chapin, had hired Segretti and that Nixon's personal attorney, Hervert Kalmbach, also was involved in Segretti's activities.

— On Oct. 25 that Robert Haldeman, Nixon's chief of staff and most powerful aide, was one of five men authorized to approve payments from the secret cash fund.

Bernstein and Woodward consider the Oct. 10 story saying that the Watergate was just part of an overall political espionage and sabotage campaign as crucial because it showed the true dimensions of the scandal and spurred the various trials and investigations that kept the Watergate story on the front pages since the first of the year.

WOODWARD LISTS four major aspects of the Watergate case in 1973, including:

— The January trial of Watergate defendants before U.S. District Judge John Sirica in which seven Watergate defendants pleaded guilty of criminal charges.

— The letter to Sirica from McCord alleging that other persons besides those convicted were involved, that perjury had been committed and that political pressure had been applied to make the defendants plead guilty.

— The Senate confirmation hearings for L. Patrick Gray as director of the FBI at which Gray testified that White House counsel John Dean "probably lied" about his role in the Watergate cover-up.

— The disclosure by the New York Times that the Watergate defendants' defense costs were paid by the Nixon campaign committee.

"These four things in general tended to show that we were right," said Woodward. "There's also a fifth thing — the President saying, 'Yes, I smell it too.' All this told us that what we wrote in 1972 was true, not just 99 per cent true but 100 per cent true."

'Chief. We've just uncovered a new file of Watergate suspects.!'

Both Woodward and Bernstein feel it is ironic that most of what is now known about the Watergate incident was revealed before last year's presidential election. They also are bemused by the fact that some of "our peers in the news media" just didn't believe what they reported last summer and fall.

"SOME OF THE best reporters in Washington told us that we went too far and that the Post bore a lot of vindictiveness toward the administration," says Woodward. "I don't fault them for doing that, but we never doubted what we had.

"The paper never flinched, but it was very hard. In a sense we not only were bearing the responsibility for this paper but for the news media in general. It all seemed to come to focus on this issue."

Bernstein, who keeps on his desk a newspaper ad that says "Locate your offices at the Watergate," added that he and Woodward "just tried to do a credible job as reporters. We were not unaware of the implications of the story — it would be naive to say that. But I think we handled it the same way as any other story with the exception that we took unbelievable precautions to check out our facts." Bernstein believes the major lesson of the Watergate scandal is, as John Mitchell once said of the Nixon administration, "Watch what we do, not what we say."

"THIS WAS THE first real window to be opened on the Nixon administration long enough to get a real look inside and as the window got wider, it started to tell us a lot about the President and the people around him.

"I think it shows that the story of the 1972 election was not out covering Nixon surrogates, which was where the White House wanted reporters to be, but at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue and 1701 Pennsylvania Avenue" (the Nixon re-election committee address).

Bernstein and Woodward, who are writing a book on the Watergate case, agree that the techniques of good police reporting were what broke the Watergate story.

"POLICE REPORTING is sort of considered a low form of journalism," says Woodward, "whereas a high form is listening to what Ron Ziegler says. Maybe somebody's mixed up as to what high and low journalism are."

Despite the tens of thousands of words they have written about the Watergate, Neither Bernstein nor Woodward is preparing to cover a new subject.

"Maybe it's peaked and maybe it hasn't" says Woodward. "I think there are still a lot of unanswered questions and we'll be writing about the Watergate for at least the rest of the year."

Barry Sussman thinks it could go on even longer. "The Teapot Dome scandal lasted 10 years," he points out. "This one could go on for a long time too."

"Tune in to tomorrow evening's news for the next thrilling installment of the Watergate Caper!"

Stock brokers are having bad time

A year or so ago the members of the stock exchanges were having serious trouble in taking care of the large number of stock buyers. There were long delays in some firms delivering stocks and keeping up with the deluge of orders. Some of the firms went out of business with serious losses for some of their customers. Those remaining in business invested large sums of money in — offices — people and — computers to make it possible to keep up with the market.

Today many of these brokerage firms are in trouble because they are not handling as much business as they set up for. Instead of the 18 to 20 million or more shares a day traded they find 12 to 15 million more the rule. It means they are not earning the needed commissions to pay for the expensive offices and computers they invested in.

A CHART IN U.S. News and World Report indicates how the number of stock brokers have changed in the past four years. It shows the number in 1969 as 4793. In 1970 they had increased to 5,500. That number had decreased to 4,563 as of February of 1973. Many branch offices are being closed by those remaining in business. The above are the number of brokers registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Of these brokers who were members of the New York Stock Exchange in the early months of 1972 one in twelve of them were losing money. In January of 1973 one in three reported operating losses. In February nearly three in five were in the red. It is all attributed to the drastic drop in volume at a time the firms were geared up to handle the high volume of recent years.

The reasons given for the drop in volume is the failure of stock prices to make an impressive showing for the past seven years. It has "burst the bubble of easy riches for millions of once-hopeful investors and left them disillusioned." Last year the N.Y. Stock Exchange recently reported the number of share-holding individuals dropped 800,000, the first decline since the records were started in 1952. In the first three months of 1973 trading volume on the big exchange dropped more than 11 per cent from the 1972 level.

An ever-increasing portion of stock transactions is carried on by the huge pension funds and mutual funds. Commissions have been drastically cut on such large dealers. At the same time they have been increased on the small stock buyers and sellers. These higher costs have caused large numbers of these small investors to quit the market.

Wall Street is now talking about reversing the trend by imposing higher fees on the large dealers in stocks that account for 60 to 70 per cent of the volume and reducing the fees for the millions of small investors. But they must have approval of the Security and Exchange Commission.

IT IS APPARENT from this study that the stock brokers are in serious trouble. But the individual investor is well protected when dealing with the well-known firms. If the present corporate earnings keep up with the first three months of 1973 it will mean many new investors will be buying stocks. There should be increases in dividends in the coming months if the business boom continues.

There are now about 33 million individual shareowners compared with 6.5 million 20 years ago. The drop of 800,000 the last year has had a marked effect on the market. If the boom continues throughout the year there should be a resurgence of buyers. If the boom does not continue there will be more individuals pulling out of the market. But it appears certain there will be fewer brokerage offices where they can do their business.

27th Pan American Festival to begin

By HAL LOWE
Staff Writer

Lakewood's 27th Annual Pan American Festival begins Monday at the Lakewood Country Club with the El Camienzo luncheon sponsored by the chamber of commerce.

The luncheon will honor the Latin American Consular Corps and will feature Lakewood's Pan Am queen, Jenny Staudigel. Following the luncheon, Bancroft Junior High students will salute dignitaries on the school's athletic field with a colorful flag exchange ceremony.

Bancroft students each year make contact with students in particular Latin American countries and exchange flags. In addition, Bancroft students participate in year-long programs to increase thier awareness of Latin America.

The Dominican Republic is this year's honored country in Lakewood. The feted country is chosen alphabetically.

Lakewood's Pan American Festival was conceived in 1947 by Dr. Walter Montano, a former Latin American diplomat, and Jess Solter. Both agreed that it might be useful if North Americans and Latin Americans could somehow bridge the distance and language barriers that separate the different nations.

What began as a simple tree-planting ceremony that year to symbolize pan American friendship has grown over the years to a week-long festival of culture, commerce and the arts.

On Wednesday, Lakewood Jaycees hold their Operation Friendship dinner at Rochelle's Restaurant on Lakewood Boulevard. Each year, local Jaycees invite a Latin American Jaycee and his wife to participate in Pan Am Week activities. This year's guests are Pericles and Martha Tavarez, from Santo Domingo. Tavarez is sales manager of an electronic data machine company and vice-president of the Dominican Republic Jaycees.

Thursday through Sunday, the Fiesta de Amistad carnival will be held at Lakewood shopping center, featuring carnival rides and game and food booths. Fiesta hours will be 5-10 p.m. Thursday, 5-11 p.m. Friday, noon to 11 p.m. Saturday, and noon to 10 p.m. Sunday.

The Lakewood Lions Saturday will host the Consular Ball honoring Latin American consuls at Lakewood Country Club.

Final event of the Pan Am Festival will be Sunday's Saludos Amigos parade, featuring more than 3,000 participants in 135 marching units. The 2 p.m. parade begins at Palo Verde Avenue and Del Amo Boulevard, moves west to Clark Avenue, then north to Lakewood shopping center. Plaques and trophies for floats, marching bands and horse units will be presented at the Fiesta exhibit tent following the parade.

Rear Admiral V. G. Lambert of the Los Angeles-Long Beach Naval Station will serve as reviewing officer for the parade's military units. Parade grand marshall will be news entertainer George Putnam. Honoray division marshalls for the parade will include Olympic swimmers Susan Atwood, Ann Simmons and Steve Genter.

The KNBC Sunday Show will broadcast from Lakewood City Hall at 4:30 p.m., focusing on Pan Am Festival activities and officials.

Senior citizens' tower dedicated

Dedication ceremonies for Park Pacific Towers, a 17-story, federally-funded apartment complex for senior citizens in downtown Long Beach were held Saturday.

The impressive, high-rise structure at 714 Pacific Ave. contains 183 living units and three spacious lounges for reading and recreation.

Residents must be at least 62 years old to qualify for occupancy in the building. Single apartments rent for about $99 per month, and a one-bedroom apartment rents for $118. All utilities are paid.

A project spokesman said Saturday that all single units are already rented, although a few one-bedroom apartments are still available. Persons may still have their names placed on a waiting list, he added.

The $4-million project was developed through the Department of Housing and Urban Development and sponsored by the South Hills Baptist Church and South Hills Academy, according to Dr. Lee Thomas, church pastor who presided over ribbon cutting.

Councilman Don Phillips, representing the City of Long Beach, told the crowd of nearly 200 elderly citizens on hand, "This building represents one of the outstanding events in the history of the city.

"It was aimed at upgrading the downtown area and improving living conditions for senior citizens. I think we can all be proud," he said.

NEW PRESIDENT
Henry Taboada has been elected president of the Long Beach council of the League of Latin-American Citizens. Mary Hernandez is vice president of the organization, whose purpose is the promotion of Latin-American cultural, social and economic values.

Registration set for kindergarten

Registration for youngsters eligible for kindergarten attendance in September will be held at all neighborhood elementary schools in Bellflower Unified School District Thursday and Friday.

Parents and children should come to the principal's office between 9 and 11 a.m. on either day, according to Dr. Margaret Louise Orear, assistant superintendent.

To be eligible for kindergarten, a child must be 5 years old on or before December 2, 1973. Verification is required at the time of registration, by birth certificate, baptismal certificate, or parent affidavit if no birth certificate exists.

Film on Indians to be shown

Indian artifacts uncovered during the 1930 restoration of Rancho Los Cerritos will be on display May 4, along with a special showing of a film "Indians of California".

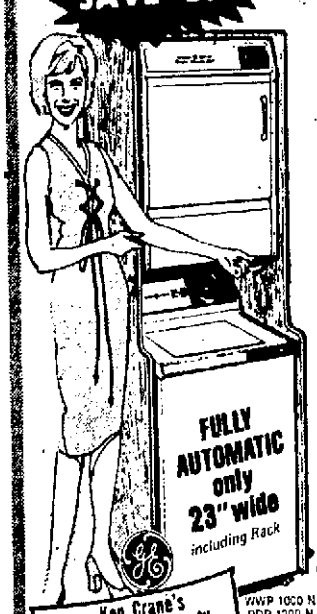

The film, which will be shown at 3:30 p.m. at the Rancho, 4600 Virginia Road, depicts Indian village life before the Spanish exploration.

Oral surgeon warns

Bad teeth, cancer link

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

Impacted wisdom teeth can even lead to oral cancer, a noted oral surgeon said today at the 76th annual scientific session of the Southern California Dental Association.

Dr. Robert B. Shira, dean of Tufts University school of dental medicine, speaking in Anaheim Convention Center, said there have been several reports in recent years of cancer originating in the areas of impacted teeth.

Text of his remarks was released Saturday.

"Oral cancer in any of its forms is a terrible disease," said Dr. Shira, a former assistant surgeon general of the U. S. Army and onetime chief of the Army's Dental Corps. "Anything that can be done to eliminate its occurrence is justified.

"The removal of hopelessly impacted third molars — the wisdom teeth — is another important step in this direction."

For many years, he said, dentists have assumed a wait-and-see attitude concerning impacted wisdom teeth which showed no evidence of disease.

This is no longer considered good advice, he said.

"Current thinking advocates taking X rays of impacted teeth at the time they should erupt," he said. "And if they are found to be hopelessly impacted and cannot possibly erupt and become serviceable, they should be removed at this time."

The best time for such oral surgery is between the ages of 18 and 25 years, he added.

Tissues regenerate faster at this age, and there are fewer complications, he explained.

Other problems may be associated with prolonged retention of impacted teeth, Dr. Shira said.

"In some cases cysts develop, and some become large, destructive lesions that displace the impacted teeth into remote areas of the upper and lower jaw bones. As a consequence, extensive surgical procedures sometimes become necessary to correct the problem."

Development of tumors also is possible, he continued. Although these growths are considered benign by most authorities, these tumors are persistent and extremely difficult to treat. Occasionally it is necessary to remove the affected portion of bone to eliminate the tumor, he said.

"With this overwhelming evidence linking serious complications to impactions, it is logical to conclude that removal of impacted teeth would eliminate a certain number of present and potential hazards.

"The best way to treat a condition is not to have it at all."

Big plans unveiled for sea institute

Plans for a Marine Studies Institute building of 46,000 square feet on three levels nestling against a bluff at Dana Point Harbor are ready, and will be submitted soon to the Orange County Board of Supervisors.

The institute will become an acknowledged leader in the field of oceanography, backers claim adding that it will equal or surpass the famous Woods Hole institute in Massachussetts and the Scripps Institute of Oceanography at La Jolla.

Construction costs are estimated at $2.3 million, according to Dr. Donald MacLean, assistant superintendent of Orange County schools, and coordinator of marine sciences.

He said that a unique feature of the Dana Point Harbor ocean studies setup will be that it will be a regular "port of call" for up to 40,000 Orange County school children each year. They will listen to lectures, see the aquarium and inspect marine creatures.

On the upper levels, research and oceanography studies will be under way by high school, college and university students. A regular staff of researchers also will be given facilities in the new building.

In addition to the customary facilities, the building will contain holding tanks for marine specimens; these will be charged with constantly-flowing ocean water.

Facilities for divers, including gear storage, are included in the plans.

The building's exterior will be of rough redwood, with a steel roof, treated so that it will weather and turn a reddish-brown color as the salt air, wind and sun set up chemical reactions.

The institute has 3 ½ acres at the new harbor, near the spot where the main breakwater anchors onto historic Dana Point bluff.

Dr. MacLean said the plans which have been submitted are only preliminary, and upon approval they will be finished within about six months.

Financing of the construction, now targeted for 1975, would be largely by grants from the federal and state governments and from foundations, it was explained.

Chicano studies held a guide to heritage

"A Chicano study course is important for one thing only — to give our people a greater awareness of their cultural heritage; it is not a steady diet for the person who wants to learn something he can use to help his community," a former Spanish instructor told a group of Mexican-Americans in Wilmington Saturday.

As the "wrap-up" speaker for the first annual Community Awareness Conference, Ricardo Estes, representing the United Teachers of Los Angeles, urged approximately 75 persons at Los Angeles Harbor College to channel community action into "making life better for Chicanos."

Estes, whose comments concluded a daylong seminar sponsored by the Association of Mexican-American Educators, (AMAE) asked the group, "If we don't support our own causes, who will?"

Referring specifically to Chicano requests for more bilingual-bicultural teachers in the public schools, Estes warned, "Don't assume that a person is a good teacher just because he's bilingual and bicultural.

"It's nice for our young people to involve themselves in Chicano studies and yell 'Viva La Raza,' " he added, "but that doesn't make them better teachers when they go out to teach our children things like math and science."

Estes' speech, which summarized seven 2-hour seminar sessions — held simultaneously during the morning — was followed by a unanimously accepted motion that the conference appoint a task force to study Chicano educational problems in harbor area schools.

The conference, which was coordinated by Reynaldo Garay, president of the area AMAE chapter, was part of a program to "show that there is concern from the 'grass roots' of the community all the way up to the top of the educational system.

Summary of rewards offered by Secret Witness

As part of the Independent, Press-Telegram's Secret Witness program, summaries of cases in which rewards of specified amounts are offered are printed in the Independent and Press-Telegram each Thursday and Sunday. Rewards paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects in any other criminal cases, not covered in these summaries, will vary in amount depending on the seriousness of the offense. The summaries follow:

— Rewards totaling $34,500 will be paid to information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who "executed" four employes of the Rolling Hills Theater, 2535 Pacific Coast Highway, Torrance.

The victims, Lynda Freeman, 32; Clyde Felts, 55; Guy D. Brown, 32; and George Cernik, 18, were discovered early Monday, Feb. 12, in a blood-spattered upstairs office near an open safe, from which $2,000 had been taken.

Their throats had been slashed and their hands tied behind their backs.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Julia Holan, 88, who died April 14 of injuries received when she was knocked down by a purse thief on Eighth Street near Pacific Avenue on the previous day. The killer thief was described as white, about 18 years old, about 5 feet, 8 inches tall, medium build, and with neatly trimmed brown hair.

– A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Deborah Ann Baker, 18, whose strangled body was found March 21 in a vacant field adjacent to Los Coyotes Country Club, near Beach Boulevard and Rosecrans Avenue in Fullerton. Fullerton police theorize the young woman's body was dumped in the field after she was killed in the early morning hours on that date in another location. Miss Baker was last seen alive by a girl friend with whom she was temporarily sharing an apartment at 1313 E. Wilshire Ave., Fullerton, at 1 p.m. on the previous day. At that time, she left the apartment and told her friend she was going on a job interview.

— A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Fletcher Jordan Herndon, 58, of San Pedro, on the night of last Feb. 6. Herndon and his wife had just returned home from dining out and Mrs. Herndon was parking the car when an unknown assassin hiding outside the house at 985 Channel St. felled Herndon with two shotgun blasts in the chest as he was walked up to the front door.

— Rewards totaling $2,025 will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killers of pharmacist Patrick Horgan, 59, at the Horgan Pharmacy, 1403 Cherry Ave., on March 9. Horgan was shot in the back as he waited on three men who fled without taking any money after the shot was fired. The killers, black men in their early or middle 30s, drove away in a 1963 or 1964 maroon Chevrolet convertible.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Victor Joseph Zalneraitis, 26, of Long Beach, whose body was found lying in the oil fields southwest of Cherry Avenue and Burnett Street in Signal Hill last March 20. Zalneraitis had been slain by multiple stab wounds in the chest and back, apparently inflicted with a pocket knife. The victim was last seen alive in a pool parlor at 2499 E. Pacific Coast Highway in Signal Hill late on the night before the body was discovered by an industrial worker.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Mrs. Helga Dorothea Brown, 64, whose nude body was found in Scherer Park last Sept. 23. Mrs. Brown, last seen alive by her husband and friends on the morning of Sept. 17, had been beaten and strangled by someone who hid the body on an island in the duck pond part of the park. Her empty purse and part of her clothing were found near a picnic table in the park area.

— A $500 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Freddie Tidmore, alias Fred Douglas Mabson, 20, sought in connection with the holdup shooting of John Bell, 33-year-old clerk at the Wooden Shoe Liquor store, 2053 Orange Ave., last Dec. 20. Bell, critically wounded, identified Tidmore as his assailant. Tidmore, who is black, 5 feet 10 inches tall, 155 pounds, is believed to be still in the Long Beach-Compton area.

— Secret Witness will pay $2,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of 11-year-old Teri Lynn Hollis, of 2036 Dalemeade St., Torrance, who was kidnapped from the front yard of her home last Thanksgiving Day. Her body, clad only in a white T-shirt, was found on the rocky and desolate stretch of beach 11 miles south of Oxnard on the following day. The little blonde girl had been raped and strangled. Teri was last seen alive by an informant who told Torrance police she was riding near her home on a bicycle pedaled by a young man about 21 years old, dark-haired, and about 5 feet, 6 inches tall.

— A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Kathleen Ann LaChance, aspiring Long Beach actress who lived at 4524 Banner Drive. Miss La Chance was last seen alive at 5 p.m. last Nov. 15 as she was leaving an actors' Workshop play rehearsal at the apartment of a friend in Los Angeles. Her nude body, arms bound by leather straps and mouth stuffed with sand, was found late that night near the pier on the Santa Monica beachfront. She had been raped and stabbed repeatedly.

— Rewards totaling $4,000 will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer of Mrs. Velma Harris, 44, shot to death in her Long Beach home at 5020 Centralia St. on Aug. 17,1971. Her body was discovered by her husband, Ralph K. Harris, 47, when he came home from work at 11 a.m. Mr. Harris has posted a $2,000 reward in the case, and this amount is being matched by the Secret Witness service.

— a $1,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrests and convictions of the members of a Long Beach area auto theft gang who steal cars from throughout the Southland and then, at one of a number of auto repair shops, strip them for parts.

— A $2,000 reward is in force for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer of Mrs. Marguerite June Makeig, 50, shot in the head and killed when she returned to her home, 10608 Felson St., Bellflower, on the afternoon of Aug. 11, 1971. Mrs. Makeig had been shopping. When she walked into her living room, someone armed with a small-caliber handgun fired once, the bullet striking her in the head.

— A $2,000 reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the man who killed Elliot C. Lawson, 38, during a holdup at the Atlantic Inn, 1854 Atlantic Ave., at about 1:10 a.m. on July 16, 1971. The killer is described as a Negro, about 25 years old, 5-feet-7, 130 pounds with a two inch Afro hairdo. The man has a slender face, large eyes, a slender nose, and smooth, medium complexion. He has a deep voice, is straight in posture and is well-groomed.

— A $2,500 reward is in force for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer of Independent, Press-Telegram pressman Frank M. Schiavone, 41, and his wife, Shirley, 44, who were shot from ambush May 9, 1972, upon returning to their home in Westminster after an evening out. Westminster police are seeking to question a man believed to have been the last person to have seen the Schiavones alive. The man was with them in Woody's Bar, Springdale Avenue and Garden Grove Boulevard, Westminster, shortly before they were murdered. He is described as a white man in his mid-20s to early 30s, from 5-feet-10 to 6-feet-1 in height, with wavy, dark brown hair, a medium-dark, olive complexion and a pock-mark-

How to become a Secret Witness

Secret Witness seeks information from the public leading to the capture of fugitives and the arrest and conviction of other criminals. For this purpose, a guaranteed fund of $100,000 has been established by the Independent, Press-Telegram to be used for rewards of varying amounts.

Identies of informants will be kept secret.

You will be paid a reward if the information you give Secret Witness results in the arrest and conviction of a criminal, or the capture of a fugitive in cases publicized in this column. Rewards also will be paid for information resulting in arrests and convictions in cases not published by Secret Witness.

To contact Secret Witness, telephone 436-2526 from 8 a.m. to midnight weekdays, or from 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays. Do NOT give us your name. Or write to Secret Witness at the following address: Secret Witness, P.O. Box 67, Long Beach, Calif. 90801.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killers of Long Beach auto wholesaler Robert Wilson Cogley, 44, shot to death in the parking lot of the Highway Center Liquor Store, Pacific Coast Highway and California Avenue, at 1:40 a.m. last Aug. 12. Cogley's killers are described as Negroes between 16 and 19 years old and from 5-feet-7 to 5-feet-10 in height.

— A $500 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Homer B. Miller, 25, also known as "Stony," in connection with the April 1971 torture murder of 22-year-old police informer and small-time dope peddler John C. "Tattoo Johnny" Reed. The victim was found dead in the gutter at Ninth Street and Harbor Avenue. His ears had been cut off and he was slashed and beaten. Officers say Reed was killed in an apartment at 324 Magnolia Ave., where there were six other men present when he was last seen alive and tied to a chair the night before his body was found. Miller is described by detectives as a "hippie-type" who has the name "Stony" tattooed below a swastika on his left arm. A line of numbers appears to have been tatooed on his left forearm.

MOTHER OF BLUDGEONED TOT, LOVER FACE COURTS MAY 8

A teen-age mother and her lover, blamed for the bludgeoning death of her three-year-old son, will appear in court May 8.

Sandy Rockwood, 17, unwed mother of Michael Todd Rockwood, whose battered body was found buried in the Anaheim hills April 18, will stand before Orange County Juvenile Court Judge Samuel Dreizen, who must decide if she will be tried as an adult.

She is charged with being an accessory to the tot's murder, which Orange police think was April 11, two days before she reported him missing and set off a massive search by police and hundreds of volunteers.

Larry Wayne Cobb, 23, who lived with her in Orange since shortly after she and her son moved from Battle Creek, Mich., is accused of murdering the lad. He will stand preliminary hearing in Santa Ana Municipal Court.

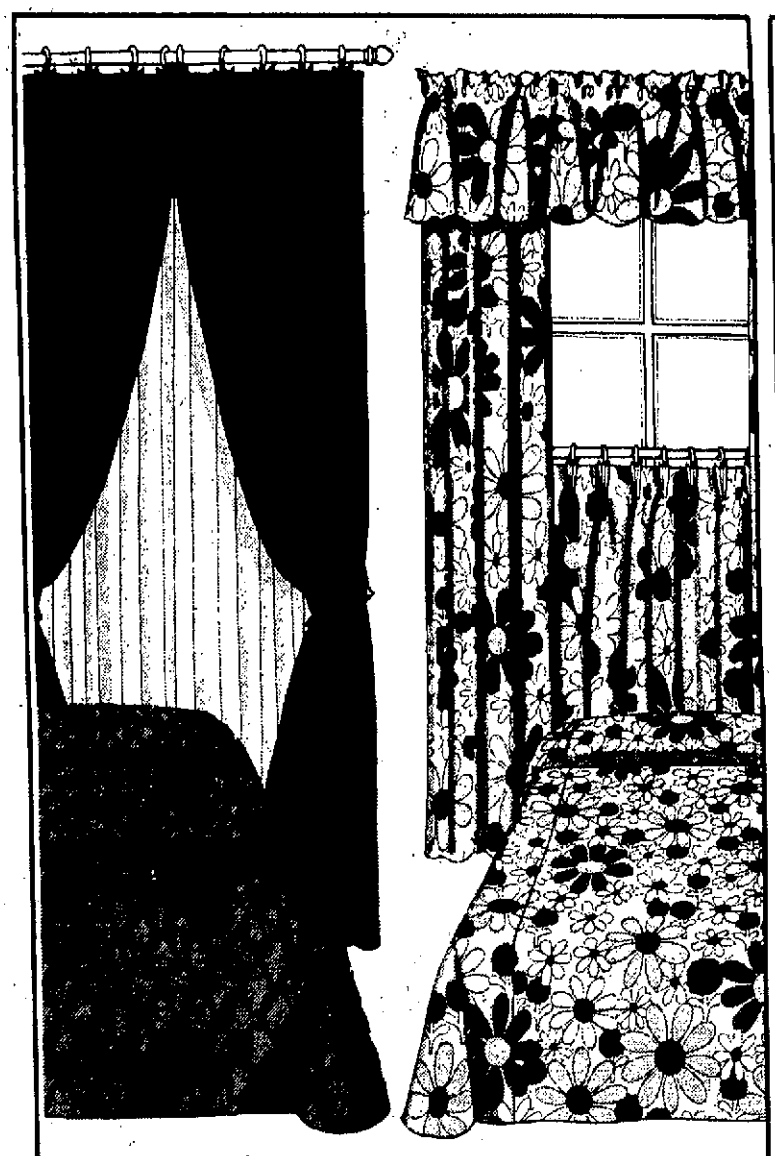

Meanwhile, Miss Rockwood is undergoing psychiatric tests, ordered by Judge Dreizen shortly after she was lodged in the Orange County Juvenile Home.

Assistant District Attorney James Enrich said Cobb will be prosecuted for first-degree murder.

Bakersfield man slain in fight over $10

BAKERSFIELD (UPI) — A Bakersfield man was shot to death early Saturday following an argument with a friend over a $10 debt.

Luther W. Gray Jr., 28, was shot three times with a .22 caliber rifle following an argument at his home, a police spokesman said.

Arrested about an hour after the shooting was the victim's friend Otis B. Godman Jr., 19.

He told officers the two had become involved in an argument over the money which Goldman said Gray owed him. The suspect told police he left the Gray residence and returned with a rifle.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Monday

Your birthday today: Brings a scramble to get free of limitations and into shape to change next year's life style. Your evaluation of most people changes this year, so relationships move at a steep pace or dwindle as you grow apart. Today's natives are imaginative, passionate, generous — if given half a chance.

Aries (March 21-April 19): New ideas are readily applied, with associates trying to be helpful even when the ideas are a bit too new for their comfort.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Community service, charity, the day's issues stir you to action. Your personal charm is on the rise; use it to coax reluctant people into cooperation.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): The favor of influential people is more accessible. It's a great day for social expression, parties, and wild stories.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): You find out now that something is already set although others have gotten used to the idea already.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): In the midst of well-scheduled routines a stray thought casts new light on all arrangements. Later hours encourage romance.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Sort out family finances first, then go hunting for bargains. A good look at your wardrobe should provoke ideas for replacements.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Prefer a minimal course of action — do the least possible, despite bustle of movement and good humor around you. Important details may be missed in haste — slow down.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You are alert but not at your peak in making deals, important purchases. Seek a steady pace for a long successful day.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Make important moves early because chances narrow steadily as the hours pass. The stage is set for a lively evening.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Being yourself produces general success today. Host your friends and business contacts, and take care to make them comfortable.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Initiative still rests with you in most matters. Getting out of familiar rounds promises intangible benefits.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Energy and resources are easy to scatter. Money matters generally are favorable, but there's no excuse for impetuous folly.

MAGNIFICENT SEVEN

We decided we wanted our name on a top-of-the-line paint. This is comparable to the best paint any manufacturer makes AND OURS IS GUARANTEED FOR SEVEN YEARS! (You know, we hardly ever use an exclamation mark.) Further, the stuff is ONE COAT covering over all but the most contrasting colors. High hiding, compare the analysis. We think you're going to like this, look for the gold label!!! (I think we should use more of these.)

9x12 PLASTIC DROPCLOTH 7¢ EA.

At this price it's your own fault if you spill paint on the rug. Now you can cover the car when you go visiting.

3/4" MASKING TAPE 17¢ ROLL

Good painter uses this to get those sharp edges without paint marks on the opposite wall.

PLASTIC PAINT PAIL 9¢

If our buyer bought these wrong and we're losing money we'll put one on his head when he goes outside so the woodpeckers won't get him.

NATIONAL SEVEN YEAR LATEX 5.96 GAL.

Goes on like silk, dries fast to a low lustre, with no heavy painty odor. Thousands of colors and shades can be mixed.

NATIONAL SEVEN YEAR SEMI-GLOSS ENAMEL 6.96 GAL.

A matching oil base interior enamel to our latex paint. Rich color and consistency.

NATIONAL SEVEN YEAR LATEX ENAMEL 7.96 GAL.

A latex enamel. You can clean up afterward with plain water. Cures to a soft sheen that fingermarks and soiling wipe right off of. Color choice almost unlimited.

GLIDDEN SPRED SATIN 5.97 GAL.

Thousands of colors in 100% latex base. Yes, Maude you can scrub it. For all drywall or masonry interior work.

GLIDDEN ENDURANCE TRIM PAINT 7.97 GAL.

Great oil base, self-cleaning and non-chalking formula. Glossy one coat over most colors.

GLIDDEN SPRED HOUSE PAINT 6.97 GAL.

Their best house paint. Resists blistering, cuts painting time because it goes over damp surfaces (don't try it during the rains.) 2042 colors.

WIRE BRUSHES 27¢ EA.

Get enough to make sure you get the flaky paint off first. Get an extra for your golfing shoes and one for your elephant.

GLIDDEN SPRED GLIDE-ON EXTERIOR MASONRY PAINT 5.97 GAL.

Wash up with plain water. High pigment, cures like an extra skin. (Knew a rattlesnake that could use one.) Tough acrylic finish.

GLIDDEN SPRED LUSTRE 7.97 GAL.

Color matched to the Spred Satin, lustrous alkyd enamel, flows on easily, wipe clean without color or sheen loss (you can tell I'm reading this.)

GLIDDEN SPRED LATEX TRIM PAINT 8.97 GAL.

Color correlated to Spred and Endurance house paints. 15 colors, fast drying, blister resistant (except on 14 mile hikes).

MAXI-STRIP AEROSOL PAINT REMOVER 87¢

Les grumbles about this, but if you can spray on and wipe off, is that bad?

5' ALUMINUM STEP LADDER 8.77

Light, but strong. No job for your wife to lug it around as you direct her from the TV chair.

14' ALUMINUM EXTENSION LADDER 12.97

Now you won't have to stand on the stack of beer barrels. Rubber footed, non-scratching ends.

California close second to N.Y. in second homes

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Real Estate Editor

Those New Yorkers. They don't give up easily, whatever the point in question.

Second homes, for instance.

One certainly would think Californians would be far and away the leader in this category. But, no.

Figures accumulated by the ever attentive Property Research Financial Corporation, Los Angeles, New York leads California — and the nation — with a total of 289,200 second homes.

Sure, California was a close second—with 264,300.

Most of the second homes in New York are held for seasonal use—as was to be expected—whereas in California year-round use is much more prevalent.

Other findings of the Los Angeles-based real estate investment bankers show that while affluent families across the nation are more likely to own second homes, a surprisingly large number of families in lower income brackets also maintain second homes.

Out of a total of 2,464,000 families in the $25,000 and over income category, 342,000—or 13.9 per cent—have second homes, compared to a total of 19,590,000 families in the $5,000-$9,000 bracket of which 703,000 — or 3.6 per cent — own another home.

Of all the income classes for families in the U.S., 4.8 per cent maintain second homes. Such homes in the country total 2,890,000, of which 950,000—or 33 per cent are owned by families with incomes in excess of $25,000, Property Research found.

Families with incomes under $10,000 own a total off 1,155,000 second homes, or 43 per cent of the total.

Swarm time biting deeper

With the advent of warm spring weather, a number of Southern California homeowners are lucky (or unlucky) enough to notice hundreds of tiny insects swarming around a window sill or door, under an eve or near furniture or a storage cupboard.

The swarm, according to Ronald E. Lawson, Long Beach - Orange District chairman of Pest Control Operators of California Inc., will mean the householder has a termite problem.

Termite colonies, Lawson explains, are composed of workers, soldiers and winged reproductives, which normally mate in the spring.

The reproductives, whose primary function is to found new colonies, emerge from hidden galleries when the weather turns hot and sunny, and particularly when there has been a rainfall.

Swarming is their mate selecting exercise. They have left an existing colony to form a new one which will contain an average of 250,000 destructive, long lived pests.

If a swarm is noted, Lawson says, the homeowner can conclude that there is an established colony somewhere in the house busily engaged in creating damage.

The area official of PCOC, a 300-member nonprofit trade association, points out that only a small percentage of a colony enjoys reproductive stature. The vast majority of termites are hatched as workers, suppliers of a diet of cellulose found in wood.

If not detected in time, the invisible workers will honeycomb wooden timbers until nothing is left but a thin, collapsible shell.

Lawson says anyone spotting a spring swarm should call a pest control professional and ask to have the home inspected.

He adds the earlier infestation is located and treated the less the cost. If unchecked, a colony of termites can damage portions of a home to the point of no repair.

The PCOC executive says other signs of a termite invasion are:

— Piles of tiny discarded wings on the floor beneath doors or windows. (these are shed when the reproductives end their swarm and begin searching for a suitable site for starting a new colony.)

— Small piles of straw colored or reddish brown fecal pellets near woodwork.

— Blistered or darkened areas on hardwood floors, window sills or frames, beams or joists.

— Small earthen shelter tubes on the surface of foundation walls.

Subterranean termites, which nest in the soil because they need the ground's moisture to survive, construct these tubes as passageways to the house and as a means of protection from their natural enemy, ants.

(A second termite common to California is the drywood, which required no connection to the ground. It can infest any part of a house but usually prefers attics or window frames.)

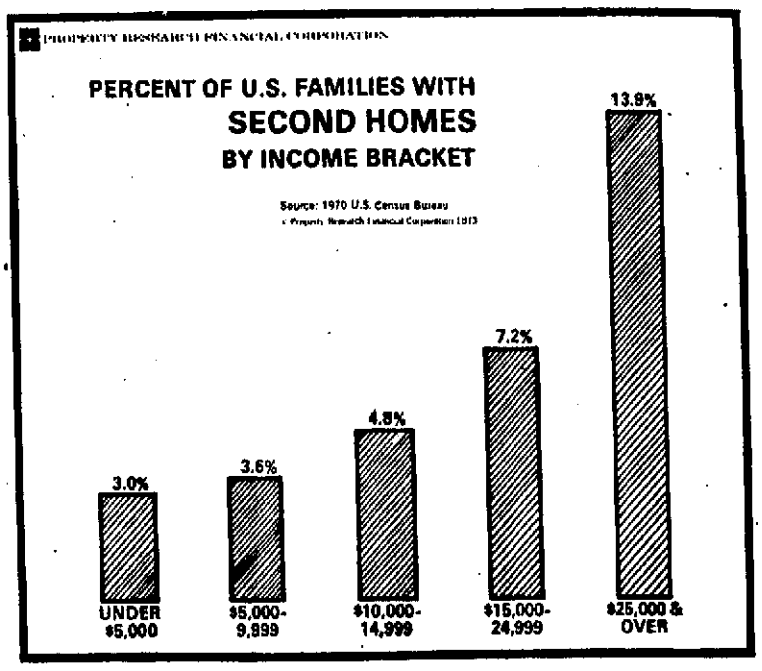

Biting deeper

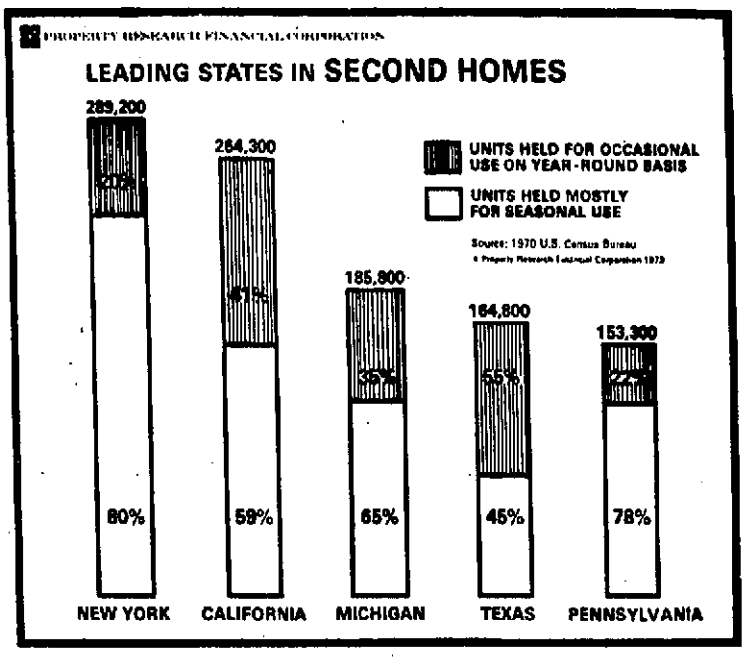

Ecological restrictions are starting to bite into the U.S. housing market.

Altogether, they may cause a total loss of as many as 50,000 housing starts this year and more in future years.

These are conclusions of Advance Mortgage Corporation's current semi-annual survey, "U.S. Housing Markets." Advance Mortgage, headquartered in Detroit, is a subsidiary of First National City Corporation, New York.

Huntington Landmark condominiums in opening today

Huntington Landmark, Signal Landmark Properties' new all-adult condominium community in Huntington Beach is holding its grand opening this weekend at the model site.

More than 30 of the 176 homes in the first unit of the project already have been accounted for in pre-opening sales. The $4.7 million first phase includes homes priced from $20,190 to $34,790.

Eventually, more than 1500 units valued at nearly $40 million will be built on the 160 acre site.

This is the third major community to be built by Signal Landmark Properties in Huntington Beach in less than a year.

Landmark Homes Beach Series, a community of 188 single family homes, sold out last summer in less than a month. Landmark Homes Beach Series II, another single family community of 188 homes was sold out earlier this year.

ROBERT JAMES, vice president and general manager of the building firm, said: "Huntington Landmark has been designed to meet the needs of the residents in terms of comfort and enjoyment. We believe that the large lawns, beautiful walkways and complete landscaping will provide the community with a relaxed, environmentally pleasing atmosphere which is certain to enhance the attractiveness of living here."

Huntington Landmark features all of the normal benefits of homeownership, plus the security of a private, walled community with security-guarded entrance. The community also offers a wide variety of recreational facilities in keeping with active adult interests.

The recreation center features a clubhouse with facilities for numerous social and group activities. Other recreational attractions include a putting green, swimming pool, a hot water whirlpool bath and two tennis courts.

WILLIAM WALKER, general sales manager, said six floor plans are offered in the first phase of the project.

"The plans feature one, two or three bedrooms and one or two baths," Walker said, "with each unit allocated a covered garage space with built in storage, as well as an additional parking space. There are one and two story buildings, with all plans available on either a first or second floor."

Features include wall-to-wall carpeting in the living room, bedrooms and hallways, and electric cable ceiling heat to insure silent, efficient and clean heating. Other features are walk-in closets in most models, deluxe-equipped all-electric kitchens, and utility rooms that include an installed washer-dryer.

All homes also have either a private patio or a view balcony overlooking the expansive greenbelt areas.

CONDOMINIUM concept of carefree living is provided, with exterior maintenance, landscaping and care of the greenbelts and recreational facilities provided by a professional firm retained by the homeowner's association.

The all-adult nature of the community will be preserved by the requirement that all residents be at least 40 years of age, except that one spouse of a married couple may be under 40 if the other is over 40. Complete details of the age requirements are contained in the Declaration of Covenants, Conditions and Restrictions for the community.

Besides the extensive recreational facilities planned for the community itself, Huntington Landmark residents will have ready access to the virtually unlimited leisure time opportunities offered in the surrounding area.

The Huntington Beach master plan calls for the establishment of at least 70 neighborhood parks, with 46 either already completed or now under development. A total of 492 acres of park land is scheduled for completion by this fall, including the 170 acres now being developed in Central Park

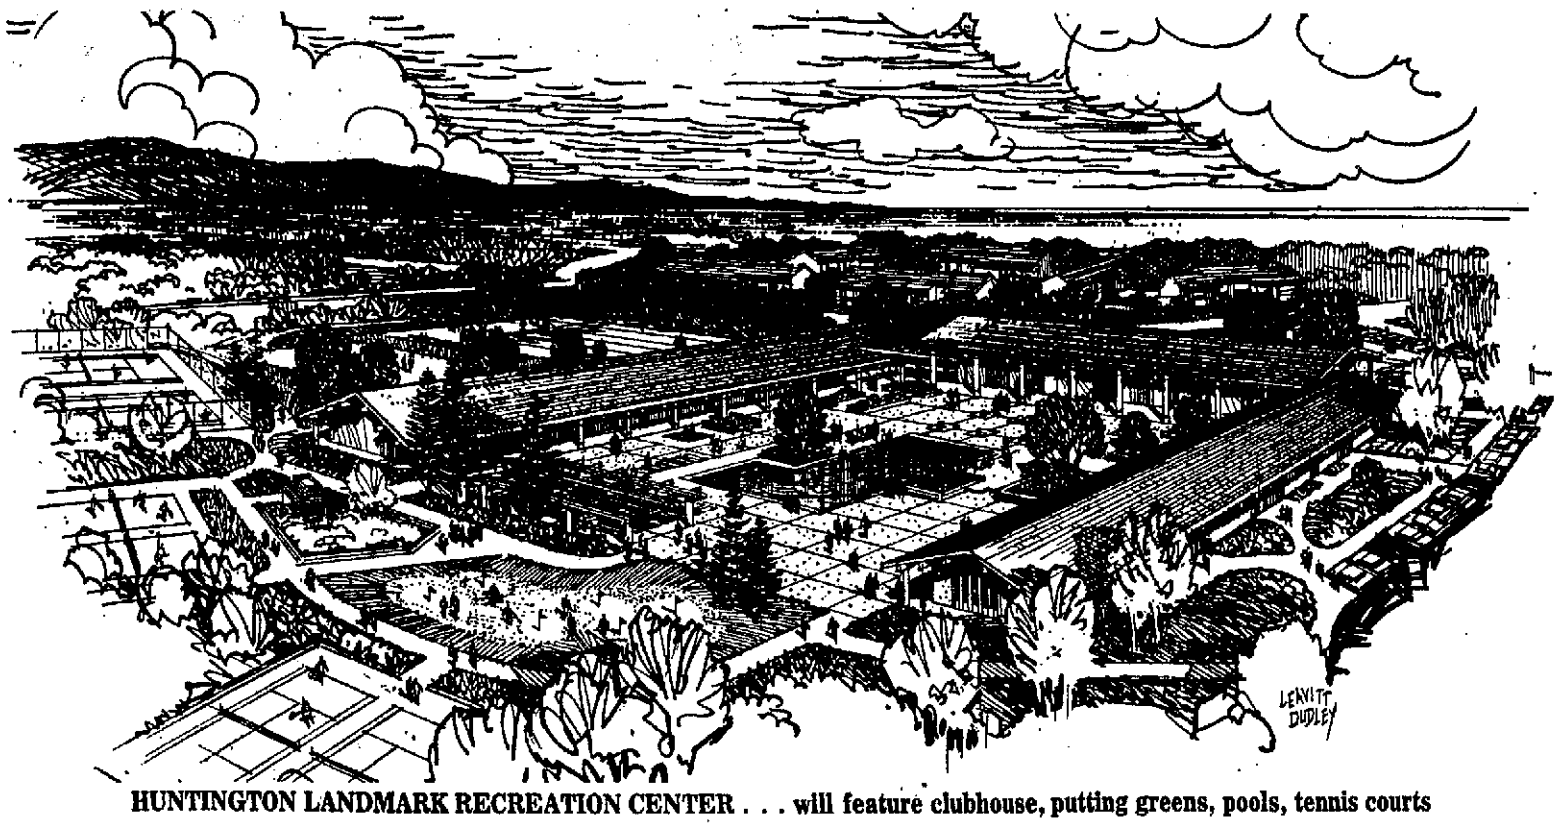

THIS LARGE park, located at Golden West Street and Talbert Avenue, will eventually encompass 420 acres and will have three freshwater lakes, a wildlife refuge, overnight camping grounds, rustic village, museum, and miles of riding, hiking and bicycle trails. A municipal golf course is also being considered as part of the eventual development of the park.

The Sunset Aquatic Park, a county-operated marine and camping facility, provides boat slips, a small-boat launching ramp, a boatyard, a restaurant.

When fully developed, Huntington Landmark will cover an area bounded on the north by Indianapolis Street, on the west by Newland Street, on the east by Magnolia and on the south by Atlanta Avenue.

Entrance to the model area is provided via Greenfield Lane, which is midway between Newland and Magnolia Streets.

The site may be reached from the San Diego Freeway by taking either Magnolia Street or Beach Boulevard south to Atlanta. From Pacific Coast Highway, take Beach Boulevard north to Atlanta.

HUNTINGTON LANDMARK RECREATION CENTER . . . will feature clubhouse, putting greens, pools, tennis courts

Reservations taken for Park Place units

Reservations are being taken to 198 new luxury homes under construction in Fountain Valley, according to G. Ross Crawford, director of sales for builder Ponderosa Homes, a Kaiser Aetna division.

"We're calling this new community Park Place because it's located across from Mile Square Park," Crawford stated.

"Residents will have accessible recreation facilities such as a three-acre lake for fishing, baseball diamonds, bicycle and hiking paths, barbecue areas and lots of green grass for picnicking and relaxing."

This is the third in a series of Park Place communities developed by Ponderosa Homes in proximity to major city and regional park sites.

These large (1758 to 2495 square feet) single-family homes will offer four unique plans in both single- and two-story models.

Attractions include raised entries, formal step-up and step-down living and dining rooms, spacious family centers, breakfast nooks and a sumptuous fireplace in every plan.

One even offers an additional optional fireplace in the master bedroom. Plan 534x, the largest of the four, provides a large workshop behind a three-car garage.

"THESE ARE custom-styled homes for families who require lots of space," Crawford noted. "Prices will range from $43,000 to $58,000 and the development is slated for grand opening within the next six weeks."

The new Park Place community is located at the intersection of Brookhurst and Edinger Avenues in Fountain Valley, and is easily accessible by taking the San Diego Freeway to the Brookhurst turn-off, and proceeding south about one mile to Edinger.

Sales personnel are on duty daily between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Phase 4 units open at Casa Grande

John D. Lusk & Son, developers of apartments and residential communities in Southern California, have announced the grand opening of Phase 4 of the Casa Grande Apartments in Cypress.

Phase 4 is designed for quiet adult living. Some of the features of these units are central air conditioning, forced air heating, cathedral beam ceilings, private patios or balconies, swimming pools and barbeque areas.

Occupancy is slated for May 1 and reservations are now being accepted.

Casa Grande Apartments are located at Lincoln and Denni in Cypress.

Wind Tree West, South priced low

The Econ Group of Santa Ana offers potential new homeowners two extremely convenient locations in Orange County: Wind Tree West in Anaheim and Wind Tree South in Santa Ana.

Wind Tree West in Anaheim are one and two-story, two-bath garden homes priced from only $18,700 to $19,700.

The location is off the Riverside (91) Freeway between Harbor Boulevard and Euclid Street in what is one of Orange County's better established residential areas.

Shopping of all descriptions is nearby as are the county's many parks and recreational facilities.

The townhome community is set in and amid landscaping that enhances the California contemporary styling of the townhomes.

A special feature of Wind Tree West homes is the use of fire-and-sound resistant lath and plaster construction throughout. Other amenities included in the full price are wall-to-wall carpeting and draperies throughout; kitchen with built-ins, pass-through kitchen counter and walk-in pantry; private fenced patios and a large swimming pool adjacent to a charming cabana.

A decorated model home is open daily from 10 a.m. to dusk on West Street in Anaheim and is reached from the Long Beach area by taking the 91 Freeway to Euclid Street; Euclid south to La Palma, east (left) on La Palma to signaled West Street, then left to Wind Tree West.

WIND TREE South is a condominium community in a long established neighborhood in Santa Ana at the corner of McFadden Avenue and Euclid Street.

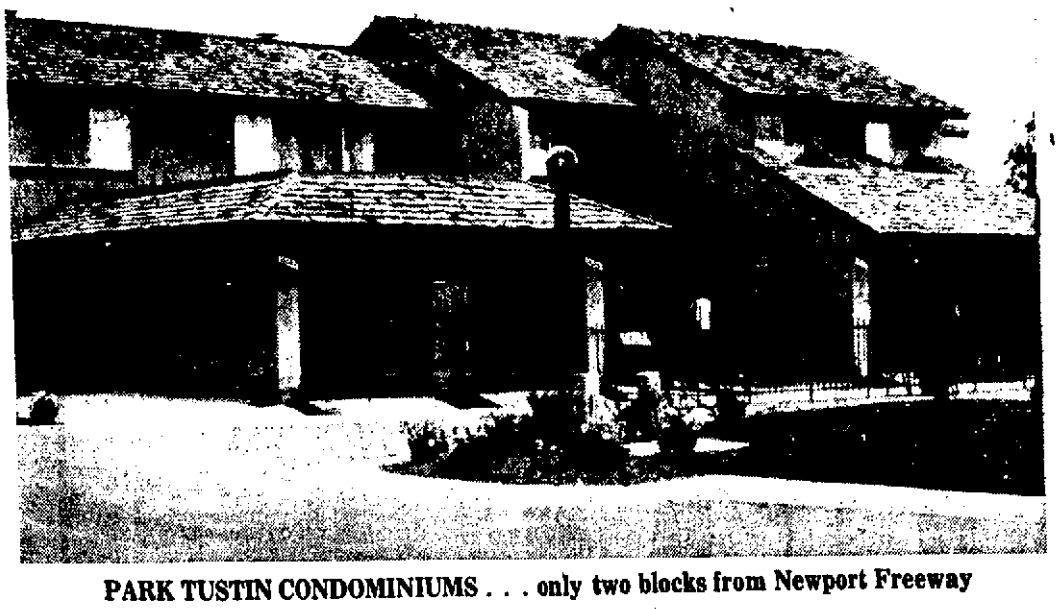

The one-story residences offer refrigerated air conditioning, wall-to-wall carpeting.

The model homes of Wind Tree South are open daily from 10 a.m. to dusk. Take the San Diego (405) Freeway south to Euclid Street. Turn north to the development. Or take the 405 Freeway to the Garden Grove (22) Freeway to Euclid Street and turn south to Wind Tree West.

Park Tustin: luxury at reasonable cost

With 100 out of 132 homes sold, Park Tustin Condominiums, nestling near the Tustin hills in one of Orange County's finest residential neighborhoods, offers families an unexcelled opportunity to enjoy luxurious living at a reasonable cost.

Priced from only $27,500, the one and two-story, two, three and four-bedroom residences are located next to Enderle Gardens; one block from a major supermarket and drug store; and two blocks from the Newport Freeway.

PARK TUSTIN CONDOMINIUMS . . . only two blocks from Newport Freeway

Included in the full price are many appointments not normally found in condominiums in this price range, said Larry S. Held, marketing director for the builder.

"Refrigerated air conditioning, eye-level continuous clean oven, in addition to built-in range, ventilating hood, disposer and dishwasher; ceramic tile countertops in both kitchen and showers; shag carpeting in living room, master bedroom suite and hall; attached enclosed garage; private fenced patio and heavy wood shake roofs," Held enumerated.

Rapidly nearing completion are the two separate recreation areas. The active: with large heated pool, therapy pool and sun'and'fun deck; and the almost finished two-story clubhouse equipped with kitchen facilities, billiards and other indoor facilities for games and entertaining.

MAINTENANCE of the entire community of seven acres is provided through the Park Tustin Homeowners Association with homeowners electing their own officers and by-laws.

Decorated model homes are open daily from 10 a.m. to dusk.

Walker & Lee retained by 14

Fourteen developers in March retained Walker & Lee, Inc., Anaheim-headquartered real estate firm, to handle sales at 16 projects totaling 2,401 units and $104.2 million, according to George Weierbach, new homes division vice president.

During the first quarter, Walker & Lee signed subdivision contracts total 6,797 units worth $245.5 million, Weierbach added.

Of the developments, 14 are California projects totaling 2,142 units with a value of $94.3 million.

The firm will handle sales at nine Southern California developments: B. A. Morris Co.'s Ridgegate in Palos Verdes; Moien, Ltd.'s Mediterranea Villas in Encino; Yorktown Homes a development of S & J Industries in Rialto;

ISLAND VILLAGE OPENS AND CLOSES

The photo above was taken 2 minutes after the doors opened for sales at Island Village, a private community in Long Beach. Two hundred and forty-two minutes later all of the homes in the first phase were sold.

Hundreds of prospective buyers were unable to take advantage of Island Village's exceptional home values. One buyer parked a camper on the site the night before to be the first in line. To avoid this disappointment again, prospective buyers are being advised to leave their name at the Island Village Sales Office with John T. Martin, Sales Manager. All potential buyers desiring to do so will be notified of a preview prior to the second phase grand opening.

Rossmoor Regency holds to '72 prices

Despite generally inflationary trends in real estate sales, The Rossmoor Regency, an adult condominium complex in Seal Beach, continues to hold the line with its 1972 sales prices.

Five one, two and three-story plans are available in the community at prices ranging from $40,950 to $58,950. Conventional financing terms are available.

Only 14 homes remain in the complex, with 40 sales already recorded.

Walt Aistrup, Walker & Lee project manager at the site, attributes the sales success to a combination of quality construction and many conveniences.

Highlight of the complex is the three-story Plan 3CS. This home features an upper level master bedroom suite with private bath, dressing room and large walk-in closet. The upper level balcony opens over the spectacular two-story living room and fireplace.

The living and dining rooms, outside balcony, kitchen, powder room and wet bar are on the middle level, while the lower floor contains two additional bedrooms, bath and utility room. Both lower bedrooms open onto private, enclosed patios.

OTHER Rossmoor Regency plans include a two-story, two-bedroom unit which also has two balconies and two baths; and three single-level units with two or three bedrooms, baths and single or double balconies.

All of the homes feature large living and dining rooms, kitchens, private baths and dressing rooms in master suites, fireplaces, wet bars and numerous luxury extras.

Security of residents is a major attraction.

The project features an integrated, closed circuit TV viewing system which allows residents to view their visitors before admitting them. The system operates from the outer entrance, so no one can even enter the building unless admitted by a resident.

There is also a complete fire and burglar alarm system, and secured, subterranean parking.

COMPLETErecreational facilities are provided within the community, including a large entertainment pavilion which can be divided into four spacious sections, heated swimming pool, therapeutic pils, and separate gymnasiums and saunas for men and women.

There also is an outdoor firepit with surrounding patio heaters for barbecue convenience, and a well-equipped kitchen for indoor entertainment.

The Rossmoor Regency's models may be reached from the San Diego Freeway by driving ½ mile north on Seal Beach Boulevard to St. Cloud Drive, then turning left on St. Cloud to Montecito and right to the project.

Tale of three cities: war on developers

BOCA RATON, Fla. — Three small cities in Florida have taken on the forces of industry and two big land development corporations in attempts to cure growing pains and preserve the quality of life on the Florida Gold Coast.

The battle has been joined in Boca Raton, Hollywood and Hallandale. The eventual outcome may require a landmark decision from the U.S. Supreme Court and set a pattern for many suburban cities.

The three municipalities are trying two different approaches, but the goal is the same: limit the number of residents to maintain the quality of life.

Boca Raton has adopted a city charter law to limit to 40,000 the total number of dwelling units within the city's limits. Hollywood and Hallandale have passed city ordinances to restrict the population density per acre.

Both approaches confront the courts with further interpretation of the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution which says: "...nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation."

NONE OF the three cities plan to condemn any disputed land and pay what the owners think it's worth. The cities couldn't afford the hundreds of millions of dollars such condemnations would cost.

But, at the same time, the city fathers are telling the land owners they cannot develop the full potential they expected of their property.

The population explosion along Florida's southeast coast is that bad. Hollywood and Hallandale are in Broward County, maybe the fastest-growing county in the nation, adding more than 41,000 new residents per year. Boca Raton is next door to the north in Palm Beach County, where growth is mushrooming.

At Boca Raton, Richard Mayo headed a "Citizens for Reasonable Growth" movement which successfully petitioned for a charter referendum and got it passed 7,772 to 5,626 votes last Nov. 7.

"PEOPLE want to keep Boca Raton a low density city," Mayo said. "That's what caused them to come here initially." The tightly boundaried town of Hallandale got bad news at a recent public hearing from planning consultant Walter Sachs of Philadelphia.

"This community is indeed at a crossroads in its development," Sachs said. "If uncontrolled, we would predict a decided and rapid decline in the quality of life of this community."

Hollywood's city commissioners were slapped individually with a $54 million damage suit for their pains in trying to dampen the population explosion.

The present circumstances in the three cities are approximately these:

Boca Raton — Has a population of 33,000-37,000 persons living in 14,000 dwelling units built on 16,000 of the city's 44,000 acres. Councilman Norman Wymbs, father of the "growth cap" amendment, said the total of 40,000 dwelling units would limit Boca Raton's population to about 105,000. Unrestricted, he said, it might go well over 200,000.

HALLANDALE — Only one mile wide and 2.5 miles deep. The town has only 2,000 vacant acres left. Consultant Sachs said that if only 20 units per acre were permitted on the vacant property, Hallandale would wind up with an average of 55 persons per acre citywide which is "two and a half times the current density of San Francisco."

Hollywood — Once a small "bedroom community" lying between Hallandale and Miami to the south and Fort Lauderdale to the north, now has a population of 102,000 in its roughly six-by-six mile square area stretching back from the ocean.

Boca Raton's growth cap law has been taken to federal court on constitutional grounds by the huge Arvida corporation. Arvida, founded by the late Arthur Vining Davis who also founded ALCOA, had its plans for development of University Park sharply restricted by Boca Raton's population throttle.

Arrayed against both Hollywood and Hallandale is the giant GAC corporation which owns three man-made islands in the intercoastal waterway straddling the boundary line of the two cities.

SPEARHEADED by John Williams, an ardent environmentalist, the Hollywood City Commission started the population control hassle rolling along the southeast coast in August of 1970. It passed an ordinance calling for an 80-60-40 limit to the number of units per acre built on the three different classes of property zoned for multi-family occupancy. Hallandale later did the same.

GAC immediately filed suit in Broward County circuit court challenging the constitutionality of the Hollywood ordinance. The suit also claimed damages, totalling $54 million, from the commissioners individually.

The Hollywood plan had collided headon with GAC's budgeted and announced intentions to put 40,000 persons in 18,000 units on the 410 acres comprising Three Islands.

The commissioners stood their ground. Last November, Broward Circuit Judge Otis Farrington ruled that GAC could not claim damages. He has not ruled yet on the constitutional challenge.

While the fight on the first suit still goes on, the Hollywood commissioners voted Jan. 19 this year to amend the 80-60-40 ordinance to set the limit at only 25 units per acre on multi-family plots. This drew another suit by GAC and at least five more suits from smaller land developers.

Design for living

Piano was yellow

By EMILY MALINO

If you're a music lover, don't be afraid to make this pleasant hobby the focal point of your parlor. Too often in the past people depersonalized their public rooms, feeling perhaps that a living or dining room should be reserved for company — whatever that means.

Unhappily, this worn-out concept still applies to many homes where hobbies are legitimate in the family room but taboo in the parlor.

This is sad, because the most interesting and satisfying interiors are those with a sense of purpose and personality and there is nothing to match music when you are looking for character.

Of course, it is a simple thing to show off a guitar or an elegant lute; stringed instruments can be hung on a peg or casually stashed on a prominent shelf. Horns or woodwinds can easily be stored and displayed simultaneously on shelves.

BUT A piano is larger than anything else and if you treasure the role it plays in your life, find a place for it that shows.

A grand piano is so decorative that its curvy shape and size make it an easy focal point. It can stand by itself in an alcove or it can be brought right into a sitting space because it provides a comfortable, wall-like bulk for chairs.

But an upright piano is not half as pretty and it takes up a lot of space. I've discovered that the way to display and use an upright properly is to take its bulk for granted, center it and then surround it.

It can be surrounded with a collection of wall-hung art objects, or a wall full of small paintings or prints above and around it.

Or it can be disguised or obscured; in a room I saw last year, an upright piano was boldly included in a huge supergraphic painting and seemed to disappear in this clever visual camouflage.

BUT THE prettiest paino I ever saw was in Finland in a store window. It was bright chrome-yellow lacquer and I liked it so much that in a room I designed recently, I lacquered an old upright pinao this very same color, covering a scratched and scuffed wood finish.

Around this cheery, shining center I designed a storage wall of vertical fins and horizontal shelving. Ample surfaces for television and a record player are at the same level and as deep as the keyboard.

Shelving level with the top of the music rack gives plenty of headroom to change a record as well as storage for books, plants, objects of art and records.

A PAIR OF mobile benches for duets have hinged, lift-up seat cushions to store sheet music. These can be pulled over to the sitting area to double as extra seating.

The sitting furniture is simple and modular. A game table, also used for snacks, is at right angles to the adjacent wall.

These elements are all arranged in a U-shape so that the piano is front and center, where it should be, a glorious golden focus for a music-loving family.

NEW FROM VOLKSWAGEN . . . Sports Bug

WORLD OF WHEELS

By ART STEPHAN
Auto Editor

Long Beach area Volkswagen dealers are offering a new model of the 1973 Super Beetle — a limted production Sports Bug with such goodies as wide radial tires, and Indy-style steering wheels and racing type bucket seats.

Belt-line striping, black "chrome" bumpers and trim and ventilated sports wheels distinguish the Sports Bug. Inside the driving compartment the front bucket seats are like those on a European rally car. The steering wheel has a small diameter, a thick padded rim and leathette cover.

The Sports Bug comes equipped with special 5½ J 15 rims — an inch wider than stock. The radials are 170/70x15.

Sports Bugs are available in two special exterior colors — Saturn Yellow and Marathon Blue.

Suggested retail list price for the new limited production model is $2,699 at west coast ports of entry.

Powered by an air-cooled engine mounted over the driving wheels, the Sports Bug has four-wheel independent suspension and a fully synchronized four-speed transmission. Accessories include bumper overriders, gravel guards for the fenders, door handle shields and trim plates for engine cooling louvers. All these are in black. The Sports Bug is equipped for VW Computer Diagnosis and carries a 24-month, 24,000-mile warranty.

CHEVROLET TRUCK SALES in the West are starting 1973 with a real surge, according to H. G. Lackey, Pacific Coast Manager for Chevrolet Motor Division. Regional dealers established an all-time record for the month with registration of 10,585 units according to January figures just released by R. L. Polk & Co. Chevrolet out registered their nearest competitor by 270 units in the region and 198 in California.

Current truck registrations represented 32.5 per cent of the areas total industry for the month.

"Naturally, we're very gratified at the quick acceptance and popularity of the '73 truck line even in the face of shortages of the most popular trucks in January. We're working hard now to increase availability," Lackey added.

"We're particularly pleased at the strength of the truck market, this is an accepted index of confidence in the economy, and we know from our own sales figures that the January start is continuing into the Spring market."

Ponderosa-La Palma showing newest homes

Ponderosa Homes has opened an eighty-unit phase of new homes in its La Palma community.

The new unit features unique exterior elevations, and innovative floor plans in a wide selection of single family homes.

The new phase also incorporates the three and four-bedroom models ranging in price from $36,990 to $45,990.

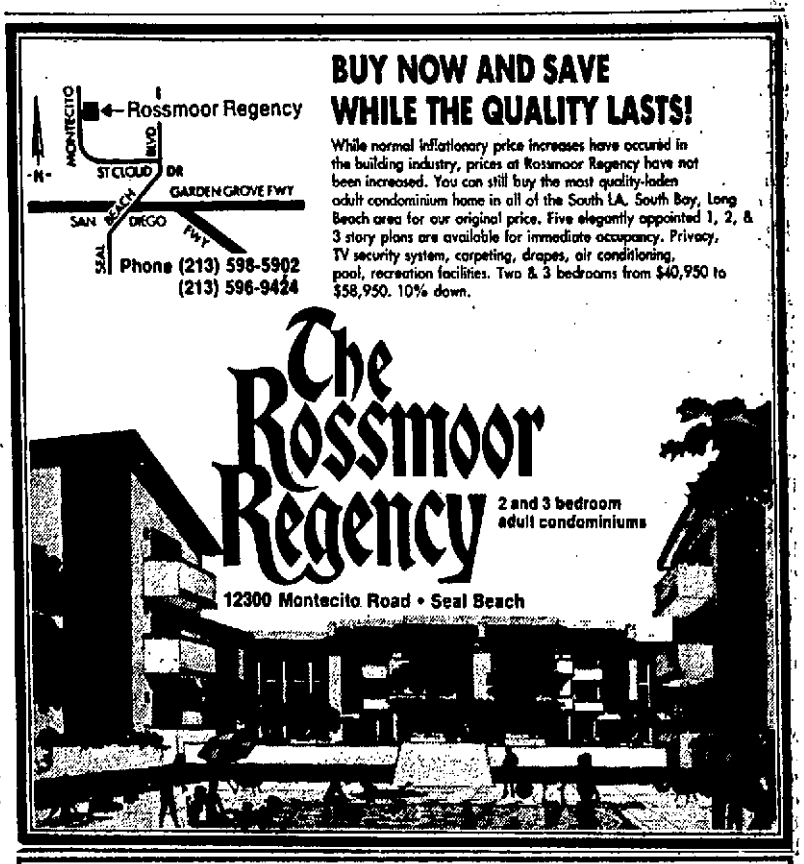

They are convenient to schools, shopping and churches, and provide spacious living in a quality built home.

In addition to the quality features usually associated with Ponderosa homes, such as all-tiled bathrooms and kitchens, tempered sliding glass doors and gas lighted fireplaces, these homes are insulated throughout, including perimeter walls and ceilings to afford climate control and sound intimacy.

AN EXTRA for families is the bonus room, perfect for a billiards room or a second family living area.

Two or 2½ baths, as well as ample storage provide further convenience on a practical scale. Carpeting, tiled entryways.

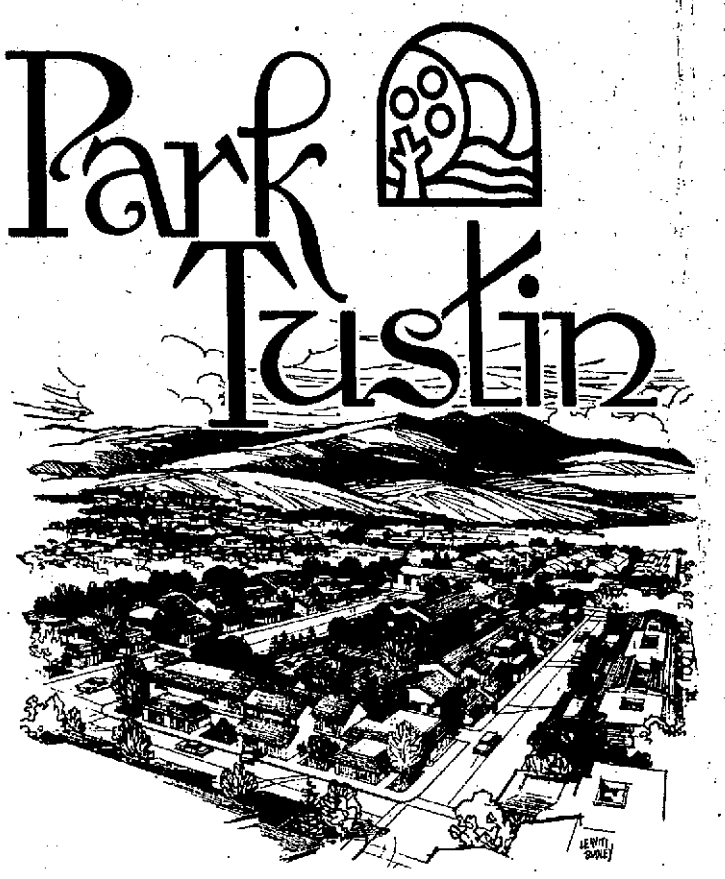

Furnished models may be seen daily at Ponderosa Homes by taking the Santa Ana Freeway to Carmenita Ave., then south on Carmineta to models.

Mobile home park seminar scheduled

A one-day seminar for persons interested in investment and development of mobile home rental parks and mobile home planned unit developments will be conducted May 12 and 19 by the University of Southern California.

Sponsored by USC's School of Business Administration and Extension Division in cooperation with the Western Mobilhome Association, the program will be in session from 8 a.m. to 5:15 p.m. both days at separate locales for the convenience of registrants.

The May 12 seminar will be in Room 7 of the Law Center on the USC campus; May 19, it will be in Room 123 of the Humanitites Building at California State University, Fullerton.

FURTHER information and application forms can be obtained by contacting Extension Division, Room 354 Administration Building, USC, University Park, Los Angeles (90007).

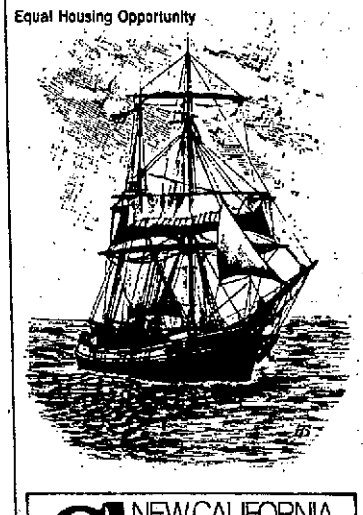

The seminar is oriented toward persons involved in real estate, finance, investment, development, construction and planning.

Speakers from the industry will review current market demands for various types of mobile home developments, and the economics of construction and operation.

Authors speak out

CITY PEOPLE'S GUIDE TO COUNTRY LIVING, by Betsy and Hubbard Cobb. Macmillan-Collier, $5.95.

If you've always wanted to move out of the city but weren't sure if you could make it in the country, here's the book for you.

This down-to-earth guide dispels common fears and misconceptions about country living provides practical advice on transplanting your family, tells how to live off — and with — the land, and how to adjust to the new community.

But before cutting your ties to the city, here are some important things to consider:

1. Your health: You should not try to move to the country unless you are in good health and also have the energy required to get your project moving and keep it moving.

2. How hard will you work: Self-employed people think nothing of working 10 or 12 hours a day, seven days a week, and have to be prepared to do everything from keeping their own books, and doing their own filing and correspondence to cleaning up their own office or workshop.

3. Getting credit while you can: The time to get a mortgage to buy a house, finance a new car, or make improvements on the house is while you still have a regular salary. This is also the time to establish credit at local stores and other places where you may need it.

4. Buying equipment: If the work you are going to get into involves materials that cost money, buy them while you have a regular income to pay for them.

5. Building up a cash reserve: No matter what work you get into, you simply must have enough reserve cash available in the beginning to meet your living costs and fixed expenses.

How can you find out whether you're meant for the country?

According to the Cobbs, "the best way to test your tolerance to country life is the second home, vacation house, or future retirement home — if you can afford it — living in the city during the week; spending weekends and vacations in your country place.

In a sense, this is the best of all possible worlds. You can leave some roots in the city while putting new ones in the country.

This eases the transplanting pangs considerably, if and when you want to leave the city entirely.—RLB

Ponderosa quarter sales up

At the close of the first quarter of 1973, Ponderosa Homes, Southern California division, tallied $8,909,932 in new home sales, according to G. Ross Crawford, director of sales for the Kaiser-Aetna division.

Ponderosa developments contributing to the $9 million sales figure include Country Road Townhomes, Brea; Bravo! homes, Cerritos; Ponderosa homes, La Palma; Park Place homes, Huntington Beach, and Villa Monterey townhouses, San Diego.

NRMA will meet in L.B.

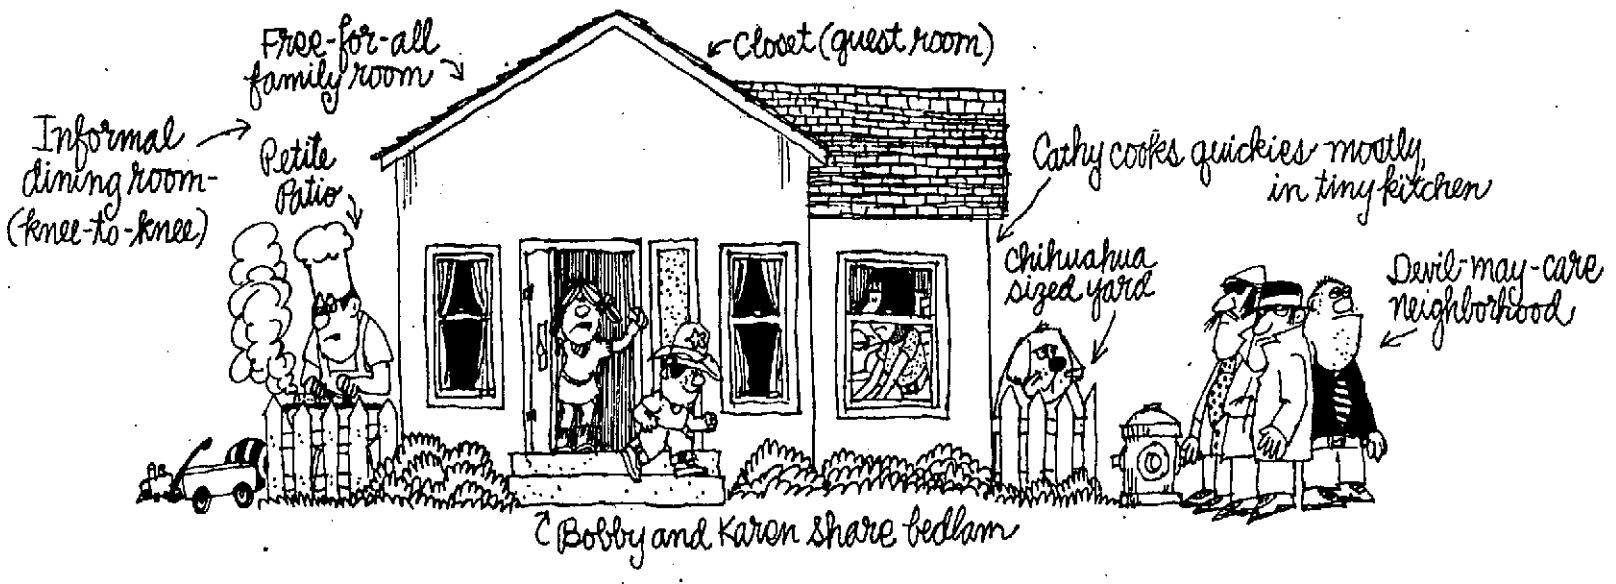

The Queen Mary will be the site of the National Retail Merchants Association's first Midyear Retail Management Conference June 17-20, President James R. Williams announced.

Typical of the subject matter to be presented during the shipboard conference will be "Harnessing the Retail Information Systems Explosion," "Curbing Shrinkage Losses" and "Optimizing Your Return on Investment in Mall Stores."

Shopping center planned

Groundbreaking for a $250,000 neighborhood shopping center soon will take place in Fountain Valley at the corner of Ward and Slater Ave. in the planned community of Green Valley, Holstein Industries announced.

Designed in a Spanish motif, the 11 shops will feature tile roof, covered cabana, air conditioning and will be located adjacent to existing markets near the same corner of the 2,000-home development.

The site is only a few blocks from City Hall, Library and the Fountain Valley's center of population, project chief Dan DeMille explained.

Created for "neighborhood business," DeMille said leases are being handled through the Holstein company's Costa Mesa offices.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Thayone Jones and Gary Parsons have been named research analysts at Anaheim-headquartered Walker & Lee, Inc., diversified real estate services firm, it was announced by George Fulton, director of the company's Research and Consulting Department.

Jerry Curran, director of recreation, Mission Viejo Company, has announced appointment of Mrs. Lee Lovell as recreation director for the Casta del Sol retirement community.

TAKES POST
Don Boucher, Mission Viejo, formerly with Mission Viejo Company, has joined U.S. Development Corporation as vice president-production.

Tustin firm to design Vista units

Foster-O'Neill, Tustin architecture and planning firm, has been retained to design 15 customized homes for Vista Homes, Inc., Newport Beach.

The rustic-styled homes will be constructed on 10,000 to 15,000-square-foot equestrian-oriented lots in Yorba Linda and will offer three and four bedrooms, two baths, a country porch and three-car garage.

Riding trails cross each lot, and become part of county-developed riding trails surrounding the home sites.

Sets campaign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Travelers Insurance Cos. of Hartford, Conn., said it is launching a nationwide campaign to promote physical fitness. President John J. Byrne said the Travelers was joining the National Council on Physical Fitness in the campaign.

Making carpet

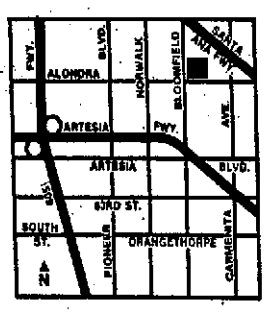

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Collin & Aikman Corp. said it will establish a plant in Clinton, Okla. to fabricate carpets for major automobile manufacturers. It will ultimately employ 200 people.

WE NEED YOU NOW!
AS A TOP-MONEY DRIVER
CALL TOLL FREE
800-331-4240
No Experience Necessary

We'll train you free, show you the ropes, and get you on the road. As an owner-operator, you'll travel the country and be your own boss.

Owner-operators average 40 cents per loaded mile. They are eligible for bonuses, get 15 cents per loaded mile advance payment, and group insurance. Our dispatching system is one of the most modern. 90% of line haul paid in the field.

If you are 21 or over, have a good driving record, can pass the physical, and own or can buy a good 3-ton short wheel base truck — we can put you in business for yourself. Of course, you'll need a truck.

If you don't already have one, we'll get one for you and help you with the financing, too. We'd like to talk to you now.

FINANCE & INSURANCE MANAGEMENT
We are looking for an aggressive individual to manage the Finance & Insurance Dept. of one of South Bay's finest automobile dealerships. While there is a certain amount of detail work connected with this title, this is not an administrative position. We need a man with excellent sales ability. A successful background in small loan, insurance, or any sales oriented field would be particularly helpful.

You will be thoroughly trained in every phase of your new position before you start. (Salary & expenses while training)
If long hours and hard work do not frighten you, we offer a unique & challenging opportunity to earn $12,000 to $15,000 per more on a guaranteed salary + commissions basis. A new car is also furnished to you each year. If interested send a brief resume including phone number to:

If your plans include a better home, we're part of your future.

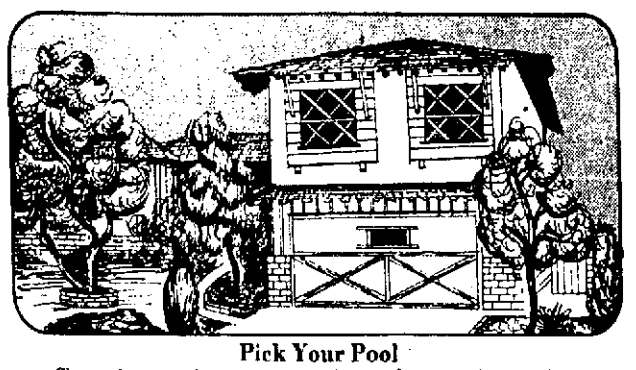

Your home is the most basic of all your family's needs—and it's the foundation of your financial future. Chances are, the equity you've been building in your present home has grown to a point where you can "move up" with little or no cash outlay. With Walker & Lee's Guaranteed Purchase Plan, the move can be an easy one. We'll help you find that bigger, better, newer home... and then guarantee the sale of your old one at fair market value within an agreed period of time. If we don't sell it, we'll buy it—for cash—at the agreed value less normal selling costs. You'll never have to worry about owning two homes at once. Call the Walker & Lee office nearest you, and ask for a free, professional market evaluation on your present home. You may be pleasantly surprised at how much buying power you have!

It's not Olympics but...

Russians face Walton execution

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

Can the United States regain world dominance of basketball by defeating the touring Soviet Union team today at 12:30 p.m. at the Forum?

No, the 1972 Olympic championship trophy is safely tucked away at the Institute for Sports in Moscow as a result of the Soviet Union's disputed 51-50 victory over the U.S. in the title game last Sept. 9 in Munich.

But, with the wondrous Bill Walton of UCLA in the Yanks' lineup, the U.S. is a solid favorite to defeat the Russians, who began their eight-game tour of America Friday night with a 72-63 triumph over the Utah All-Stars in Salt Lake City.

The game will be televised live nationally by CBS, but will be delayed two hours until 2:30 p.m. for presentation by Ch. 2 in the Southland. KABC radio will broadcast the contest live.

When the scheduling of the U.S.-Russia game was announced two months ago, Jim Fox of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States promised that "we will come as close as possible to duplicating the squad that played for America in the Olympic Games."

The AAU has fallen far short of that goal. Only three of the 12 players the U.S. had at Munich—forward Jim Brewer of Minnesota, forward Bobby Jones of North Carolina and guard Tommy Henderson of Hawaii—will play for the Americans today.

Brewer and Henderson each contributed nine points to the U.S. total of 50 at Munich. Jones went scoreless.

In additional to Walton, newcomers to the U.S. team are Swen Nater and Greg Lee of UCLA, Ernie DiGregorio of Providence, Ron Behagen of Minnesota, Fred Saunders of Southwest Louisiana, Pat McFarland of St. Joseph's (Pa.), George Karl of North Carolina and Jim Oxley of the U.S. Army.

The Soviet Union has reneged on a pledge to the bring the entire squad which played at Munich. Three members of the Russian team will be missing, including Sergi Belov, who led the Soviets in scoring with 20 points.

The U.S. team will be directed by Bob Cousy, coach of the Kansas City-Omaha club of the National Basketball Assn.

Cousy promises to junk the deliberate offense the Yanks employed in Munich.

"I think it's safe to say we'll accelerate play a bit," says Cousy. "We'll have a very representative team on the Forum court. If we don't hold our own, you have the coach to blame."

The Russians are not apologizing for their victory in Munich, which was achieved after considerable confusion and three replays in the final three seconds.

"We deserved the victory no matter what the circumstances," says Soviet coach Vladimir Kandrashin.

On the third and final attempt, 6-7 Soviet forward Aleksander Belov took a court-length pass, shed off Kevin Joyce and Jim Forbes of the U.S., and sank the winning basket as time ran out.

The Russians won seven of eight games during a 1971 tour of the U.S., but Kandrashin says he would "be happy to win two of the eight games this time."

"This is the height of the American basketball season," says Kandrashin, missing the mark by several weeks. "Your team should be better. We reassembled our squad only a week before flying to the U.S."

A sellout crowd of 17,505 will see today's contest. Remaining games on the Russians' tour are at San Diego Monday night, Albuquerque Wednesday, Indianapolis Saturday, New York May 7, Baltimore May 9 and Lexington, Ky., May 11.

Bucs can't get to 'Bill' Sutton

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

PITTSBURGH — The temperature Saturday was 40 degrees and dropping fast. But the Dodgers' Don Sutton was doing a slow burn.

He had just been deposited at Three Rivers Stadium by an unknowing Pittsburgh cab driver who asked who was pitching for the Dodgers.

"Sutton," said Sutton.

"Aw, Bill Sutton," remarked the cabbie. "We always get to that guy. He fades in the late innings."

"I always heard if you don't get Sutton early," replied Sutton, "you don't get him."

Don Sutton — or Bill Sutton or whatever Sutton — then proved his point. Down 1-0 on a gift run in the first inning, the Dodgers' righthander limited the high-powered Pittsburgh Pirates to just six hits as he posted a 3-2 triumph before 9,643 well-chilled fans.

The Pirates can be excused. They hadn't played a game for awhile, losing twice to the weatherman. The Dodgers appeared a little timid, too, blowing a fly ball and then making a bad throw to give Pittsburgh its 1-0 first inning lead.

But the Dodgers got an unearned run in the third to tie it, Bill Russell singled in the tie-breaking run in the fifth and then Joe Ferguson singled across what turned out to be the decisive run in the sixth inning.

For Ferguson it extended his hitting streak to eight games while improving his batting average to .315.

"No, I don't like to see the averages posted on the message board," said Ferguson who's hit safely in all but three of the Dodgers' 20 games. "You get to thinking you're doing pretty good and kind of relax. When you don't know exactly what you're hitting you keep going out there everyday just trying to make contact.

"So I try not to look when my average goes up there. The Pirates' averages? I NEVER look at them."

The Bucs took an impressive .302 team batting mark against Sutton. But they were restricted to an unearned run in the first, finally getting an earned run in the eighth. That snapped Sutton's personal string of consecutive innings without permitting an earned run at 29, a string which started in Cincinnati on April 11.

The one run Saturday lowered his team-leading earned run average to 1.93.

"I didn't even think it was cold out there," he told the frozen newsmen afterward. "Crisp? Yes. But I didn't think it was cold. I like working when it's cool. I sure like it lot better than when it's 80 degrees with 80 per cent humidity.

"I felt I was throwing harder than I can actually throw. You know I was overthrowing. I had to get back in the right gear."

Sutton fanned five of the first nine girates and finished the day with nine strikeouts.

"To hold a club like the Pirates to just six hits is pretty good pitching," said an impressed manager Walt Alston. "In Sutton's last two games he's pitched as good as he ever has."

Prior to whipping Pittsburgh he had shut out San Francisco, 1-0.

He got out of a critical spot in the eighth when Dave Cash and Manny Sanguillen singled with one out. Al Oliver grounded out, Cash scoring to

Anaya gains split decision in first defense

By RICH ROBERTS
Staff Writer

It was a great night for champions, up to a point.

Former bantamweight king Ruben Olivares made fast work of one Walter Seeley, scoring a two-round knockout to open Saturday night's show at the Forum.

Then Romeo Anaya became the first of the last three titleholders to keep it through his first defense, rallying to win a split decision over Rogelio Lara over 15 rounds.

But finally it was Chucho Castillo, the 27-year-old former banty champ, who was knocked to the side of the glory read by Bobby Chacon on a 10th-round KO.

Olivares and Costillo are now campaigning as featherweights, beefing up 7½ and 8½ pounds over their old limits, respectively.

However, the 18,552 fans who paid $205,100 had to see that the main difference in their success Saturday was in their opposition.

Olivares, 126½, of Mexico City, spent most of the first round pondering the southpaw style of Seeley, who apparently had built a 24-2-3 record around his Hempstead, N.Y., home where featherweights are about as scarce as suntans.

Ruben staggered Seeley with a right cross near the end of the round, then was belting Seeley on the ropes when referee Dick Young pulled him away at 1:24 of the second. Walter fell into Young's arms, half out on his feet.

In the title bout, Lara surprised Anaya with a shifty stance and a pair of quick hands, piling up an early lead with a strong left hook that drove the champion into his own corner and another time sent him spinning away on one leg.

Lara, 117 ¼, wearing as calm an expression as a guy punching tickets in the Mexico City bus station, appeared to be running away with it until Anaya, responding to cries of "izquierda! (left)" and "primero! (hit him first)", started charging in the sixth round.

After the fight Anaya explained that he had injured his left wrist in a non-title bout against Alacrancito Torres a month ago and wasn't able to jab properly—hence the pleas from his corner.

But the predominantly Mexican crowd didn't know that and commenced to whistle their dissatisfaction when Anaya slowed down through the eighth, ninth and 10th rounds.

Then in the 11th, Lara sent Anaya kicking across the ring with a sneaky right cross, but that was all Romeo needed to get fired up. Landing a strong combination, a pair of rights, and finally a thundering left hook, he came back to win the round and capture the decision.

Judges Rudy Jordan and Dick Young scored it for Anaya, 8-6 each, while referee John Thomas voted for Lara, 7-6. This

'Feuer' inches up on Matson

By JOHN DIXON
Staff Writer

Randy Matson holds the world shotput record of 71 feet, 5½ inches. Before long — perhaps next week — he will hold only fond memories.

Al Feuerbach, inching closer to Matson's six-year-old standard, unleashed history's third longest shotput Saturday in the 15th Mt. San Antonio Relays.

He muscled the 16-pounder 70 feet, 9 inches, only a flick behind Matson's all-time bests of 71-5½ and 71-4¼.

There's more to come, Feuerbach promised, perhaps in the San Jose Invitational next weekend.

"When I threw 69-9½ on my first one, it was obvious that I could break the record today," the 6-1, 250-pounder said. "I'm disappointed that I didn't break the record, but I'm pleased with the over-all performance."

Feuerbach, who wears the colors of Tom Jennings' Pacific Coast Club of Long Beach, should be pleased. His series was the second longest since track commenced 3,000 years ago.

Feuerbach warmed up with a gigantic throw of 71-11. "I didn't know that it was that far. I thought the grass was about 69 feet," the genial giant explained. "That was by far my best throw of my life. I had another practice throw better than the record, but it wasn't measured."

He opened the competition with a foul of about 70-10. He followed with tremendous high-flyers of 69-9½, 69-9, 69-6½, 70-9 and 68-10½.

Feuerbach took a seventh throw just for fun. It landed 70-11 from home plate.

Teammates George Woods was second at 67-9. Saturday, in the Drake Relays, Woods guilotined Feuerbach's victory streak at eight, 69-½ to 68-5.

"It's great to beat Matson's meet record (69-10¼)" Feuerbach puffed. "he's the second best shotputter ever, behind Parry O'Brien."

Feuerbach said he was jerky, uncoordinated" with his parents and relatives watching Friday in Des Moines. "But today I was relaxed. Today it was there."

Feuerbach's form was Second shutout for Angel hurler

No May-be, Rudy sharp

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

Standing in the spotlight Saturday night at Anaheim Stadium were Rudy May and Jim Spencer.

The reasoning was obvious.

May shackled the Cleveland Indians on four hits and authored his second successive shutout, 5-0.

Spencer carried much of the offensive load, harvesting a triple and a pair of singles while driving in two runs.

But in the catacombs beneath the stadium, Al Gallagher sat quietly on a stool in front of his locker and gave credit where credit is apparently due.

"The difference on this team," Dirty Al said softly, "is a guy named Frank Robinson."

Much has been spoken and written this spring of the Angel attitude — a new, exciting and invigorating development.

Robinson has been the instigator.

"The Angels have never had a super star, someone to look up to," Gallagher reasoned. "Now they do — and you can see the difference. At least I can."

Gallagher was an integral part of Saturday's success story.

He contributed two hits in four trips and drove in the fourth run of a four-run Angel first inning against Gaylord Perry, the ace of the Indian staff.

In the field, Gallagher was even better.

He made three plays that bordered on the spectacular at third base, wound up with six assists and started the lone Angel double play of the night.

ANGELS OF DAY

RUDY MAY pitched four-hitter and JIM SPENCER had three hits and two RBI in 5-0 win over Cleveland.

Charlie Fox would have been proud — if not flabbergasted.

Gallagher went into the game hitting .214 and perplexed about his lack of base hits.

"I went to Frank for some help," he admitted. "When he says something you listen because he is a man of stature. I was pulling out of the box and overswinging. Robby offered me some suggestions."

The results were positive.

Robinson also played a part in the fourth Angel victory in five games. He ripped a single up the middle to drive in the first Anaheim run, his 10th ribbie of the season.

The four runs in the first were more than sufficient for May who blanked Oakland on five hits last Monday.

Rudy is now 2-1, a vast departure from last season when he did not win No. 2 until June 29.

"The only thing Rudy has to do is concentrate," said manager Bobby Winkles. "When he does that and mixes up his pitches, he's as good as there is in the league."

Winkles turned and spotted May strolling through the clubhouse.

"Hey, no wonder you're winning," he yelled in the direction of his left-hander, "we're giving you all those laughers."

"After five years, it's about time," May retorted.

May has been victimized by lack of runs in the past.

"The first four games I pitched in last year we were shut out," he recalled.

Now the law of averages is catching up.

"I wasn't mentally prepared during the first part of last year, either," May admitted. "Now I feel confident but more important, I feel the team has confidence in me and so does the manager. That means so much."

The game was over almost before it started.

Perry, who has never beaten the Angels and is now 0-3 career against them, was down 4-0 before the saliva was off his first spitter.

Tom McCraw opened with a single and Vada Pinson followed suit. McCraw was thrown out at the plate on Bobby Valentine's grounder but Robinson smacked a run-scoring single.

Spencer then produced a triple to left. It was a single that became three

MORE THAN A TRAINER

Ducky's Day at Drake Stadium

By RON ROACH
(AP) Sports Writer

Ducky Drake says there's more, much more, to being a good athletic trainer than taping ankles, checking the temperature of the whirlpool bath and prescribing exercises.

Elvin C. "Ducky" Drake, who has been involved in UCLA athletics for 50 years as a participant, coach and trainer, says he's also a father confessor to the youngsters he treats.

"To be a good trainer, you have to be understanding," says Drake. "When kids come in with physical problems, they often have mental problems. They're usually feeling in the dumps.

"The ankle wrap is just a protective measure. That's not being a trainer. Heck, anybody can be a trainer."

Athletes pour out their troubles to Drake, who says, "You get to know more about most kids than their coaches do. This training room is a great place but you have to keep your mouth shut on what you hear. When a kid tells me something that I think has a bearing on the total situation, I'll ask him first if it's all right to tell the coach. Otherwise, you don't gain anyone's confidence."

Drake will be 70 on Nov. 2. He has been married more than 45 years. "No," he says, "I have no children of my own. I just have a lot of sons from here."

Many of them were present Saturday when UCLA's 3-year-old track and field stadium was officially dedicated Drake Track & Field Stadium. At UCLA, Saturday was "Ducky's Day at Drake Stadium."

Because of UCLA's mandatory retirement age, he no longer carries the title head trainer, except in football and basketball. He's under contract to the athletic department, not the university, and he hopes to continue his services on a year-to-year basis.

"When I stop to think about how old I am I don't even believe it myself," said Ducky. "Sure I'll be back next year. J.D. Morgan (UCLA athletic director) told me last fall that it's up to me. He said, 'You stay as long as you want. How long is your problem, not mine.' "

He was assistant varsity track coach from 1929 to 1946, cross country coach from 1935 to 1942, freshman track coach from 1935 to 1945, head varsity track coach from 1947 to 1964 and head athletic trainer from 1942 to 1972.

Ducky has fond memories from each of his roles at UCLA.

As a student, Class of 1927, he ran the mile, two-mile, the 880 and a lap on a relay team "almost every week. My best was a 4:28 mile, and at that time the world record was 4:10."

His Bruins won the NCAA track and field championships in 1956, when he was selected track and field coach of the year.

"Probably my most memorable experience was when Rafer Johnson and C.K. Yang finished one-two in the Olympic decathlon at Rome in 1960."

Drake coached both athletes at UCLA.

As a trainer, he says, "I'm just glad for any kid I can get well so he can play. That's satisfying."

In half a century at UCLA, Drake has seen a lot of changes.

"There's more specialization and depth on a team," he said, and in track and field "there are better tracks, better spikes, more and better equipment such as the javelins they're throwing now and the poles vaulters are using now.

"Somewhat, yes," he said when asked if those are reasons for the faster times and better marks, "but mainly it's the hard work the kids do. It's been several years since I've coached, so they should have better coaching methods, too."

Over the years, Ducky has noticed that athletes have changed. "I've had to make some concessions in my own thinking to keep up. Nobody ever knows how the kids feel, but I personally don't feel a generation gap with them.

"When they need help in the training room, there isn't any gap."

Drake's skills as a trainer are widely known. He has helped mend such injured professional athletes as Rick Barry of the Golden State Warriors, Don Buford, when he played for the Baltimore Orioles, and currently, Happy Hairston of the Lakers.

"Lots of high school kids come in and I look at their injuries," says Ducky.

It was noted that Buford, before going into pro baseball, played for UCLA's arch rival, Southern California.

"I don't care where he goes to school," says Drake. "If he needs help, you help him if you can."

FEUERBACH—

not perfect. He was pausing in the middle of his throw; he wasn't explosive.

What can he do with perfect technique?

"I think that either Woods or myself will break the world record. If George gets it, I like to think that I can come back and beat George. I'm not predicting that I will throw 73 feet, but I know that I have the potential."

Performances in other events on a cold, overcast day in the hamlet of Walnut were as disappointing as the size of the crowd — an announced 6,500, an actual 2,500.

Three-time Olympian Fortune Gordien set a "world record" of sorts. He twirled the discus 177-9, an all-time achievement for a 50-year-old with the high school disc.

"I was lucky. God must have had something to do with it," said Gordien. "This throw did not come from my body. It had to come from somebody else's."

Jack Rose's perfect-record Long Beach State tracksters won two events.

Freshman Dave Tucker captured the triple jump at 51-9, elevating his school record of 51-6¾, and the mile relay team won its division in 3:15.4 on legs by Don Skala (49.5), Ed Barnett (51.2), Phil Moses (47.0) and Phil White (47.8). Ron Pryor finished seventh in the 10,000 meters in 30:46.0, but broke the school record.

California International was expected to bid for records in the 440 and 880 relays, but injuries nullified gheir chances.

They won the 880 in a slow 1:23.4 (their goal was 1:21.7), and Willie Deckard pulled up as second man in the 440 relay when he couldn't shake a cramp. Earlier, he ran an eased-up 220, winning in 20.8.

Sub UCLA QBs shine; 40-minute SC scrum

John Sciarra, Jeff Dankworth and John Sullivan teamed up at quarterback to beat a team piloted by Mark Harmon, 21-7, in a 1 ½-hour UCLA football scrimmage Saturday afternoon on Spaulding Field.

Russel Charles, who totaled 58 yards in 11 carries, scored the first touchdown for the winners on a three-yard run and Kenny Lee piled over from the 3 and a 14-0 lead.

Jimmie Jones got 18 of his 58 yards on a scoring sweep of left end to complete the day's scoring. Minutes earlier Charlie Schuhmann had barrelled over from the 3 to avert a shutout for the losers.

USC concluded its second-week of spring football Saturday with a 40-minute scrimmage in the Coliseum.

In the passing department Pat Haden hit 4 of 5 for 44 yards, Orlando Olivas 4-7 — 53 and John Rachanelli 3-6 — 23. Phil Cantwell caught three for 30 yards and Lynn Swann and Dave Farmer two each. Bill Fudge paced the ball carriers with 28 yards on six tries.

bases when Cleveland left fielder Charlie Spikes attempted a shoe-top catch of Spencer's sinking liner and didn't make it. Gallagher's single scored Spencer to make it 4-0.

Singles by Spencer, Gallagher and catcher Art Kusnyer produced the final Angel run in the sixth.

May pitched the rest of the way like he had a train to catch. It took him only one hour and 46 minutes to achieve his shutout.

It was a Winkles-type game.

ANGEL ANGLES: Angel manager Bobby Winkles has issued a request to former Dodgers Bobby Valentine and Bill Grabarkewitz that they cease and desist from making disparaging remarks about Dodger manager Walter Alston and the way he handled them...GM Harry Dalton concurred with Winkles' action..."They've had their say and I think the matter should be dropped," Dalton opined...The Cleveland series winds up at 2 o'clock today with Bill Singer (3-1) taking on Dick Tidrow...It will also be the first of six Angel family days with all seats on the view level priced at $1...Who ever said the Angels were weak behind the plate...During the first 15 games of the season, catchers Jeff Torborg, John Stephenson and Art Kusnyer had a combined average of .275...Valentine, off to his quickest start as a professional, has been selected player of the month for April by Home Run Park in Anaheim...Charlie Spikes, who leads the Tribe with 5 homers and 11 RBI, feels he would still be languishing in Triple A ball in the Yankee chain if he had not been traded to the Indians last winter..."They have too many veterans in the outfield," Spikes said..."I don't think there would have been room for me"...The Indians certainly found a niche for him in a hurry.

Denmark takes international bicycle lead

ENCINO (AP) — Reno Olsen captured two gold medals and Niels Fredborg another as Denmark swept all three international events Saturday in the United States Grand Prix of bicycle racing.

Olsen won the 32-mile Busch Gardens road race and the miss and out finals in which the last rider on each lap is called out of the race. Fredborg, an Olympic gold medal winner at Munich, won the 3,000 meters edging Frenchmen Gerard Quentyn and Pierre Trentin by less than a foot.

In other races at the Encino Velodrome, Dale Vergauwen of Detroit won the 1-mile Race of Americans and a team of Olsen, Ron Skarin of the United States, Australia's Danny Clark and Japan's Yukiharu Mori took the Jitane Pursuit Challenge.

Denmark's three gold medals leads the seven-day competition with Australia, France and the United States with one each.

Beavers humbled by Bruins

The UCLA Bruins officially dedicated their track stadium in honor of Elvin C. (Ducky) Drake Saturday with an 87-53 Pacific-8 Conference dual meet victory over Oregon State led by James McAlister and Benny Brown.

Drake has been at UCLA for 50 years, first as a student and later as track coach and trainer.

Brown, a sophomore, captured his quarter-mile specialty with a clocking of 46.2, one of 11 meet records.

He also ran the anchor lap for UCLA's mile relay victory with a swift 45 flat time as the Bruins went the distance in 3:07.4 for another meet record.

McAlister, the fast Bruin running back during football season, won the broad jump with a 26-foot leap and placed third in the 100-yard dash in 9.7 seconds — the same time as winner Ronnie Welch and second place Dotson Wilson, all of UCLA.

Best time of the meet was set by Hailu Ebba of OSU, a member of Ethiopia's Olympic team, who won the 880 with a stadium record 1:48.2.

Brad Skovbo of OSU won the pole vault with a mediocre 15-9 effort as UCLA's Francois Tracanelli and Ed Lipscomb of Oregon State both passed until 17 feet, then missed all three of their tries at that height.

The victory kept the Bruins unbeaten in dual competition as they tuned up for their showdown next Saturday with rival Southern California, also undefeated in dual action.

Long jump—McAlister (UCLA) 26-0, Bendixen (UCLA) 24-8, Kotinek (UCLA) 24-3½.
Shotput—Schiller (UCLA) 61-2½, Freberg (UCLA) 58-6, Pagel (UCLA) 58-3½.
Javelin —Judd (OSU) 243-10, Davis (OSU) 226-9, Heidt (OSU) 218-0.
440 relay—UCLA Wilson, Brown, Gaddis, Papoardo) 40.4, OSU did not finish.
Mile—Goldner (OSU) 4:11.5, Johnson (UCLA) 4:15.2, Nitti (UCLA) 4:22.9.
High hurdles—Jackson (UCLA) 13.9, Rich (UCLA) 13.9, Johnson (UCLA) 14.2.
440—Brown (UCLA) 46.2, Gaddis (UCLA) 47.8, Akuahene (OSU) 48.0.
Pole vault—Skovbo (OSU) 15-9, no second or third.
100—Welch (UCLA) 9.7, Wilson (UCLA) 9.7, McAlister (UCLA) 9.7.
Discus—Gordon (UCLA) 192-0, Freberg (UCLA) 183-3, Miller (OSU) 172-4.
880—Ebba (OSU) 1:48.2, Vennay (UCLA) 1:50.0, Svoboda (OSU) 1:54.1.
Triple jump—Jackson (UCLA) 47-11½, Luehers (OSU) 43-1, no third.
Intermediate hurdles—Guerrero (UCLA) 51.8, Oveson (OSU) 51.9, Wyatt (OSU) 53.7.
High jump—Woods (OSU) 7-0, Fleer (OSU) 7-0, Fletcher (UCLA) 6-10.
220—Welch (UCLA) 21.5, Eatmon (OSU) 21.7, Wilson (UCLA) 21.7.
Two-mile—Hill (OSU) 8:53.6, Brown (OSU) 8:53.8, Salcido (UCLA) 8:54.6.
Mile relay—UCLA (Guerrero, Peppards, Parks, Brown) 3:07.0, OSU 3:17.5.
Final score: UCLA 87, Oregon State 53.
Attendance: 3,650.

Ky.-Indiana All-Stars trip National All-Stars

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Little Ron Daniel and muscular Wesley Cox, both from Louisville, sparked the Kentucky-Indiana All-Stars to a 106-101 upset over the much taller National All-Stars Saturday night in the first Derby Festival Basketball Classic, pitting outstanding high school players against each other.

Daniel, only player in the game under 6-feet tall, scored what proved to be the winning basket when his 10-foot jumper gave Kentucky-Indiana a 99-98 lead.

Then the 5-foot-10 guard made a key steal with eight seconds to play and fed teammate Danny Brown of Jennings County, Ind., the pass for a game-clinching layup.

Cox contributed 20 points and 15 rebounds to lead the winners in both departments. The 6-foot-5 forward was chosen the most valuable player for his team by sportswriters and sportcasters.

Seven-foot Richard Washington of Portland paced the National All-Stars with 26 points and 15 rebounds to earn most valuable player honors on his team.

The National All-Stars got 15 points from 7-foot-2 Wayne Rollins of Cordele, Ga., and 12 points each from Gavin Smith of Van Nuys and Toby Knight of Port Jefferson, N.Y.

Stanford wins US Invitational golf crown

STANFORD (AP) — Stanford University, leading all the way through the three-day U.S. Collegiate Invitational Golf Championships, finished the tournament Saturday in first place with a team score of 897.

Following five-time winner Stanford were San Jose State at 899, UC Irvine 916, UC Riverside 922 and Seattle University 922.

A two-way tie for first-place individual finisher climaxed the event's windup on a cool, windy afternoon at the Stanford Golf Course. At the tourney's end, Conrad Nilmeir of Stanford was tied with San Jose State's Bill Barry at 220, the Stanford golfer beating Barry with a par four in a three-hole tie breaker.

Chicago, Montreal start series

MONTREAL (AP)— The Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks open their best-of-seven showdown for the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup today, marking only the second time ever that the league's two division champions have clashed for the cherished hardware.

Montreal set a record, losing only 10 games during the regular season en route to the East Division title. Then the Canadiens eliminated Buffalo in six games and Philadelphia in five to reach the Cup finals.

Chicago won its third consecutive West Division crown and eliminated St. Louis and New York in preliminary Cup rounds, finishing both clubs off in five games apiece.

Ashe breezes into finals

DENVER (UPI) — Englishman Mark Cox took advantage of American Roscoe Tanner's inexperience and poor serves Saturday and America's Arthur Ashe breezed to a win over Australian Ross Case in the semifinals of the $50,000 United Bank tennis classic.

Ashe and Cox will meet in today's finals.

Cox broke Tanner's serve twice in the final set to take a 6-2, 3-7, 7-5 victory and Ashe, helped immeasurably when Case doublefaulted in the seventh game of the first set, waltzed to a 6-3, 6-2 win.

Teen-ager leading at Havasu

LAKE HAVASU CITY (AP) — Near-blind Ken Rapp of Laguna Beach had his difficulties Saturday in the first day of the London Bridge Regatta, but John Ross-Duggan Jr., 18, of Newport Beach, clobbered the generation gap as he won two races against older sailors.

Ross-Duggan caputred both firsts in the Hobie Cat 14 "A" fleet. He is eligible for the overall championship in the sailing series, with one race remaining Sunday.

Only the "A" skippers in the Pacific Catamaran, Hobie Cat 16 or Hobie Cat 14 fleets are eligible for the Havasu crown. These are the skilled sailors.

John Daigh of Newport Beach won two races in the Hobie Cat 16 "B" fleet, among 41 skippers, while Ross-Duggan had only 22 to defeat. Skippers in the "B" fleet are not eligible for the overall title.

Rapp capsized in the first race when a line to the sails snapped.

In the second race he figured far back in the pack. Leaders at the end of the first day were:

Pacific Catamaran "A"—Lance McCabe, Laguna Beach, 6-1; Pacific Catamaran "B" — Frank Wellington, San Diego, 4-1.
Hobie Cat 16 "B" — Frank Daish, Newport Beach, 1-1.
Hobie Cat 16 "C" — Rick Sleberson, Newport Beach, 6-3.
Hobie Cat 14 "A" — John Ross-Duggan Jr., Newport Beach, 1-1.
Hobie Cat 14 "B" — Jerry Kermode, Laguna Beach, 5-2.
Hobie Cat 14 "C" — Robert Morgan, Los Angeles, 2-3.
One race remains today to determine the fleet and overall titles.

San Jose St. nips Huskies

SEATTLE (AP) — Vince Breddell won both sprints in 9.6 and 21.1 Saturday as San Jose State edged Washington 73-72 in a track and field meet that saw Darryl LaVerdure become the first Husky to clear seven feet in the high.

LaVerdure cleared 6-feet-10 on his first jump, then had the bar raised to 7-0, which he made on his third attempt. He tried 7-2 without success.

Smith, Alexander in net finals

GOTEBERG, Sweden (AP) — John Alexander of Australia upset countryman Rod Laver, 6-3, 7-6, to move into the finals of the $50,000 Swedish Tennis championships Saturday.

Alexander will meet Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., who made his way to the finals by defeating semifinal opponent, Gerald Battrick of England, 6-3, 6-3.

TITLE FIGHT —

newspaper scored for Lara, 8-7.

The fight was difficult to score because there were several dull spots, probably because the fighters' styles didn't mix well. Wherever there was action, it was forced by one or the other.

Lara's manager, Pancho Rosales, had hot words with promoter George Parnassus in the ring when the decision was read.

"He (Lara) won the fight all the way," screamed Rosales. "Even Romeo knew he lost."

But the champion from Tuxtla Gutierrez knew no such thing.

"I forced the fight," he said through interpreters. "I'm the champion and if somebody wants to beat me has to come to me. The guy never hurt me. I got tired because he ran so much."

Romeo, who weighed 118, displayed a deep cut inside his lower lip. Rogelio's eye sockets were severely bruised, the left almost swollen shut.

"This guy (Anaya) hits very hard," Lara said, "very hard."

He said that when he faded in the late rounds he wasn't tired but "was just trying to last the 15."

Chacon at first appeared to have stepped in too deep in trying to extend his record to 19-0 against Castillo, a wise old veteran who was going so well in the early rounds that he finished one flurry at the bell by waving and grinning toothlessly at the crowd.

But his legs got heavy midway in the bout and Chacon, six years younger, took the play away when Castillo no longer could keep his right glove high enough to avoid Bobby's left hooks.

Still, Chacon, 126, had barely overcome Castillo's early lead in the 10th when he rocked Chucho with a left-right that put the Mexican from Guanajuato on his knees, as much from fatigue as from the force of the blows.

Less than a minute later the San Fernando hotshot socked Castillo with two quick rights on the ropes, and when Chucho got up he simply walked to his corner. Referee Rudy Jordan ruled it a knockout at 1:35

In the final 10-rounder, Hugo Barraza, 129, of Colombia, won a split decision from David Sotelo, 128, of Los Angeles.

Washington signs swim star DeMont

SEATTLE (AP) — Olympic swimmers Rick DeMont of San Rafael, Calif., and Doug Northway of Tucson, Ariz., have signed national letters of intent to enroll at Washington, coach Earl Ellis said Saturday.

DeMont won a gold medal at the Munich Olympics but had to return it when it was discovered he had used medication for his asthma which was unacceptable to the Olympic committee.

Washington also announced that James Edwards, 6-foot-10 basketball center from Seattle's Roosevelt High School, has signed a letter of intent.

Edwards led his team to the state Class AAA high school basketball championship and was named the tournament's most valuable player.

Liverpool wins English soccer

LONDON (AP) — Liverpool locked up the English League soccer championship Saturday by playing Leicester City to a scoreless tie to assure itself of a berth in the European Cup of Champions next season.

Liverpool finished with 60 points in its 42 games, Arsenal, with one remaining, has 57 points. Leeds finished third.

EL PASO (UPI) — Dick Harris hit a grand slam home run and knocked in four other runs to lead powerful Arizona State to 17-2 and 13-3 victories over Texas-El Paso Saturday in a Western Athletic Conference doubleheader.

ASU smashed 22 hits in the first game, with all eighst starters getting at least one hit. Bump Wills hit a solo homer and Paul Moskau chipped in three RBIs in that game on a double and sacrifice fly.

Arizona State ran its WAC record to 12-0 and 47-5 for the year.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

Grich happy, but STILL a shortstop

Long Beach's Bobby Grich, who spent his first full major league season in 1972 jumping around at all four infield positions for the Baltimore Orioles, now is their fulltime starter at second base.

How does Baltimore's top hitter of last season feel about being confined to one task this year?

"I love it," beamed Bobby. "It sure beats being a swing man like last year."

"What is the difference being stationed at one position than several?

"I'm in the groove every night, where I wasn't before," explained Grich. "I feel comfortable at one spot and KNOWING that I'll be playing just one place.

"I think it helps the team, too. You go with the same guys at the same positions every game and nobody's nervous when they come to the ball park."

YOU GREW UP AS A SHORTSTOP starting at Wilson High. Now you're a major league second baseman. Is shortstop your position...and how do you feel about being a second baseman?

"Shortstop IS my position. There's no question about that. I played third, short, second and first last year—hey, they even tried me in the outfield during spring training, too—but there's nothing like being a shortstop.

"A shortstop's job is tougher than anybody else's and much more challenging. You have the chance there to make more good plays. Don't get the idea I hate being a second baseman. I just like shortstop better. But I want to stay in the major leagues, and if I'm destined to be a second baseman for the time being, I'll gladly accept it."

WAS YOUR LOT DIFFICULT LAST YEAR playing at a different position every day?

"It wasn't difficult in that I was just darned happy to be with a winning big league team. But, how would you feel going to work every day not knowing what your job would be? I went to the park confused because I DIDN'T know what I'd be doing that night.

"Now I can concentrate on just one thing, the important thing — the starting pitcher I have to face tonight.

"It's so much easier knowing where you're going to play. Last year, before I went to the park, I'd worry all day about every batter on the other team. I'd be thinking about how I'd play this batter if I was at third and what the difference in my fielding position would be if I was at shortstop instead.

"I thought four positions at one time. Thankfully, no more. Playing one position is so much easier and enjoyable. It saves you from getting ulcers, too."

ARE YOU SURPRISED, happy or disappointed with your start this season as a fulltime second baseman?

"I feel so-so about everything thus far. A week ago I was hitting over .300, but then I went into a slump. I haven't got any home runs yet, which concerns me. I'm not a Hank Aaron or Babe Ruth at the plate, but I'd like a homer every now and then. I'm halfway satisfied."

(Grich got his first homer of the season Saturday to pace the Orioles to a 2-1 decision over the Oakland A's.)

The Orioles are off to a fast start. Are you surprised, because your talented team didn't fare so well last season?

"No, I'm not surprised. Last year was just one of those things. All our big people didn't have good seasons. That's why they kept putting me at third base in place of Brooks Robinson, then at first in place of Boog Powell. Those men are great baseball players, but nothing fell into place for either of them last season."

YOUR ORIOLES, prohibitive favorites, fell on their respective faces last year. As a result, what was the team's feeling this spring?

"EVERYBODY wanted to come off that bad year. The attitude was great, so much better than a spring ago."

What was the difference from a spring ago?

"Great players like Brooks and Boog didn't have good years, true. Maybe they thought all they had to do was show up to be winners again a year ago. I don't know. But this spring EVERYBODY was more aggressive and bearing down."

Why have the Orioles flown so fast this season?

"There are three reasons. Our defense is superb — we had only four errors the first three weeks. Then, as usual, our pitching has been great. And the batting has been much better than in '72."

WHAT IS YOUR HONEST OPINION of the Angels?

"They're honestly a real solid ball club. They are tough. My old boss, Harry Dalton, really strengthened them with his trades. Getting Frank Robinson from the Dodgers was a major plus. All us Orioles wondered why the Dodgers let him get away. We KNOW what kind of leader and team player Frank is. Bobby Valentine and Bill Grabarkewitz could be supers. Bill Singer already is, I think.

"But the Angels' pitching is their long suit. Singer, Nolan Ryan, Rudy May and Clyde Wright are tough. I honestly wish the Angels didn't have them. I wish they had worse. How do you think I feel when I go to bat against them and have to face my parents and hometown friends, then come away hitless. I'm glad the Angels have a good staff, but I wish their starters were somewhere else."

What do you think of Dalton?

"He's a real sincere gentleman. For instance, he talked to me around the batting cage here at Anaheim Stadium and he asked about my welfare and the health of my wife.

"Dalton's a real class guy—and sharp, too. I guess the trades he made with the Dodgers prove that."

DURING THE PAST THREE SEASONS, when you jumped from Rochester to Baltimore and back, you rubbed elbows quite a bit with Frank Robinson. Do you miss the old man?

"Sure. We all do. We especially miss those three-run homers in the sixth inning like he got against us Tuesday night."

Are you happy playing with Baltimore?

"Sure I am, but when I went on the field at Anaheim Stadium Tuesday night, I made the remark what a great place to play this would be. I was thinking of the stadium, the weather, and just being at home.

"Larry Brown, our reserve infielder, shattered me very quickly, however.

"He said, 'Yeh, man, that's all pretty good. But you know what's better? That money at the end of the season.'"

What Larry Brown of the West Virginia Browns was telling Grich is that gold is where you find it—and it's to be found in divisional playoffs and the World Series. Apparently nobody thinks the Angels are quite ready for that rainbow just yet.

Henderson ready to settle score with Soviet cagers

"I think we should kill the Russians, we're so far more advanced than they are. Like coach Cousy says, basketball's our game. I mean, they're coming up, but they'll never have what we've got." — Tom Henderson.

OFFHAND, one would guess that far fewer people are annoyed about the Watergate scandal than were upset by the United States' basketball team's 51-50 loss to Russia in the Olympics last year.

Comparing a roundball game to a case of the administration's integrity might seem ridiculous, but the incidents are related in their political overtones — and it's doubtful that anybody could sell out the Forum to watch the Republicans bug the Democrats.

It's a matter of pride, which goeth before a fall, we are told, and the Americans' fall at Munich has been difficult to swallow.

"A funny thing happened, though," says Tom Henderson, who will be on the floor at the Forum today in a personal rematch of that bizarre contest.

"After our protest was over-ruled, the next day they wanted the teams to come to the big track stadium to pick up their medals. We saw the Russian players going over there 'cause we'd been watching the track.

"But as soon as they got there, things started happening. It was a bright and sunny day, but all of a sudden there was thunder and lightning, and they had to go to the indoor arena."

CLEARLY, Henderson concludes, God knew who REALLY won the game. The American players, by agreement, never did accept their silver medals for second place.

Henderson, a junior at the University of Hawaii, says, "I called home recently and my mother said they had sent one. But when I get home I'm going to send it back or over to Russia, one of the two. I feel they deserved it."

The U.S. was trailing, 49-48, when Illinois State's Doug Collins was fouled on a drive with three seconds remaining.

"He really got clobbered by that Russian," Henderson recalls. "When he started to get up I told him to lay down and take his time, because I was tired and I thought we both might get a rest."

Finally, Collins sank both of his free throws to put the U.S. ahead, 50-49. The Soviets played the ball in and used up two seconds before calling time. Then they used the final second without scoring — but were awarded a replay of the entire three seconds, during which they scored on a length-of-the-court pass.

"I was shocked," says Tom, who was helplessly guarding his man at midcourt, "and then when I thought about it later I decided, well, it's right in order with what happened throughout the Olympics. I thought we'd been cheated all the way. I guess they were just tired of Americans winning.

"A lot of people said why didn't we just sit down and not come out (for the extra three seconds), just go into the locker room.

"But it would have been a technical call and, according to international rules, that's two shots, so we could have lost that way, too."

AT LEAST, Henderson reasons, the Americans had a fighting chance if they went back onto the court.

It did them no good at Munich but now, seven months later, they can redeem themselves in a six-game series on their own soil and playing their own style of game.

"The thing we didn't do is run like we should have run," says Tom, who like his teammates was frustrated by the ball-control strategy of Henry Iba, the veteran coach from Oklahoma State.

"I didn't like it," Tom says, "but we didn't have any say. All the others teams I've been on, if you didn't understand something you'd ask why. But if you questioned him you would leave.

"I'm not saying he's not a good coach, but for the talent we had we should have run. To beat the Russians you have to run. They use the 30-second clock too well. We played right into their hands.

"But if we're running, they'll have to come to us or we'll run 'em right off the court. They're just like robots."

UNDER COACH Bob Cousy, the Americans will run, Henderson is assured. Nate Archibald told him so.

Archibald was a few years ahead of Henderson at New York City's DeWitt Clinton High, an all-boy school of 7,000 in the Bronx that also spawned Minnesota's Ron Behagen, another U.S. team player. Archibald, the NBA's scoring and assist leader, now plays for Cousy with the Kansas City-Omaha Kings.

"He says that Cousy's a guard-oriented coach," says Henderson, a guard. "I never saw him play but I heard when he was at Boston he ran. I think I'll enjoy this more than I did last summer."

Henderson hasn't found too many places he enjoyed.

"I mean," he says, "I went to high school in New York and junior college in Texas, so I know that Hawaii is hard to beat anywhere."

HE ALMOST landed in Long Beach. Jerry Tarkanian thought he had him wrapped up a year ago after Tom was twice a junior college all-America at San Jacinto JC in Pasadena, Tex., a suburb of Houston.

Henderson also had an offer to visit Hawaii so Tarkanian told him why not, it would be a nice vacation. But Tom never came back.

"I was going to come to Long Beach State," he says, "but they had gotten a lot of bad print and I felt they were going to get put on probation."

Hawaii, obviously, did not attempt to quell that notion that had been presented, largely, by two national magazines.

RICH ROBERTS

"I had two years left and I had to make good because I wanted to play pro ball," Tom says. "If I go there and they get put on probation, it's not doing me any good."

HENDERSON, living off campus with his wife Denolis and small daughter Tomara, is reasonably happy in Hawaii where, he says, "the people are warm. I went over there with the impression it was prejudiced. I'd like to live there eventually."

He is not deeply concerned about the remoteness of the islands affecting his press reviews.

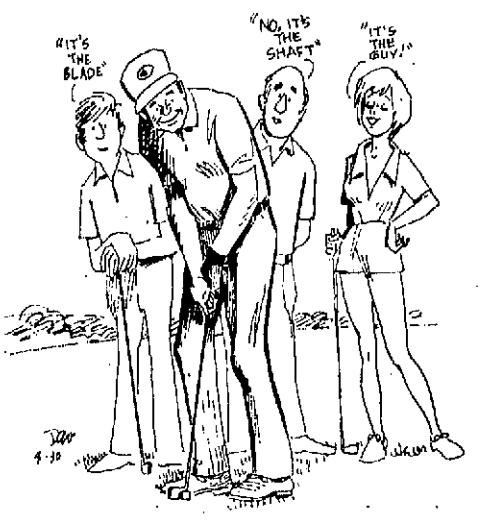

"They could get it but they just don't go after it," he says. "It does mean a lot to have your name in print, but I feel they'll find you wherever you are."

Besides, Tom is more interested in finding the Russians at the Forum today.

"I think," he says with relish, "we should kill 'em."

PUTT-ER THERE

When it comes to putters, a golfer is as fickle as a fraternity sweetheart. He'll keep ditching 'em until he finds one that feels good.

The putter you use should be determined by the kind of greens you play on the most. Some of those babies are so slick the ball sounds like it's rolling on sandpaper. On fast greens, stay away from a putter with a stiff shaft. It'll keep you tapped out.

The weight of the blade isn't all that important. The shaft is everything. On fast greens, use a light, almost whippy, shaft. You're not making a big motion with the club, so you need a shaft light enough that you can feel the putter move.

ON HEAVY, or grainy, greens use a firmer shaft because you have to hit the ball harder. A lot of guys don't realize how much the putter shaft flexes as they stop the back stroke and start the club forward. It can throw a putt off line quicker than a blonde in hotpants.

A putter with a couple of degrees of loft helps on grainy greens. The loft imparts just enough overspin to start the ball rolling smoothly.

COLUMNISTS' CORNER

BUD TUCKER

Just call him 'Duke' Winkles

Having long since given up the movies, jogging and drinks containing crushed ice, in that order, this bystander has no notion one way or another about the art appearing on the silver screen.

I first recall the movies as a place people sent their children when they wished to run a cocktail party. I last recall the movies as a vehicle for Hollywood's mistreatment of things.

Like, Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. The medical profession isn't all bad.

And The Last Hurrah. The political profession is no worse than 95 per cent bad.

Most regrettable is the manner in which Hollywood treats the newspaper profession. A newspaperman is never portrayed as anything but thirsty, irresponsible and brilliant.

The newspapermen I know are merely thirsty and irresponsible.

HOWEVER, they displayed a movie on the evil box the other evening which was vast in its merit. Firstly, it enabled one to watch something other than basketball and, secondly, it featured some good acting by John Wayne, who played a college football coach.

Displaying no particular regard for truth, ethics or the NCAA, the coach put together a winning team which was to save a small Catholic college from going down three times and coming up twice. Of course, the coach was required to contend with an overload of personal problems and, by and large, the movie in no way encouraged dry eyes among its viewers.

But the most significant thing about the film was that it caused you to think of Bobby Winkles.

Winkles is the college man to whom has been entrusted the salvation of the franchise at Anaheim. As was the case with John Wayne's college, the bankruptcy referees are casting knowing glances in the direction of the California Angels. Winkles is not known to have any personal problems, but he doesn't need any.

WHAT HE needs is that which was essential in the movie. He requires a winning team.

On this point the citizens of the community in which the Angels operate have become downright emphatic. Weariness has replaced optimism in Orange County and the population is growing thin on promises.

When they first took the orphaned Angels to their breasts in 1966, they were promised considerable, not the least of which was a solvent stadium operation and an American League pennant.

Failing to deliver by conventional means, the Angel management took its remarkable flyer on Winkles leading many to suspect the desperation point had been reached. You see, Winkles was the baseball coach at Arizona State University and had never played or managed an inning in the major leagues.

CLEARLY, what Winkles had to offer was the old college try which, to the credit of the Angels' strategists, had never before been tried in the majors. Bill Rigney tried the fatherly approach, Lefty Phillips employed common sense and Del Rice appealed to individual pride. None of it got the Angels close.

Therefore, you examined the record of the team as it returned from its first road trip and noted a gratifying percentage of .500 after 12 games. A year ago, the Angels were 4-8 so you detect a semblance of improvement.

According to those who move with the squad, the credit goes to the old locomotive. The Angels are said to have traversed the country holding more team meetings and pep gatherings than any outfit — college or professional — in the history of the pastime.

"If it keeps up," says Don Merry, I,P-T baseball journalist, "Wink will have 'em carrying banners and wearing striped neckties and singing fight songs. And it will be historical as the very first time the college-type influence was felt in the majors."

Actually, the foregoing is not altogether true.

Walter Alston of the Dodgers was once hanged in effigy.

'U.S. athletes more professional than Russians'

Colleges have own Watergates

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — "Oh what a tangled web we weave, when first we practice to deceive!" wrote Sir Walter Scott a couple of centuries ago. This truism hasn't lost its validity over the years but is so vibrantly alive that it can be accurately applied to such disparate things as Watergate and college athletics. The only bond between them is the element of deception.

No attempt will be made here to discuss Watergate. This is the wrong department. But college athletics belong on the sports pages and the festering mess that stirs down below occasionally breaks through the surface to disclose the evils of a system that creeps inexorably toward disaster.

Not long ago the University of Oklahoma announced that it was forfeiting eight of last season's 11 football victories, including the Sugar Bowl triumph over Penn State. This startling step was taken when discovery was made that the high school academic transcript of Kerry Jackson, a freshman quarterback, had been altered and upgraded to make him seem eligible to receive the athletic scholarship to which he was not entitled. One of the assistant coaches on the Oklahoma staff was aware of the tampering and he was asked to go elsewhere.

IF SUCH collegiate hanky-panky were an isolated instance there would be no cause for alarm. But it is so far from isolated that the NCAA seems helpless to call a halt or slow it down. The NCAA has four investigators. That's like trying to wipe out a plague of locusts with four flyswatters.

One fundamental principle that should never be forgotten is that the highly talented young men who form championship football or basketball teams are not brought to the campus by the stork. They are recruited and only high-pressure tactics can snare them. Although there probably was always recruiting of some description in the old days it was never identified as such and was generally low-key.

ARTHUR DALEY

Nowadays it's cutthroat competition of an unrestrained nature and has reached such a point that many conferences use a device known as a "letter of intent." This is the equivalent of a formal contract each schoolboy wonder signs with the college of his choice and is meant to prevent one thief within the conference from stealing the property earmarked for a fellow thief. But thieves in a different conference can hijack the kid already spoken for. They do it regularly, too. Presumably they bait the hook more attractively and offer more than the original purchaser made for services.

IT SMACKS of professionalism and it really is. According to the pure definition of an amateur, he is one who does not capitalize on his athletic fame. Scholarship athletes are getting thousands of dollars of education for free. Is this capitalization? The United States should never point fingers of scorn at the Soviet Union for sending government-subsidized "state amateurs" to Olympic and other international competitions. Most of our pseudo-amateurs in the colleges are more professional than their Russian counterparts.

Several campus administrators were sounded out and asked to speak freely about recruiting practices on the pledge that they would not be identified. What follows is something of a potpourri of the observations of knowing trend-watchers.

"Cheating was never worse than it is right now. The under-the-table offers these kids get is just beyond belief. Not only are they offered huge sums of cash but also jobs for their fathers, scholarships for their girlfriends and cars, wardrobes, everything."

"Some colleges in small towns have an extra going for them that the average person is unaware of. I've heard of booster clubs that raise as much as $200,000 to $300,000 a year as slush funds. Activities are so limited in what we'd regard as a jerkwater town that the boosters demand great basketball or football teams to entertain them."

"NOT EVEN all prestige schools are above suspicion. I know of one which used as an inducement to a blue chip schoolboy prospect the guarantee of a wealthy and distinghished alumnus to send the kid through law school afterwards and then give him a job with his law firm."

"Other colleges even sink so low as to use sex as an inducement when a kid visits a campus on an inspection tour."

"Tampering with academic records is commonplace."

College athletics have grown into a billion dollar industry and no one in power wants to let go. The one simple solution is to stop buying athletes and to use students instead of mercenaries. But since this would mean a return to the horse-and-buggy days, it is manifestly impossible. So college athletics go careening down the road at breakneck pace, headed for an inevitable crackup.

GOOD REASON TO SEE RED
Boston second baseman Doug Griffin had this first inning pop up Saturday, then just as quickly lost it after colliding with teammate Ben Oglivie in short right field. Chisox' Bill Melton wound up on second base. Griffin and Oglivie wound up sprawled on Fenway Park turf.

Grich, Palmer spark Orioles

OAKLAND (UPI) — Bobby Grich singled and scored Baltimore's first run, then homered in the third for the winning one Saturday as Jim Palmer out-pitched Ken Holtzman to give the Orioles a 2-1 victory over Oakland.

Palmer, who won 77 games over the past four seasons, struck out eight batters, walked on and gave up seven hits in recording his first triumph of 1973.

Grich connected with two out in the third and Palmer, a 20-game winner the last three years, blanked the world champion A's after the second inning.

The Orioles, who ended a three-game losing streak, nicked Holtzman for a run in the first inning on Grich's single and Tommy Davis' run-scoring double.

The A's tied the score in the second on Gene Tenace's pop-fly double which first baseman Boog Powell lost in the sun and a single by Ray Fosse.

The A's had runners on second and third with one out but Palmer retired Dick Green on an infield pop and fired a third strike past Bert Campaneris.

Sizzling Giants edge Cards, 1-0

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Bobby Bonds hit Reggie Cleveland's second pitch of the game for a home run Saturday night and Jim Willoughby pitched a four-hitter to give the San Francisco Giants a 1-0 victory over the slumping St. Louis Cardinals.

Bonds' homer was one of five hits off Cleveland and reliever Diego Segui but it was enough to give the Giants their sixth successive win and 11th in their last 12 games. Meanwhile, the Cardinals have lost 15 of their 17 games this season.

In the third inning, Bonds was brushed back by a Cleveland pitch and started to advance to the mound. Both benches emptied but St. Louis catcher Ted Simmons restrained Bonds.

Willoughby, making his sixth start of the season, raised his record to 2-1. Cleveland, who pitched eight innings, is 0-3.

Phils tip Reds, 1-0

CINCINNATI (AP) — Willie Montanez singled home the game's only run and Dick Ruthven, Billy Wilson and Ed Scarce limited Cincinnati to two hits as the Philadelphia Phillies downed the Reds, 1-0, Saturday night.

Terry Harmon started the Phillies winning rally in the eighth with a single and moved to second on pinch-hitter Cesar Tovar's infield single. Larry Bowa forced Harmon at third but the Phils loaded the bases on a walk to Del Unser, setting the stage for Montanez' game-winner.

Monday HR paces Cubs

CHICAGO (UPI) — Rick Monday homered as the leadoff man in the bottom of the first inning Saturday and winner Rick Reuschel and Jack Aker combined for a seven-hit shutout as the Chicago Cubs blanked the San Diego Padres, 2-0.

Monday, who has now hit safely 12 times out of his last 26 at-bats for a robust .461 batting average, hit his fourth homer of the season off loser Fred Norman.

Monday opened the third with a double to left-center and scored on Jim Hickman's bloop single.

make it 3-2. Sutton then walked Wilver Stargell but he got Richie Hebner to ground to Dave Lopes for the third out.

"My concern was that he might be getting stiff in the cold weather," Alston said, explaining his march to the mound after Sanguillen's base hit. "But I sure didn't want to take him out the way he was pitching."

Alston had Jim Brewer tuning up in the bullpen just in case.

"I told him I was loose," Brewer said later, "but it was so cold I couldn't tell for sure."

DODGER DOPE: Andy Messersmith (1-2) and Claude Osteen (1-2) will pitch today's doubleheader, against Steve Blass (0-1) and Dock Ellis (3-0) ...Ellis is only 2-7 in his career against the Dodgers. The first game begins at 10:05 a.m. (PDT) and will be televised by KTTV, Channel 11 ... Manny Mota was sidelined when his ailing right ankle stiffened but he says he'll play today.

Ferguson might be shifted to the outfield for one of the games today with Steve Yeager getting his first start behind the plate. Ferguson gunned down Cash trying to steal in he third inning . . . The Pirates got their first run when Cash singled, Steve Garvey dropped Al Oliver's fly ball and then Willie Davis threw wild back to the infield . . . "They didn't lose a thing because of the rainout," chilled one pressboxer . . . Ron Cey, at 5-10, had to leap to snare a hot liner by Bob Robertson in the seventh. "Why'd you jump?" kidded Tom Lasorda. "That ball would've got me right in the chest." Replied Cey: "That ball would've been THROUGH you."

Mets trip Braves, 4-2

ATLANTA (AP) — Ed Kranepool's two-run single highlighted a three-run eighth inning Saturday night as the New York Mets beat the Atlanta Braves, 4-2.

Felix Millan opened the inning with a bad hop single off shortstop Sonny Jackson's chest and Willie Mays followed with a double, chasing starter Ron Reed, whose record is now 0-4.

Rusty Staub then drew an intentional pass from reliever Roric Harrison before Kranepool delivered a ground ball single past second baseman Dave Johnson. Jerry Grote then singled home Staub.

Jets win 2; Nitehawks split pair

SAN DIEGO — Bob Todd hurled a one-hitter to give the Long Beach Nitehawks a 5-0 victory over the Lakewood Barons in the second round of play in the Navy tournament at Dolphin Field.

The victory took some of the sting out of the Nitehawks 1-0 loss to Las Vegas in the first round Saturday afternoon.

Max Mallett and Jerry Flory sparked the Nitehawks 12-hit attack with home runs in the second contest. Mallett's blow came in the fourth inning, followed by Flory's big hit in the seventh inning.

The Stevenson-Forster Jets of Lakewood became the tournament's only undefeated team with a pair of victories Saturday, 3-1 over Oceanside and 1-0 over Las Vegas.

The Las Vegas game ended in the bottom of the sixth when Jet Arky Smith was awarded home on an obstruction call at third and players from Las Vegas protested the call so vehemently they pushed the umpire involved in the call and he responded by calling the game in Lakewood's favor.

Ed Klecker got the victory, his second of the day after hurling a perfect game early Saturday morning against Oceanside, 3-0, retiring all 21 batters he faced and fanning 15.

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Murcer drove in five runs with a pair of two-run homers and a single and Matty Alou and Craig Nettles also homered with a man on as the New York Yankees trounced the Minnesota Twins, 11-3, Saturday.

Alou, who also had two doubles and a single, drilled his first two-base hit with two away in the opening inning off loser Jim Kaat, 3-1, and Murcer walloped his second home run of the season into the Yankee bullpen in right-center field. It was the Yankees' first home run in 53 innings.

Kelly one-man Chisox attack

BOSTON (UPI) — Pat Kelly hammered out three doubles and scored both Chicago runs Saturday to give the White Sox a 2-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Kelly opened the first and third innings with doubles to left and scored both times. He doubled to right in the fifth inning and walked in the seventh for a perfect 3-for-3 day that lifted his batting average to .486 on 17 hits in 35 at-bats.

Carlos May followed the game-opening double with a sacrifice bunt and Kelly scored on Dick Allen's infield out. Bill Melton rapped the second of his two doubles to score Kelly in the third.

The Red Sox, who stranded 16 runners, got their run in the bottom of the third when Carlton Fisk doubled home Luis Aparicio, who had walked.

Stan Bahnsen picked up his third win in four decisions for the White Sox, but needed help from Terry Forster after serving up a base hit to Orlando Cepeda with an out in the seventh.

Forster pulled out of a jam by striking out Danny Cater with the bases loaded and two out in the eighth.

Luis Tiant took the loss despite 11 strikeouts. He is 2-2 for the season.

Piniella hit stuns Tigers

DETROIT (AP) — Lou Piniella's two-out, bases-loaded double in the seventh inning off reliever Fred Scherman scored three runs to snap a 4-4 tie and give the Kansas City Royals a 7-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers Saturday.

The drive came after Tom Timmerman had gotten Amos Otis to hit into a force out at the plate and John Mayberry took a third strike from Scherman. John Hiller had filled the bases with a walk to Frank Healy, a double by Fred Patek and a walk to Cookie Rojas.

The Royals drove Detroit starter Mickey Lolich from the game with four runs in the sixth, two on a double by Otis, another on a double by Mayberry and one on a sacrifice fly by pinch-hitter Gail Hopkins.

Double dip for 49ers

Cal State University Los Angeles, batting for the top spot in the Pacific Coast Athletic Assn., set down Long Beach State twice Saturday at Blair Field, to almost end the 49er chances for the league title.

The Diablos swept the doubleheader 1-0 and 3-1.

Manny Estrada doubled home Bob Edwards in the eighth inning to help Edwards win a pitching duel from Ruben Patron of Long Beach. Edwards fanned five and allowed only three hits while Patron allowed four hits but walked three.

The 49ers had a man only to third base once in the game, with two outs in the third.

Charlie Bates drove in one run with a sacrifice fly and John Saunders' score drove in another run with a grounder to first in a two-run first inning for the second game win.

John McAllen, who gave up only five hits, picked up the win.

The 49ers, losers of three games in the past two days, play again today, meeting Cal State Dominguez Hills at 1:30.

USAC tickets Mosley for speeding at Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Mike Mosley of Clermont, Ind., momentarily owns the fastest practice time at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, which opened for practice Saturday under sunny but gusty and cool skies.

Mosley cranked out a lap of 185.682 m.p.h. on the first day of practice, but it cost him $25 to do it. USAC officials promptly fined him for exceeding the 180 mph limit imposed for the first several days of practice to let drivers get the feel of the course.

Gary Bettenhausen of Tinley Park, Ill., in a new British-made McLaren, won first on the track honors as he sorted out a car for Penske racing teammate Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala.

Allison, termed a rookie because he has never driven in the "500," easily passed the first three of the four-phase rookie's test, driving 10 laps around the famed two and a half mile oval at speeds of 150, 155 and 160 miles an hour.

Steve Krisiloff of Parsippany, N.J., who was beaten to the track by Bettenhausen when his engine died just after practice opened, Tom Bigelow of Whitewater, Wis., John Martin of Long Beach, Calif., and Art Pollard of Medford, Ore., also got their cars onto the track.

Vikings clinch 2nd half Metro crown

By JIM MANGAN
Staff Writer

Craig Gioia pitched a three hit, 12-strikeout game and Doug Matter provided the victory margin with a two-run home run as streaking Long Beach City College beat Pasadena, 4-2, Saturday on the losers' diamond.

The win, 14th in a row for the Vikings, gave them a 7-0 mark and assured them of at least a tie in second-half Metropolitan Conference play.

Gioia labored in the first half of the game as he gave up all his hits, three of his walks and wild pitched the second run home.

But the Viking workhorse, whose 88 innings of work is tops on the LBCC staff, settled down to retire 15 of the last 16 men he faced.

Nine of Gioia's strikeouts came in the last five innings as he tossed the sixth consecutive complete game for Joe Hicks' club.

Matter's game-winning blow cleared a 20-foot wall at the 320-foot mark in the fifth inning and scored John Sagehorn, who had doubled.

Sagehorn's hit had scored Bill Simpson, who got on with a single, and the Vikes struck swiftly at loser Craig Cornwell.

Long Beach entered the game with a three-game edge over four teams tied for second place, and can wrap up the second-half Metro flag with just one win in the coming week's action as the Vikings host Valley Tuesday, Pierce Thursday and finish at El Camino Saturday.

Cerritos wins title

Rick Bethke was tagged for four earned runs—the most this season—but teammate Mike Pagnotta drove in three runs to lead Cerritos College past Mt. San Antonio 7-5 and win the South Coast Conference title.

Bethke struck out nine but allowed 11 hits, his seasonal high. His teammates scored five times in the first two innings and clinched the victory, and title, when Pagnotta singled home Garry Maddox in the seventh inning.

'Back markers' eliminated

L&M initiates new format

By ALLEN WOLFE
Staff Writer

RIVERSIDE — In the terminology of auto racing a "back marker" isn't a fellow to be admired or emulated.

But unfortunately, their kind have been an inherent part of the sport ever since Barney Oldfield put on driving gloves. You know the type, the guy who qualifies 10 seconds off the pole-winning speed, lanquishes in the never-never land of 25th place and generally causes no end of grief to the leaders who have to navigate around him.

David Hobbs, a stoic Britisher from the hamlet of Upper Boddington, recalls the time during last year's L & M Continental Formula 5,000 race at Luguna Seca in Monterey when "I passed the same group of drivers every third or fourth lap. By the end of the day I must have lapped them at least 12 times. That's bloody dangerous and the odds of passing them 12 times without something happening or slowing you down is pretty low."

Well, David, apparently the Sports Car Club of America fathers must have heard you because they've taken a step toward alleviating the problem.

The "test bed" comes today when Riverside International Raceway introduces a new race format for the first round of the 1973 L & M Continental Grand Prix for Formula 5,000 cars — America's counterpart to the European Formula I world's drivers championship.

For the past two seasons, two heats of 38 laps each or 96.9 miles were run with the overall winner being determined on a composite point system. "The old system was a little confusing for the fans," admitted Riverside president Les Richter, citing the situation in 1971 when Frank Matich finished second in both heats, yet was declared the race winner on aggregate.

Today's L & M format calls for the 37-car-field to be divided in half for two 60-mile qualifying heats, scheduled for noon and 1 p.m. The first 10 finishers from each heat plus four "wild card" selections — nominated at the desecretion of the race steward and promoter (Richter) — comprise the streamlined 24-car lineup for the 100-mile championship feature race at 3 p.m.

The "wild card" option is insurance for race organizers in case one of the series' headliners — like defending champion Graham McRae of New Zealand — should encounter trouble in one of the preliminary heats and fail to qualify among the top 10. "It's a promoter's delight," smiled Richter.

In essence, the two 24-lap, 60.9-mile qualifying heats will weed-out the stragglers before they can reach the points-scoring 40-lap, 101.6-mile feature over Riverside's 2.54-mile "short course." Last year up to 35 cars were eligible to start both championship heats and the disparity between Hobbs' pole-winning time of one minute, 15.57 seconds and that of the last place car was a full 14.51 seconds!

The caliber of driving talent in the series has raised the level of competition to its highest point in seven years, primarily due to a healthy prize fund of $535,000 for nine events, an increase of $170,000 over last year.

Newcomers to the L & M this year include such world-class drivers as

Sikes, Dickson lead at Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Husky, hard-hitting Dan Sikes birdied the two par-five holes on his way to a 68 that lifted the 42-year-old veteran into a tie for the lead in the wind-whipped third round of the $150,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic Saturday.

Sikes, who lost his spot as an exempt player last year for the first time in a decade, shouldered his way into a tie with Bob Dickson with a 54-hole total of 206, four under par on the 6,932-yard Preston Trail Golf Club course.

The lanky Dickson, the second-round leader, had to do some remarkable scrambling to salvage a one-over-par 71 and a share of the top spot going into today's final round in the chase for the $30,000 first prize.

Bert Yancey was the only other man in the surviving field of 86 able to crack par-210 for three trips over the long, lush layout that played tougher than usual when the wind shifted 180 degrees. Yancey had a 71 for 209, one under.

The group at par included Australian Bruce Crampton, Tom Weiskopf, Lanny Wadkins, Larry Hinson, Bob Smith, Leonard Thompson, Bert Greene and Rod Curl.

Arnold Palmer continued to have trouble with his putting but managed a 71 and still was in contention at 212.

"I've only had four birdies in three rounds," Palmer said. "That's almost unbelieveable. I'd like to have a total of 15 birdies — 11 of them tomorrow."

Orville Moody had the best round of the day, a remarkable 66 that included an eagle-three, but the tricky, changeable wind raised havoc with the rest of the field and sent two players packing.

Former PGA champion Bob Rosburg withdrew after a whopping 82.

Dave Hill, standing on the 10th tee, pumped a couple of shots of bounds, said a polite goodbye to the gallery and walked to the clubhouse.

Celtics-Knicks: Round 7

Combined news services

BOSTON — New York, smarting from two consecutive losses, and Boston meet in a seventh game showdown today for the National Basketball Assn.'s Eastern championship.

With the best-of-seven series tied at three games apiece, the Knicks and the Celtics will match muscles and scoring power in a nationally televised engagement (Channel 7, 11 a.m.) at Boston Garden.

The Celtics, all but written off Sunday when they dropped a double overtime, 117-110, decision to fall behind three games to one, regained the home court advantage when they stunned the Knicks, 110-100, Friday night at Madison Square Garden.

The Celtics were greeted by more than 1,000 cheering fans as they reached Logan Airport about 2 a.m. Saturday. Later in the day more than 5,000 people jammed Boston Garden in search of tickets for game No. 7.

"There's no way we're supposed to lose at home," Celtics' guard Don Chaney said. "We've come too far for that."

The Celtics moved back into contention in the series on the strength of what John Havlicek called "the best fourth quarter we've had in a long time."

Boston outscored New York 28-18 in the final period Friday night after pulling into an 82-82 tie after three quarters.

Coach Tom Heinsohn had drilled the need for a superior fourth quarter effort into the Celtics during a lengthy practice session on Thursday. Boston blew a 16-point lead last Sunday when it lost, and narrowly escaped on Wednesday with a one-point win after losing a 10-point advantage in the last period.

"We've got to have a big fourth quarter," Heinsohn chided the Celtics during that workout. "We've got to get the lead and hang onto it in the fourth quarter."

Friday the Celtics reeled off 12 successive points in the fourth quarter to turn a 96-94 deficit into a 106-96 lead.

The Celtics also hope for more help from Havlicek, the team's captain and leading scorer until he suffered a painful right shoulder injury in the third game. The 11-year veteran missed the fourth game, but has played the last two with virtually one hand.

"The arm was about five per cent better Friday night and it should be improved another five per cent for this big one," Havlicek said.

"It should be one hell of a game," said New York guard Walt Frazier, who scored 29 points in a losing cause Friday night.

Pacers take 1-0 lead

Indiana win disputed

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Freddie Lewis scored on a driving jump shot with 17 seconds left in overtime to give the Indiana Pacers a disputed 111-107 victory over the Kentucky Colonels and a 1-0 lead in their best-of-seven series for the American Basketball Assn. championship.

Kentucky had contended it won the game in regulation time on a shot by guard Jimmy O'Brien, making the score 102-100, but the referees ruled the shot came after the 30-second clock had expired.

Lewis, who finished with 29 points, added two free throws with one second left to cap the scoring.

Dan Issel of Kentucky led all scorers with 33 points.

Kentucky had rallied from a 19-point first-quarter deficit to go ahead midway in the third period and the Colonels kept the lead most of the rest of the way.

O'Brien's disputed shot came with 35 seconds remaining in regulation time, a jumper from the left corner.

However, after a five-minute conference at the scorer's table, the shot was disallowed.

Kentucky insisted that a previous shot had hit the rim, which would have started the 30-second clock again. But a replay of the shot showed that the ball had hit the backboard but not the rim.

Indiana pivotman Mel Daniels had 20 points and 14 rebounds while Issel topped the rebounders with 20.

Gilmore contributed 16 rebounds while Louie Dampier had 19 points for Kentucky.

'rentice's par good for lead

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Consistent Joan Prentice, cheered on by hometown fans, took the second round lead Saturday in the Birmingham Classic LPGA tournament by one stroke over fast-charging Donna Caponi Young, who canned seven birdie putts using her late father's putter.

Miss Prentice, a Birmingham native now living in Miami, shot a par 72 in swirling winds Saturday over the 6,067-yard Green Valley Country Club course, giving her a 36-hole total of one-under-par 143.

Mrs. Young, of North Hollywood, suffered five bogeys, finishing with only a 70 despite the seven birdies for a 144 total.

Sandra Palmer, who led after the first round with a 70, ballooned to a 76 Saturday and defending champion Betty Burfeindy, who opened with a 71, slumped to a 75. Their 36-hole totals of 146 put them in a third place tie with Chako Higuchi, Jan Ferraris, Clifford Ann Creed and Mary Mills.

Grouped at 147 were Judy Rankin, Jane Blalock and Sandra Haynie.

Kathy Whitworth, the LPGA's leading money winner this year with $37,919, shot a 77, giving her a 150 total.

Aussie holds lead in Chuichi golf

NAGOYA, Japan (AP) — Australian Graham Marsh shot a three-under-par 67 Saturday and took a one-stroke lead with a three-round total of 200 in the $113,000 Chunichi Crowns International Golf Tournament.

Japan's Masashi (Jumbo) Lzaki, who had led after rounds of 64 and 68 on the 6,530-yard, par 70 Wago Country Club course, slumped to a 71 and dropped to a fourth-place tie with Ireneo Legaspi of the Philippines at 203. Legaspi shot a 67 Saturday.

Panatta, Nastase in Madrid finals

MADRID (UPI) — Adriano Panatta of Italy and Ilie Nastase of Romania Saturday qualified for today's finals of the Madrid Open tennis championships.

Panatta beat Manuel Orantes when Spain's top-ranked player retired because of a pulled muscle. Panatta was leading 6-4, 4-3. Nastase defeated Patrick Proisy of France, 6-2.

Scottish title

EDINBURGH ¼ — Celtic defeated Hibernian 3-0 Saturday to win the Scottish soccer championship for the eighth year in a row.

49er golfers win Sun Devil tourney

SCOTTSDALE, Arizona (Special) — Long Beach State upset four of the country's top ten collegiate golf teams by winning the Sun Devil-Thunderbird tournament at McCormick Ranch.

The 49ers finished the final round with a team total of 1,097. Oklahoma State, the country's No. 3 rated team, was second with 1,102, followed by Brigham Young with 1,107, New Mexico with 1,111 and host Arizona State with 1,121.

Lance Suzuki of BYU took the individual title with a one-under par 215. His second-round 67 was a championship course record.

Mike Krantz of Long Beach State finished second at 217, while teammate Beau Baugh deadlocked three others for third at 218. Also finishing third were Don Bliss of Oklahoma State, Paul Simson of New Mexico and Kevin Bench of Air Force.

Tied for seventh at 219 were Mike Reehl of Long Beach State, Dennis Gorelick of New Mexico and George Kelley of Colorado

Eyes of Texas all at Drake

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Texas and Texas Southern each wound up with three baton titles, three meet records were shattered and two tied in Saturday's closing session of the 64th Drake Relays.

Mike McClure of Middle Tennessee bounced to a record 53-7 in the triple jump for the outstanding individual performance on the 21-event windup program watched by a capacity 18,000 under murky skies at Drake Stadium.

Texas' Longhorns, who won the university division two-mile and 880 relays in Friday's opening session, triumphed in the day's closing mile relay to complete a sweep of that event in the Texas-Kansas-Drake Midland series.

Other record breakers Saturday were the Kansas 480-yard shuttle hurdles unit with a 56.1 victory, and Kansas State's 440-yard relay triumph at 39.8 in the university division.

The college 440 relay mark was matched by victorious Alcorn A&M in 39.9, and Olympic hurdle champion Rod Milburn of Southern University won a third successive Drake 120 high hurdles crown by matching his meet record of 13.5 against a stiff breeze.

Villanova again top Penn team

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Villanova wiped out Bowling Green's unprecedented effort to win the four mile relay at two major meets in two days, and won the two mile event to record a triple at the 79th annual Penn Relays Saturday at Franklin Field.

A Villanova quartet of Eammon Coghlan, Brian McElroy, Ken Schappert and John Hartnett won by some 120 yards over a listless Bowling Green unit in the four mile. The winning Wildcats were clocked in 16:31.7.

Hartnett was timed in 4:03.7, Dave Wottle at 4:06.8 for Bowling Green which was trying for back-to-back victories after setting a meet record at the Drake Relays Friday with a clocking of 16:19.6. Its time Saturday was 16:45.9.

Less than an hour later, McElroy, Schappert and Hartnett joined Tom Gregan to beat Tennessee in the two mile by 25 yards.

Schappert ran an anchor leg of 1:49.2 as he increased the Villanova lead over Tennessee's Willie Thomas, the NCAA 800 champion. Villanova's winning time was 7:25.7, Tennessee at 7:29.4.

Villanova's other relay triumph in a meet it has dominated for the past decade came in Friday's distance medley.

Steve Smith of the Pacific Coast Club won the pole vault at 17 feet, completing his two day double that had him winning Friday at Drake with a height of 17-1¼. It was the 20th meet in a row Smith has cleared 17 feet.

Bye Bye Max wins Alamitos fifth-grander

Bye Bye Max, who recorded the first two-minute mile in Los Alamitos harness history last year, rallied on the outside to nip heavily favored Sir Dalrae Saturday night in the $54,100 Golden Bear Pacing Championship.

After several looks at the photo finish, the placing judges finally awarded the victory to Bye Bye Max, who stopped the timer in 1:59 1/5 for the ninth two-minute mile of the meeting and the 10th of alltime.

Flying Dream N, a 70-1 shot, was third and track record-holder Windy Way fourth in the field of seven.

Bye Bye Max, who defeated Sir Dalrae in his first start of the meeting on March 17 returned $21.80 $4.40 and $3.20 across the board. Sir Dalrae, the 2-5 favorite, paid $2.20 to place and $2.10 to show. Flying Dream N paid $4.80 to show.

Bye Bye Max, who had suffered three defeats at the hand of Sir Dalrae since his earlier victory, came his final half in better than 57 3/5 to overtake the tiring favorite in the last possible stride.

Freedom Now, with easterner Alan Meyer at the controls, took the early lead in a leisurely 30 and hit the half in 1:01 3/5.

Jim Dennis, in sixth with the favorite past the stands the first time, moved out to attack the leader and in almost the same motion, Bye Bye Max with Jack Bailey made his move following Sir Dalrae.

Sir Dalrae, parked to the three-quarter pole before finally getting the lead, opened up two lengths at the top of the stretch and looked all over a winner until Bye Bye Max made his desperate final surge.

Derby prep won by Shecky

LOUISVILLE (UPI) — Shecky Greene, displaying the speed that carried him to three stakes victories in Florida, outran six rivals in the $10,000 Stepping Stone Purse on the opening of Churchill Downs Saturday, but the flashy colt remained a doubtful starter for the 99th Kentucky Derby in a week's time.

Going to the front at the start of the seven furlong race, the three-year-old colt stayed there the rest of the way to win by five lengths. Restless Jet, a more likely starter in the first of the Triple Crown races, finished with a strong run through the home stretch to take second place with Cari County third.

Restless Jet, winner of the Everglade Stakes at Hialeah Park, continued on after the finish to complete a mile in 1:37 in preparation for the Kentucky Derby. Pvt. Smiles was fourth, followed by Knightly Dawn, Twice A Prince and Trip Stop, the only starter who was not nominated for the Derby.

This was the 19th running of the Stepping Stone and only two of its winners, Swaps in 1955 and Majestic Prince in 1969, went on to win the Kentucky Derby.

In the $20,000-added Latroienne Stakes, La Prevoyante, the 1972 2-year-old filly champion, just lasted to win by a head over the fast-closing Old Goldie. Coraggioso was third.

PIMLICO—MO BAY ($8.60) spoiled the return of 1972 Preakness winner BEE BEE BEE with a wire-to-wire victory in the $30,700 Riggs Handicap. TOMMY LEE rode the winner as BEE BEE BEE tired in his first start since last July and faded to sixth.

ARLINGTON—SUPER SAIL ($7.80) forged to the lead near the stretch turn and went on to win the $55,900 Governor's Cup Handicap by two and ¾ lengths. Ridden by DON MACBETH, the winner set a track record of 1:42 2/5 for the mile and 1 16.

AQUEDUCT—POKER NIGHT ($11), the only three-year-old in the field, took the lead on the final turn and drew out to win the $55,700 Top Flight Handicap for fillies and mares. The winner carried 110 pounds, including BOBBY WOODHOUSE over the mile and ⅛ in 1:48 1/5.

GARDEN STATE—ARBEES BOY ($24.80), lightly regarded at 11-1 and carrying light weight of 108 pounds, charged from fourth at the top of the stretch to win the $25,000sadded Delaware Valley Handicap. GEORGE PATTERSON guided the winner, timed in 1:48 for the mile and 116 on a muddy track.

GULFSTREAM—REBELLIOUS MISS ($20.80) closed strongly to defeat I'M ADORABLE in the Penultimate Purse. The track closes Monday and the summer season opens at Calder a week later.

Arizona St. rips UTEP

EL PASO (UPI) — Dick Harris hit a grand slam home run and knocked in four other runs to lead powerful Arizona State to 17-2 and 13-3 victories over Texas-El Paso Saturday in a Western Athletic Conference doubleheader.

ASU smashed 22 hits in the first game, with all eight starters getting at least one hit. Bump Wills hit a solo homer and Paul Moskau chipped in three RBIs in that game on a double and sacrifice fly.

Ancient Title wins — barely

Ancient Title, a 3-year-old never beaten at seven furlongs, won again at that distance Saturday in the $55,050 Inglewood Stakes at Hollywood Park when he barely held off a finishing drive by Groshawk.

The 6-5 favorite among the eight sophomores in the sprint, Ancient Title took the lead going into the turn for home when he went past Pontosie and drew out apparently headed for an easy victory until Groshawk, ridden by Bill Shoemaker, made his bid.

Groshawk passed Pontosie and was drawing steadily up on Ancient Title but his bid fell a head short.

The son of Gummo and Hi Little Girl went the seven furlongs in 1:21 seconds, carrying 122 pounds with Chilean jockey Fernando Toro aboard. Groshawk shared the high weight at 122 while Pontoise with Don Pierce up carried low weight of 114.

Ancient Title paid $4.20, $3, and $2.20. Groshawk returned $5.20 and $3.20, and Pontoise, $2.60.

Ancient Title at seven furlongs had won the Sunny, Slope-Skates at Santa Anita's Oak Tree meeting, plus the Cal Breeders' and the San vicente during the regular Santa Anita meeting. In his latest outing, however, he finished fourth, eight lengths behind the winning Sham in 1 ⅛ mile Santa Anita Derby.

Groshawk proved the western star among the 2-year-olds of 1972 but was only fifth in each of this last three outings at Santa Anita.

Ancient Title collected $32,550 for his owner, Mrs. Ethel Kirkland.

Second place was worth $10,000 to Mr. and Mrs. Quinn Martin's Groshawk.

The 3-year-old runners were among those remaining in the West while the top horses campaigned in the East, looking forward to next week's Kentucky Derby.

Although this was listed as the 33rd running of the Inglewood Stakes, it formerly was 1 a-16 miles for older horses. The reshuffling of Hollywood Park's 1973 1973 schedule turned it into a sprint for 3-year-olds.

Sunday racing continues tody with the feature this time, the Caballero Handcap, a $35,000-added mile race for older horses.

A Saturday crowd of 37,222 watched the duel between Ancient Title and Groshawk.

although the skies were overcast Saturday and there were drizzles in the morning, the track was fast for the nine-race program.

Crowley opening day crowd 8,978

BISHOP (Special)—Crowley Lake should be good fishing the rest of the season. This is one year it didn't get fished out on opening day.

Dawn arrived early Saturday in the High Sierras on the first day of the Inyo-Mono County trout season, but many of the anglers who fished there in past years failed to show. Those who did were greeted by calm, cold weather and a flat lake made for perfect trolling.

Art Galyean of Glendale was the first to show at the cleaning racks with his limit of seven trout, approximately, two hours after the bugs were first set into the water at 4:35 a.m.

The Los Angeles City Recreation and Park Department, which supervises fishing at Lake Crowley, said there were 1,228 boats in the water, compared with 1,805 last year, a drop of about 30 per cent. The department counted 4,298 anglers on the boats and 4,680 on the shoreline.

Department of Fish and Game biologists on duty estimated the average catch at about four trout per angler, the average weight a little less than ¾ of a pound and the average length just under a foot.

SOMETHING FOR ALL IN REGATTA OF CHAMPIONS

The Long Beach Boat and Ski Club will present its fifth Regatta of Champions at the Long Beach Marine Stadium, starting at noon today.

This year's competition will be different in that the LBBSC will present circle races, drag races, matches between jet boats and those funny little two-man Crackerboxes that always attract so much attention. Actually, they are not much longer than bathtubs although a bit wider.

There will be a $4,000 prize fund for the winners.

The sponsoring club is indeed fortunate to have two of the most famous drag racers in the west — Larry Hill and Larry Schwabenland. Hill has clocked the fastest time in all history — 202.46 mph. — set at the Marine Stadium here in 1971. The boat was Mr. Ed, a Sanger hydro.

Schwabenland, like Hill a resident of Fresno, holds the top flatbottom mark of 155.17 mph. in his Joker's Wild, and has come close to Hill's mark of 200 in his other boat, Climax.

Thirty-two boats will compete in the preliminary heats for the circle race, with eight to be selected for the final event.

There will be a drawing for an 18-foot outboard, and all the proceeds will go to the Danny Churchill Hospital Fund. Churchill was badly hurt at the Marine Stadium here last October. Admission price is $4, with children under 12 free.

DONNELL CULPEPPER

Not many marlin, but fun for kids

In numbers of fish caught and kept or caught and released, it wasn't the best trip that the Southern California Tuna Club has ever had, but in genuine fun, it was a classic for the kids when the SCTC held its annual father-son-daughter trip to Rancho Buena Vista, Baja Calif., in the Easter vacation period.

Six marlin were caught, but the emphasis this year was on the smaller fish, such as yellowtail, dorado (dolphinfish), red snappers and numerous other species. Some of the adults were absolutely skunked, which is just as well if their children or grandchildren got chances to fight fish.

The Pete Cornell family had some exciting moments, with Chris, 12, taking a marlin, two dolphinfish and a hammerhead shark. Peter Cornell got a marlin and one dolphinfish.

Bill Williams, who doubled for me with the notebook, admitted that he never got a nibble, but his son, Drew, 14, got a dolphinfish. Drew was ready with a tag just in case he hooked and brought a marlin alongside, but that never happened. He got his first marlin last year and resolved that all future billfish would be tagged and released.

Another Williams, young Craig, son of George, got a marlin, but dad and Craig's brother, George Jr. didn't connect with any billfish.

OTHERS WHO TOOK MARLIN were Denise Galla, who also hooked a dolphinfish; Thornton Ibbetson, the trip chairman, and Joe Balon. Tell Tuffli, who usually does a good job with rod and reel, was blanked, but his daughter, Virginia Griffin, who is no kid, got a dolphinfish. Bill Williams witnessed that battle and said that it was one of the greatest he's ever seen. All of which proves something that I've always said, namely that a dolphinfish on light tackle can be one of the greatest sights you'd ever hope to see.

Julia and Erika Ibbetson got bottom fish; David Obenauer, a yellowtail; Stephen Southgate, a yellowtail; Richard Moore, dolphinfish; Bruce and Brian Williams, sons of Kenneth, got dolphinfish; Terry Lee Davis, 11, five cabrillo and a red snapper; June Ortmann, 5, red snapper; Jim McCullough and Jule Blymeir, yellowtail for each.

Bill Williams reported that the dolphinfish averaged 25 to 35 pounds and the marlin were small, mostly from 100 to 120 pounds. Bill made a trip to all the resorts at the tip of Baja and the story was the same everywhere: Very few marlin.

One resort operator told Bill that he had information that the Japanese long-lines fishermen had taken 76,000 fish from the Baja area. That's a big number, and if the informant has proof, he should submit it to the federal government.

IF SOMEBODY COMES TAPPING on your door and asking for donations to the Danny Churchill Relief Fund, the Danny Churchill Hospital Fund or even the MAD DASH, and provided he or she shows the proper credentials and you feel that you can help, it would be mighty important that you do so.

The MAD DASH next Friday entails an offshore skiing attempt of Rick Cowles and Mike Bemis to go all the way from Long Beach to Ensenada (180 miles). Fred Dorfman is chairman of the event, which was formulated to raise more money for Danny Churchill, the speed skier who was badly injured last October at the Marine Stadium.

Danny spent weeks in intensive care at Community Hospital here, then more time at UCLA Medical Center and later at a private rest home. His hospital and doctor bills were high into the five-figure mark and skiers in this area have been trying all kinds of methods to help him. Frankly, it will take many events to help him.

Ed DeLong, one of the popular offshore racers, is scheduled to pull the skiers behind his boat, a 24-foot Spectra, powered by twin 454-cubic-inch engines.

The idea of the MAD DASH is to get sponsors from a door-to-door campaign with each donor getting his name on the mileage list. Headquarters of MAD DASH are at Cooperwood's Men's Store, 5368 E. 2nd St., Belmont Shore. Donations may be sent to that address if you wish to help.

OUTDOOR MINIS — The 1973-74 officers have taken over their duties in the Long Beach Women's Casting Club, which has its meetings in the Long Beach Casting Club in Recreation Park even though it is not an auxiliary of that club, as such. The new slate is composed of Ethel Thomas, president; Frances Janda, first vice president; Lois Dreher, second vice president; Floriza Martinez, secretary; Blanche Tarbe, treasurer; Linda Hacker, pool captain.

Motor Boating and Sailing Books has put another of its famous guide series on the market. This time, it is John Duffett's "Modern Marine Maintenance," at $6.95. It definitely is a book for sailors and mariners and it doesn't matter whether you sail or use power because it is a textbook for both. If you don't find it on the book shelves, you can get it from MBS Books, 224 W. 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10019.

Bushnell Optical Company, a division of Bausch & Lomb, with headquarters in Pasadena, announces the Binocadio Pak, special sports binoculars with built-in AM radio. Bushnell says it is the ultimate for sports fans, allowing them to see the closeups while the radio announcer fills them in with player's numerals, background information and statistics. The radio may be played through the built-in speaker or through plug-in earphone jack.

Rams' highlight film available

The Rams' memories of 1972 — some bitter, a few sweet — and their hopes for a return to respectability are packaged into their '72 highlights film, now available for free 24-hour loan through the Independent, Press-Telegram.

Groups interested in borrowing the 30-minute sound and color film may contact the promotion department of the newspaper.

Forest Service cracking down

Just too many backpackers

By RAY GIBE

This is a heck of a way to discuss backpacking, but let's face it... TODAY THERE ARE TOO MANY BACKPACKERS.

Restrictions by the U.S. Forest Service will go in effect about the first of May. Wilderness areas involved in Southern California will be San Gorgonio, San Jacinto and the San Gabriels. Limited permits will be issued—figures are not available at this time.

Over-use and the result of environmental impact has brought this about. You can read the handwriting on the wall as Northern California wilderness areas in the near future will face similar restrictions. Over the past years there have been too many "slob" backpackers. Campgrounds at trail heads and in the back country show how growing trees have been stripped, needless fire rings have been built and trash dumped instead of being carried out.

For example: Bullfrog Lake, with a trail head at Onion Valley, 15 miles west of Independence and over Kearsarge Pass in a wilderness area, has been closed to camping for at least six years. Twenty tons of trash were hauled out in this area alone. The high country has a very short growing season. It takes years for high mountain meadows to recover from the impact of hordes of backpackers and animal pack trains. Tin foil will not burn and cans will not rust anymore, enough to disintegrate by burying. The rule is, when you go out flatten the cans and carry your residue back out with you.

A more pleasant subject: Dave Hood, a college professor of history at Long Beach State University, is a "Gung Ho" backpacker. He is a Scoutmaster also. Backpacking is his vocation... teaching his hobby. During Easter vacation he took some scouts to Joshua Tree National Monument. There is a camping limit of ten persons per night in each of the four primitive trail camps and reservations are recommended at all times. Tags are issued to attach to packs indicating the date and camp site. His was a two-day hike and covered about 12 miles. Spring in this area is the desert at its best.

After this warmup he took three older scouts to the High Sierra to get a taste of hiking and camping in all kinds of weather. The weather was there alright. Seven miles out of Independence, heading for Onion Valley, five foot snow drifts on the road halted progress by car. So what do you do? You get out, put on your packs and slog eight miles through snow. Needless to say, Dave and his scouts had Onion Valley to themselves.

The elevation here is 9,000 feet. Upon making camp in the snow it is very cozy to stack four in a three-man tent, but at least you keep warm. The boys were amazed that they could dip water out of Independence Creek in a pail but 15 minutes later it would be frozen. Food will usually freeze or congeal, hot off a backpack stove, before you can eat it. Nevertheless it was an enjo

Rape—an issue of concern

By CAROL IVY
Staff Writer

Rape as a crime is as old as human passion.

But only in recent years has forcible rape and its treatment by law enforcement agencies and the public in general become an area of concern for those interested in women's rights and their equality before the law.

One of this country's largest feminist groups, the National Organization for Women (NOW), has adopted an official policy statement on rape. In effect, it alleges that rape victims are met with disbelief and derision when attempting to report rape to police and that the conventional method of investigation is "to pry into the private life of the victim in order to excuse the act committed."

It goes on to say that when a rape case is prosecuted in court the victim's personal lifestyle "is on trial with attendant publicity" and that "the crime of rape as legally defined treats women as a separate class."

Therefore, NOW believes rape as a crime should be redefined as felonious assault and that women should "work against humiliating treatment of rape victims" by various legal personnel as well as by society as a whole. NOW reccomends that rape investigations be conducted by female rather than male investigators.

RIANE EISLER, a female attorney in private practice in Westwood, who teaches classes on the legal and social status of women at Immaculate Heart College, UCLA and USC, expands on the feminist views when she says that "sexism in our society is at the root of rape-related problems. Our language of love is a language of male conquests. Laws dealing with sex-connected crimes have been formulated by men and are administered mainly by men. We are a totally male-dominated society and rape is no exception."

Ms. Eisler, who specializes in family law, says that in the courtroom women who are victims of forcible rape often are treated as criminals themselves and asked about previous sexual experiences —incidents totally unrelated to the crime.

"I've seen it happen. The rape victim is made to appear immoral by the defense attorney. The contention is that because she was dressed provocatively, whatever that means, she was just asking to be raped. Women should have the freedom to dress any way they choose without having to fear walking down a city street.

"Our male-oriented lifestyle has made rape almost attractive. We are a society of violence and force is a vital part of us. Anger is almost sexual in nature. Many men actually believe—because they have been programmed to believe—that women want force, that they want to be raped. Again because of conditioning, there undoubtedly are women who want to be raped. They have been taught that male dominance is an important factor in sex."

Ms. Eisler, founder of the Women's Center Legal Program in Los Angeles, agrees that rape probably should be prosecuted as felonious assault, rather than a separately classified crime.

"One progressive step this state has taken is the elimination of the necessity for corroborative evidence in rape prosecution. Formerly, unless a woman was badly beaten, her clothing torn, there wasn't much chance for successful prosecution. The men who enforce the laws find it difficult to believe a woman doesn't submit willingly to sex, unless she has scars to prove it."

A SURVEY taken in 1970 by an independent survey firm in Los Angeles, sought answers to questions about rape attitudes from police officials in 128 U.S. cities. Of the 63 who responded, most felt ultrashort skirts and other brief items of modern feminine apparel have contributed to the sharp rise in forcible rapes in recent years. Those participating in the survey were overwhelmingly of the opinion that girls who wear sexy clothes are asking for trouble. Ninety-eight per cent of those polled, while acknowledging that many sex crimes are committed by mentally twisted people for motives that only a psychiatrist can begin to understand, agreed that perfectly normal but emotionally immature boys sometimes are goaded into criminal attacks by the arousal resulting from some styles of dress.

Reinforcing this attitude of placing blame for rape on women victims is noted psychiatrist Dr.

FIRST IN ARAB WORLD

Elite force of police women is emerging

By ALI MAHMOUD
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT — Six shapely police recruits, quick on the draw and deadly with a karate chop, are the latest apostles of women's lib in the Arab world.

Lebanon's Security Chief, Col. Antoine Dahdah, says the girls are the first members of a force which eventually will number 500.

They are not the first women police in the Arab world. Jordan and Bahrein have them on traffic and clerical duties. But the Lebanese girls will handle "more sophisticated" work, says Dahdah.

All are university graduates with law degrees, they carry the rank of lieutenant and will complete their training at Britain's Scotland Yard. All speak Arabic, French and English.

Until they fly to London, they are becoming well-versed in the arts of self-defense, including pistol shooting, judo and karate.

"We intend to equip them to face any eventuality, no matter how tough that may be," said Dahdah.

"IN SEVERAL aspects of security, women can be more useful than men," said Dahdah's assistant, Ziad Sultan. And he didn't mean in the spy world of latter day Mata Hari's.

"They will undertake internal intelligence duties but I don't think we'll be using them for counter-espionage," he said in an interview.

The girls are 100 per cent in agreement with the view that they are as effective as men.

"This is a challenge and we've accepted it," said dark-eyed Heyam Abu-Saad. "Men may have more muscles, but we have brains, patience and feminine intuition."

"I'm confident we are going to make a success of this," said 25-year-old Heyam Sabella, who, in her spare time, is working for a master's degree in law.

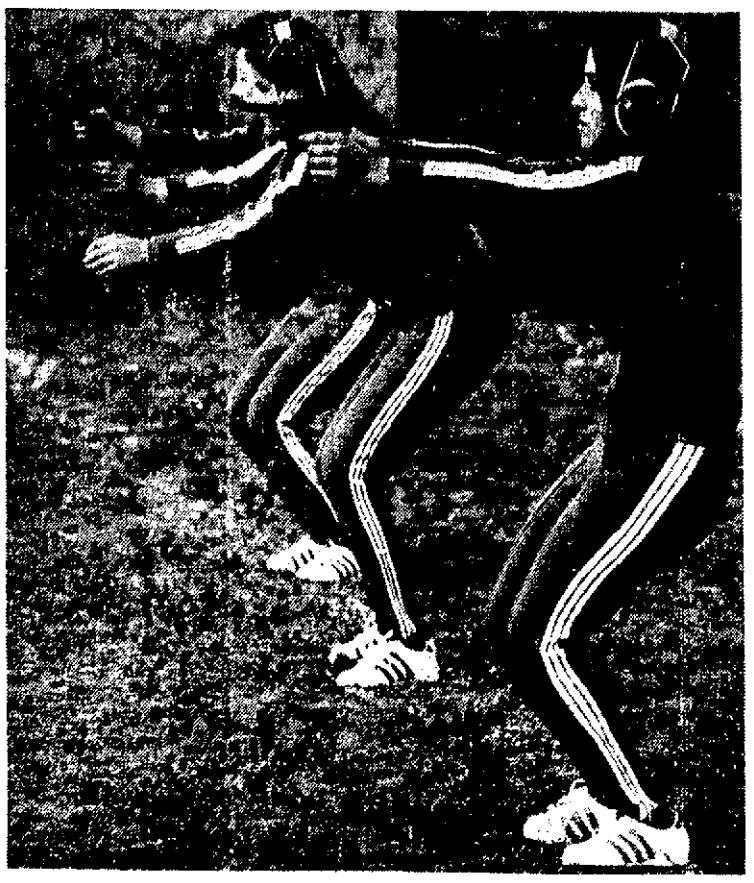

"We will show Lebanon and the world that women are as efficient as men — only more so."

After a session of target practice, in sky blue track suits, the girls chatted about their new job.

"I CAN KNOCK a man down, but I hope I never have to resort to violence," remarked Yasmin Ismail. "I think our job is to give help, not to oppress. I hope I can get wrongdoers to respect the law by addressing their minds and emotions."

The rigors of their training have so far done nothing to detract from their feminine charms or feminine aspirations.

"Of course, I want to marry an intelligent man and have children," said Rabiya Khiyami, "but this job means we are getting rid of old taboos and entering the 20th century like the women of other advanced countries."

WOMEN RECRUITS for elite Beirut police force practice pistol shooting on target range. The six are the first of 500. All are quick on the draw, deadly with a karate chop and 100 per cent sure they are as effective as men, only more so.

Rape in our society engendered by sexism

Eric Berne, author of the best-selling "Games People Play."

A specialist in the field of human relationships, Berne devoted a portion of his chapter on sexual games to a game he calls "rapo."

He describes it as an encounter between a man and a woman and says the game might more politely be called "kiss off" or "indignation" in its milder forms.

In a less serious way, a woman signals she is available and gets pleasure from the man's pursuit (here the idea that a woman "asks for it.") As soon as the man has committed himself, says Berne, the game is over for the woman.

More seriously, "rapo" can be a vicious game, Berne explains, leading to murder, suicide or the courtroom. The woman leads the man into compromising physical contact and then claims he has made a criminal assault or done her irreparable physical damage. In what feminists would label a chauvinist attitude, Berne throws all blame for rape on the woman and says that in its most cynical form, she actually may allow the man to complete the sexual act so that she gets "enjoyment" before confronting him.

One police officer who must deal with rape as an everyday occurence is Sgt. Vern Racobs, head of the felony morals detail, Long Beach Police Department. He disagrees strongly with feminist charges of indifference or disbelief on the part of law enforcement and says police in general are sympathetic to rape victims.

"And don't think a woman's sexual background has much to do with a rape charge. It certainly is helpful in prosecuting if the victim is an obviously innocent type. For example, we handled a case involving the rape of a church organist. No problem there. But we've also got convictions on the rapes of girls some people might label pretty shady. Not too long ago, the girls who were beaten up and raped by the motorcycle gang members are a case in point. Sure, they went willingly with those guys, but they certainly didn't deserve the treatment they got. They were in bad shape when the guys got through with them and just because they went along in the first place made no difference in the final outcome of the case."

Another difficulty is delays in reporting rapes. "The essence of rape as a crime lies in the outrage of the victim. If we can get women to report incidents right away, we've got solid cases. But too many women, for whatever reasons, wait around and then come see us days or even weeks later. The delays greatly reduce their credibility.

"When we look for a rape suspect, we must build on bits and pieces. No matter how unpleasant it might be for the victim, we need all the details we can get."

WORKING closely with police are Long Beach's two police surgeons, Drs. Ralph Simonian and George Bryant, who are under contract with the city and called on to treat crime victims. Medical treatment generally is administered in the emergency room at St. Mary's Hospital, which holds the official police contract.

"Usually we see rape victims immediately after the crime," explains Dr. Simonian. "A woman calls in a rape report from her home or wherever she was attacked and the police call us. We give the victim a pelvic exam and take vaginal smears and administer a tranquilizer if necessary. Normally we see the victim just once and recommend she see her personal physician for further treatment. He may recommend psychological counseling.

"Our reports, which indicate the presence or lack of sperm in samplings, go to the police. The report can be submitted as evidence during the trial of a rape suspect."

Simonian says a negative sperm count does not necessarily indicate a woman was not raped. "Some women don't call the police immediately. They might douche first, which means there would be no evidence of sperm in our samplings. So lack of sperm is not necessarily a valid defense."

Sometimes, Simonian says, he will not see a victim until several days after the rape has been committed. "This may occur for any one of several reasons. Some girls do not even realize they have been raped until some time later. This may be hard to believe, but it's true. I had a young girl call me just the other morning after the police had referred her to me. She was in a panic and wanted to know if I could tell if she had been raped a few days earlier. She said a man had broken into her parent's home and attacked her. She had been in such a state of shock that it took her several days to realize what might have happened.

"A woman might not want to file a police report because she's afraid — afraid of questions from cops and doctors and afraid to face her attacker on the witness stand. It can be quite a hassle and many women would rather not go through it."

Simonian says he always asks a victim if she is taking birth control pills and when her last menstrual period occurred. "I suggest she check with her own doctor about having a pregnancy test as soon as it's feasible. Many victims don't consider that possibility until it has become a reality."

A FEMINIST GROUP in Berkeley has suggested that emergency rooms offer shower facilities to rape victims, with the idea that they need more than just treatment of physical wounds. But Simonian calls this impractical.

"I'm all for immediate trauma counseling and referral to agencies that can offer any additional psychological help, but if we started offering showers to rape victims, we'd have to make them available to all emergency cases—accidents, whatever. It wouldn't work. I believe emergency rooms offer efficient, effective service to rape victims. A few years ago the city proposed that to cut costs we should eliminate emergency room treatment for rape victims. A city official asked if I could treat them in my office—which would be impossible in the middle of the night, when most rapes occur—or at the police station. Wouldn't that be terrific? A woman suffers enough trauma from the rape. Can you imagine what marching her through a police station for a pelvic would do?"

Dr. Howard Fradkin, professor of sociology at Long Beach State University, who has been involved in probation, parole and law enforcement for more than 20 years, says he is "a lot like cops in that I tend to believe that the woman who actually was raped is most probably the one who's been beaten up."

"But," he adds, "rape is a peculiar crime, difficult to define" and describes it as "culture-bound."

"In some societies rape is socially acceptable as part of the culture's sex habits. So here's another problem—universal definitions for rape as a crime.

"What makes this clear is the nonuniformity of penalties for rape, not only in different countries, but in different states within this country. There's an old joke that asks—what is it a man is hung for in the United States, gets life imprisonment for in England, five years in jail for in Italy and a medal pinned on him for in France? It may sound silly, but it gets my point across."

Unlike Sgt. Racobs, who believes convicted rapists generally get by with light sentences and are on the streets again too soon, sociologist Fradkin agrees that prosecuting rape as assault, which carries lesser penalties, could be more equitable.

"In my college classes, I have had students construct charts on which they list crimes in their own personal orders of severity. (For instance, a student who feels murder is the most heinous crime and the one that should be penalized most heavily, would put murder at the top of his list.) Generally, we found that rape was not thought by students to be as serious a crime as many others. One class put rape on the same level with petty theft."

FRADKIN SAYS he would define rape as nearly as possible as "forcible intercourse with a woman." He disagrees with the way rape is defined in our state penal code—as "an act of sexual intercourse, accomplished with a female not the wife of the perpetrator."

Fradkin believes "a woman can be raped by her husband and that should be considered as much a crime as rape by a man not her husband. This definition indicates to me that it is a male-oriented crime and that our laws acknowledge a married woman has no control of her own body—that it belongs solely to her husband and he can do no wrong. It's a real male chauvinist kind of legislation."

In general — unlike traditional moralists such as evangelist Billy Graham who proposed recently that convicted rapists be castrated—Fradkin's students felt penalties for rape in this country were excessive. Normally a man can get three to five years in state prison or technically as long as 50 years for rape.

Fradkin says that "in criticizing the attitudes of police and other law enforcement personnel who usually find penalties too lenient, we should remember that police tend to be very moralistic, that they pick up on the morality of laws which in many cases might be outdated."

Old moral values come into play in another rape-related area and Fradkin wonders "what the punishment might be for homosexual rape. I guarantee it would not be the same as for heterosexual rape. In fact, it probably would be prosecuted as assault, if prosecuted at all. This kind of rape occurs all the time, especially in jails. But it certainly is not taken as seriously as the rape of a woman by a man."

ALTHOUGH POLICE in general view with skepticism most feminist proposals for rape reform, they are responding — if slowly — to the request for more female investigators to handle rape cases.

The Long Beach Police Department's three-person rape detail includes one female investigator, detective Jerry Rodda. And the immense New York City force has instituted a revolutionary all-female Rape Investigation and Analysis Bureau.

Lt. Julia Tucker, head of the new bureau, says she believes women feel freer than before to report the crime to the all-woman team, which has been in operation for only about three months. And because the victims are not so embarrassed to relate particulars about the attack to another woman, they are able to provide details which could help tremendously in apprehending a greater number of rapists.

If Lt. Tucker, a 12-year veteran of the force, is correct in her estimation that there has been a remarkable increase in the numbers of reported rapes, the feminists have scored victory.

TELEVISION ACTRESS and cooking authority Sue Taylor will make her culinary expertise available in KCET's annual fund-raising auction May 4 through 12.

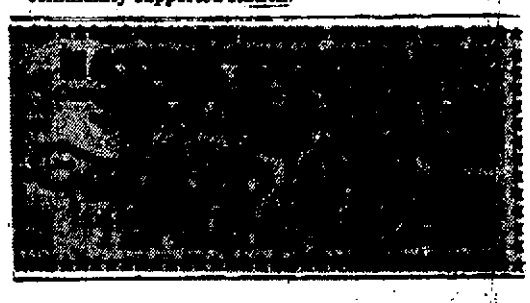

KCET to sponsor unusual auction

How could anyone resist a dinner that begins with "Chopped Liver Like Grandmother Used to Make if Your Grandmother Had Been My Grandmother" and ends up with "Monkeys-Never-Had-It-So-Good Bananas" and includes "Pucker-Up-And-Kiss-Me Chicken" as the main course?

Those are just samples of the selections from an unusual dinner being offered on KCET (TV Channel 28) annual fund-raising auction May 4-12.

The dinner will be prepared and served at the home of the high bidder by Sue Taylor and Arline Chambers, authors of the "Anybody Can Make It, Everybody Will Love It Cookbook", which features 52 simple recipes with complicated titles.

Funds raised through the KCET on-the-air auction go toward meeting operating costs of the community-supported station.

The Aces on bridge

by IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

Dear Mr. Corn:

In my club there is quite a bit of confusion regarding the mechanical errors made by declarer, such as leading out of turn, taking back an exposed card, a card dropped accidentally, etc.

Will you please clarify the matter and explain why a declarer is entitled to different rules than a defender?

Double Standard
Newark, N.J.

Answer: The reason for differences in rules, which apply to a defender as opposed to a declarer, is that declarer cannot communicate illegal information to his partner (dummy) who does not participate in the play. This does not hold true for the defenders, and information illegally exchanged by the defenders, whether or not accidental, is subject to penalty.

Declarer is subject to penalty for leading out of turn or for play from the wrong hand. However, he is not penalized for exposing a card or for dropping a card accidentally.

Dear Mr. Corn: How many points are required for a responder to jump in his own suit? Is it a force to game?

At Odds
Milwaukee

Answer: Your question falls in an area in which there is little universal agreement. Many players play the responder's jump rebid as an unequivocal force to game; others play the bid as highly invitational but not forcing.

Both schools agree that if responder's initial response were a two-over-one bid, all jumps by responder are forcing.

As far as points are concerned, the forcing-to-game school requires an opening bid and a good suit; the invitational school requires something less but close to an opening bid.

Dear Mr. Corn:

What is the Fishbein convention? Huge Penalty
New Orleans

Answer: The Fishbein Convention, devised by Harry Fishbein of New York City, is a special convention for use over the opponent's pre-emptive three bids.

The double is used as a penalty double instead of its more standard usage as a takeout double. A bid of the next ranking suit in the immediate position (except for three no trump) substitutes for the takeout double.

If your opponents open very light pre-emptive bids the Fishbein convention may force them to tighten things up a bit.

AT WIT'S END

Morning no time to communicate

By ERMA BOMBECK

Once and for all, I'd like to settle this business of whether, in fact, a wife is obliged to get up in the mornings and share breakfast with her husband.

One of the most successful marriages I ever encountered was between a man who worked from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. and slept from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., while his wife worked from 3 to 11 p.m. and slept from 3 to 10 a.m.

Occasionally, they would stagger into one another in the bathroom and always managed to spend Christmas and George Meany's birthday together. They were married 36 years, which proves it isn't the amount of time spent together, but the quality.

One of the major criticisms for getting up early in the morning is the health factor. Frankly, I think it is dangerous walking around before your mouth works. You never know when you will back into a hot toaster and be speechless to tell anyone about it.

THE OTHER REASON is simply general appearance. Although the "early morning" jokes are generally aimed at women in curlers and tennis shoes, men are not exactly sex objects in the morning. There is something quite gross about a man pouring catsup over his eggs while a piece of toilet tissue flaps transparently over a fresh razor cut.

The simple truth is man and woman were never meant to come face to face over food at 6 o'clock in the morning.

My husband read a newspaper at our wedding breakfast. I was married 18 years before I realized he didn't have a scar over his forehead that read, "WIZARD OF ID" by Johnny Hart.

OBVIOUSLY, a newspaper has saved more marriages in this country than anyone cares to admit. A woman in Franklin, Mich., wrote, "We have been married 52 years and for the first time our morning paper did not come because of a snow storm.

"My husband looked at me irritably and said, 'When did your hair turn gray?' I said, 1937. He said, 'Did you know the Juco bird gets drunk when he eats berries off a hawthorne tree?' I said no.

"He began to read the cereal box out loud and asked why I bought it when it only had 33 per cent niacin. I told him they gave away dahlias. Just then the paper came. Our marriage is good now for another 52 years."

As my husband said the other morning, "I like to remember you just as you are now . . . buried under a blanket!"

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Chef's hotcakes fill prescription

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

He's a person with an extra dimension...he can decipher prescriptions.

That's why today's Chef of the Week, Ralph G. (Andy) Anderson, is president of the Professional Prescription Pharmacy, with offices at 828 Pine Ave. and at the Memorial Medical Center, 2863 Atlantic Ave.

The company has been serving the public at its Pine Avenue address since 1931 and at the Atlantic Avenue address since 1961. He joined the firm in 1946 as a partner.

While some of us travel miles to glimpse a spectacular view, all he had to do as a child was peek out his bedroom window each morning and behold the grandeur of the Canadian Rockies. That view infected him with a lasting love of the great outdoors.

Born in Calgary, Alberta, Canada, Anderson spent his boyhood through high school in this foothill community, home of the Calgary Stampede and Exhibition.

He learned to hunt, which he long since has given up, and to fish, which he still does whenever he can find the time. In fact, he hasn't missed a trout season opening in 25 years.

DURING HIS BOYHOOD, he and his family spent some winters in Southern California. He later moved to California to stay and was graduated from USC's School of Pharmacy.

After several jobs in and around Los Angeles, he celebrated a very proud day in 1940 when he became a naturalized citizen. He served with the U.S. Army in 1942 and '43.

Anderson is a member of the USC Trojan Club, General Alumni Association and its support group, QSAD Centureans. He's an avid football fan and enjoys many other spectator sports, particularly hockey. He plays golf and bowls, just for fun.

His favorite haunts for his special love, fishing, are in the Bridgeport area, including Twin Lakes, Mary and Convict Lakes, and all adjoining streams.

Almost every other summer is spent in the High Sierras with wife, Dorothy, and two teen-age sons, Ralph Jr. and David, both students at Hughes Junior High School. They share his love of the outdoors and fishing but Dorothy says, "I don't mind cooking the fish but I refuse to clean them."

Anderson is active with the boys in Scout Troup 78, is a member of Rotary Club of Long Beach, Bixby Knolls Masonic Lodge, Scottish Rite, and is a charter member of El Bekal Shrine.

Active in the Chamber of Commerce, he also is a member of the Long Beach, the California and the American Pharmaceutical Associations. He belongs to California Heights Methodist Church and also to Long Beach Petroleum Club.

As for his cooking venture, our "Chef" has been searching for recipes for buckwheat pancakes, remembering the marvelous flavor of the ones "mother used to make." The family recipe disappeared when his parents' cookbooks were lost and no one remains who knows the particular magic formula.

RALPH G. ANDERSON

However, one of the best substitutes is a favorite of the family and appears herewith. Any suggestions for a better one still would be welcome. So, good readers, if you have a better prescription, send it to him!

OLD FASHIONED BUCKWHEAT PANCAKES

½ package yeast
2 cups scalded milk
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups buckwheat flour
1 tablespoon molasses
¼ teaspoon baking soda
¼ cup lukewarm water
¼ cup melted shortening (butter preferred)

Cool milk to lukewarm, sprinkle yeast over milk. Add salt and flour and beat until smooth. Cover and let rise overnight if you wish.

Before baking, add molasses, baking soda and lukewarm water. Stir into batter. Last, stir in melted shortening. Bake as usual on hot griddle.

DEAR ABBY

His is an odd habit

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to this man for 32 years. We have four grown children, and let me tell you right off the bat, my husband has no feminine tendencies whatsoever. He is ALL man, but he likes to wear my lingerie.

First he asked if he could borrow my pantyhose. I could understand that because it was wintertime and pantyhose do help to keep the legs and body warm. Then he started wearing my nylon nighties, and it was still winter. That puzzled me.

Twice when I was hospitalized, I looked for my long, satin-quilted housecoat and found it in HIS clothes closet, so he has been wearing that, too.

Does he have a problem?

DON'T USE MY NAME

DEAR DON'T: Your husband may be a transvestite, which means he is just like any other male but he likes to wear women's clothes. And he won't have a problem unless you give him one at home, or he tries to masquerade in public where it is against the law.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for six years and have two children. My problem is a husband who never likes to go out, and I do.

Well, one evening my husband's brother came over with his wife. The brother wanted to go out, but his wife didn't. The wife herself suggested that HE take me. My husband told me to go ahead, so I went. I hadn't been out in such a long time I jumped at the chance. We went dancing and goofing around, and had a good time. We got home around midnight.

I asked a couple of my friends what they thought of this and one said, "You're lucky to have such an understanding husband."

Another said, "Any man who lets his wife go out with another man can't love her. He must be seeing another woman."

What is your opinion? And do you see anything wrong with what I did?

BEWILDERED

DEAR BEE: I'd agree with the first friend. (P.S. An occasional night out with your brother-in-law is all right, but don't make a habit of it.)

Flower tour scheduled

An imaginary cruise "Around the World with Flowers and Music" awaits members and guests of Long Beach Garden Club Monday aboard the Princess Louise.

A social hour at 11:30 a.m. precedes luncheon at noon in the Captain's Ballroom.

Robert Gordon, AIFD, will present a program of songs to accompany floral arrangements from various countries. He will be assisted by Lu Shevlin and Dorothy Thompson. The three also perform as the Bel Canto Singers.

Tickets are $5.75 each and are available from Mrs. A. J. Antosik of Seal Beach or Mrs. Charles Bailey of Long Beach.

Gordon is a floral design professor at Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo, and past president of the American Institute of Floral Designers. Long Beach Garden Club is a member of Costa Verde District of California Garden Clubs Inc. Proceeds will go toward conservation and beautification projects.

'Science, Psi' is symposium topic May 12

The Southern California Society for Psychical Research, Inc., in joint sponsorship with Golden West College, will present a multidisciplinary symposium "Science and Psi" Saturday, May 12 from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. at the college, 15744 Golden WEst St., Huntington Beach.

The symposium will consist of small group films and lectures on topics such as acupuncture anaesthsia, bioenergetic responses between man and plant forms and the transcendent human potential.

More information may be obtained by calling Golden West College.

Dear Family:

In keeping with our policy of service to the community, our dental health center has instituted an orthodontic department. Teeth can be straightened at any age, but early detection and treatment is desirable. A consultation with our staff orthodontist can answer your questions without obligation.

The importance of appearance in today's society cannot be minimized, and we feel that orthodontics (braces) should be made as reasonable as possible. We feel that orthodontics should be considered a necessity and not a luxury. We will make every possible effort to have an insurance plan covering orthodontics. we will be happy to fill out the necessary forms.

Sincerely,

Gerard S. Frankel, D.D.S.

Once you've made the world's most famous sensitive skin soap, making soap for babies is kid stuff.

Introducing Neutrogena® Baby Soap

If you have sensitive skin, you know what the famous Neutrogena formula does for you. How gently it cleanses. How quickly it rinses off. How it never irritates or leaves skin feeling taut or itchy.
Now imagine adding special emollients to that pure, mild formula. The result: new Neutrogena Baby Soap. Helps baby's super-soft skin stay smooth and trouble-free. Keeps the moisture balance of delicate skin intact. And is kinder to your baby than even our own Neutrogena.
Do we sound like proud parents? We are. You see, we think "our baby" is good enough for your baby. And that's about as good as you can get.

Neutrogena® Baby Soap formulated for babies with sensitive skin.

Introspective look at Washington

By DIANNE SMITH
Staff Writer

Barbara Howar might be called a liberated woman. She's a woman who's always done her own thing regardless of what others thought or said.

And, she lost some jobs because of it. But, she's not bitter, considering each a lesson in maturity.

Born and reared a strict Catholic in the Southern tradition of womanhood, Mrs. Howar never followed the traditional path, and earned the rebel label early. Her quick wit and sense of humor have kept her on an even keel, however. Both were in evidence during an afternoon interview at the Beverly Hills Hotel.

She was candid about her life, which has revolved first around her mother, whom she regards as a "most remarkable woman"; then herself, "I admire me most of all women because I know what I'm capable of doing," and now her two children, whom she considers "really fine."

She has endured the death of her mother and the dissolution of her marriage to a wealthy Arab and has written a book about her life to "earn some money and because I was tired of others telling my story."

Why is her life worth a book? Because she names names behind the scenes in Washington, D.C., where she went at the age of 21 to find fortune and fame. She accomplished both and gained a bit of notoriety along the way.

MRS. HOWAR was social secretary to Lyndon Johnson until her wild parties and antics no longer fit the Johnson presidential image and she was fired.

Her daughter was a flower girl in Luci Johnson's wedding, although Mrs. Howar and her husband were snubbed at the ceremony as she recounts in her book, "Laughing All the Way" (Stein and Day).

She's dated Henry Kissinger, but isn't a "kiss and tell" girl.

She recently held a garage sale in her five-bedroom Georgetown home (the Kennedys once lived there) and netted $15,000. "This made up for the advance I returned to Ladies Home Journal when I backed out on letting them print a condensation of my book after reading it. It read like a bunch of scandalous telegrams."

"Everyone should have a garage sale. They're marvelous." Hers lasted two days and drew 5,000 people. Newspaper advertising cost her $175 and she employed a Pinkerton at the door.

"I sold furniture that no longer suited my lifestyle and was too good to give away. The clutter is gone and I now have only things I care about and need. I made funny profits, like Coca-Cola glasses which I sold for 5 cents each by putting a tag on them saying things like 'Eugene McCarthy drank out of this the night he lost the election.' I sold a plug-in phone which I stole from the telephone company for $15 by tagging it with 'Henry Kissinger talked on this during a time of great crisis'."

SHE'S ON a cross-country promotion tour for her book, which will be released Monday, and isn't looking forward to her visit to the South. "I don't like what the South does to women. It's not enough to be brought up to get a husband."

But, Mrs. Howar doesn't follow the complete women's liberation line. "I don't like Ms. I think it's demeaning. You either know who you are or you don't. I also don't want to be a man because I like men too much to be one of them."

Equal pay for equal work is her cause. "I don't see anyone giving me a discount as a woman because I make less money."

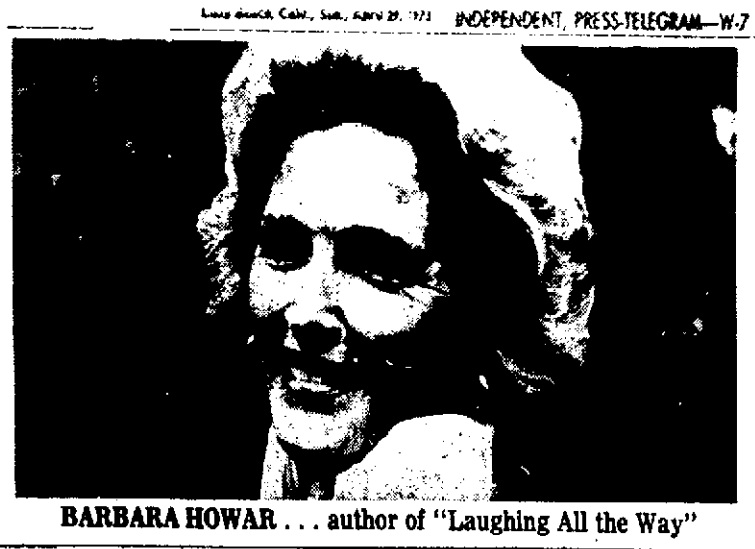

Marriage doesn't interest her now, but she's "always interested in a good romance."

She enjoys the company of her children, daughter Bader, almost 13 (the name's been in her father's family for 400 years), and son Edmond, 9, "who's always in trouble."

She sends them to private school but wishes she didn't have to spend the money. "The public schools in Washington are so bad, I wouldn't send a dog there."

With obvious reference to Lady Bird Johnson's beautification efforts as First Lady, Mrs. Howar commented, "I couldn't worry about beautification when I was worried about my child being raped."

Also sharing their home is a Scotch terrier named Phoebe. "He's the only dog who's house trained," she quipped.

REX BRANDT'S 'Summer at 29th Street, 1945,' depicts his hometown, Newport Beach, at a time when Navy blimps patrolled the coast during World War II. This is one of the paintings in the California Water Color Society Collection that goes on view Tuesday at Los Angeles County Museum of Art.

Oriental, occidental views revealed

THIS IS 'Daruma,' loaned anonymously for the 'Buddhist Art of Japan' show at Los Angeles County Museum of Art. Painted with ink on paper, it is by Hakuin of the Edo Period, 1685-1768.

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

Back in 1921, a group of watercolor artists founded the California Water Color Society—and in so doing changed the trend of watercolor painting. In less than 10 years, the society had originated what came to be known as the "California style" — distinguished by the use of larger papers, bolder colors and stronger brush strokes than were seen in the traditional English style of watercolor painting, popular in the United States in the mid-19th century.

The new style grew in popularity and significance. Its shows circulated to New York and other parts of this country. This was a signal honor, says Nancy Moure, assistant curator of American art at Los Angeles County Museum of Art.

By the early 1940s, abstract works began to appear in the California Water Color Society's annual exhibits. They made new use of tempera, acrylic and gouache, techniques of painting with opaque watercolors.

Now the Los Angeles County Museum has taken 21 works, the main part of the California Water Color Society Collection that was given to LACMA in 1955, and put together an exhibit which will run from Tuesday to May 27. The collection encompasses each of the styles used in this century: English, California and modern.

Many of the artists represented still live in Southern California, among them Rexford Elson Brandt, Phil Dike, Leonard Edmondson, George Gibson, Richard Haines, Dan Lutz, Pauline Polk and Jan Stussy. Other artists whose paintings are to go on view are Standish Backus, Tom Craig, Francis de Erdely, Sadamitsu Fudita, Ejnar Hansen, Emil Kosa Jr., Tom E. Lewis, Rene Lopez, J. Jay McVicker, Barse Miller, Richards Ruben and James Couper Wright.

Mrs. Moure, who organized the show, has prepared an informative brochure on the history of the California Water Color Society and the development of water color painting in this country. It is available without charge at the information desk in the museum's Ahamnson Gallery. The exhibition may be seen Tuesdays through Fridays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on weekends from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. There is no admission charge. The museum is located at 5905 Wilshire Blvd.

ON THE FIRST level of the Los Angeles County Museum's Ahmanson Gallery, paintings and sculpture created during evolution of Japanese Buddhism may be seen through June 17. The 50 masterpieces represent some of the finest works executed for the major sects of Buddhism.

This benevolent and compassionate religious doctrine began more than 2,000 years ago and was introduced to Japan in the 6th century. It has remained a major religion there. Buddhism has a rich artistic heritage of symbols and images which convey its mysterious, compelling doctrine, says George Kuwayama, senior curator of Far Eastern art.

"Buddhist art serves as a vehicle for religious understanding, and thus has an extraordinary appeal that welcomes believers in all walks of life," Kuwayama explains. "Visitors to the show will come to see the diversity and universality of this art. For the student, there is much to learn, and for those who merely delight in art, these images provide a deep visual and emotional satisfaction."

Many of the finest pieces of Buddhist painting and sculpture were created for the (Esoteric), Zen, Jodo-Amidist and Tendai-Nichiren sects. The different sects arose in response to changing religious needs and historical events and the art reflects these changes, Kuwayama says.

Little known in the West are images of the Shingon sect, arranged in a schematic way for meditation and cult rituals. Zen expresses a different viewpoint, with a dozen paintings that are superb examples of highly individualistic approaches to "Ultimate Wisdom." The Zen works include Hakauin's forceful, provocative Daruma; Soha's jolly, pot-bellied god, Hotei; and the often humorous, simple drawing drawings of Sengai. Eccentric Zenga artists are uninhibited by traditional rules of icongraphy and formal painting.

Shingon and Zen require concentrated effort of understanding, but sects such as Jodo and Amidism provide for the needs of people who want a simple, easily understood belief.

For this exhibition, Kuwayama chose outstanding pieces from local museums and private collections. "This is a fascinating show that offers a look at the magnificence, mystery and mirth of the religious art of Japan," he says.

BEGINNING next Sunday and extending through May 25, recent paintings by Robert Hartman, professor of art at UC Berkeley, will be exhibited in Gallery B of Long Beach State University, 6101 E. Seventh St.

The public is invited to a reception for the artist from 4 to 6 p.m. on opening day. Regular gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, 1 to 5 p.m. Sundays.

Hartman has flown small planes since he was 16 and still does much flying in his own plane over the Oakland-San Francisco Bay area. In his paintings, he expresses remoteness, suspension, quietness and disorientation, combining images of open skies, clouds and weather charts. In this show will be six canvases from 7 to 9 feet wide; they will be shown for the first time as a group. One was displayed in the 1973 Whitney Biennial Exhibition of American Art in New York.

THE FIRST major West Coast exhibition by the young American photographer Danny Lyon will continue through June 3 at the Newport Harbor Art Museum, 2211 W. Balboa Blvd., Newport Beach.

Lyon and former director of the museum, Thomas H. Garver, gleaned 100 pictures from 900 contact sheets to choose pictures for this show. Always concentrating on the "odd man out," Lyon deals with the conflicts of the individual within a society and varient groups formed within a larger society. He is best known for four photographic books: "The Movement," which documents racial conflict in the United States during the 1960s; the award winning "The Destruction of Lower Manhattan," a survey of the demolition of Manhattan's old buildings for urban renewal; "Conversations with the Dead," a book of photographs and text which powerfully documents the Texas prison system; and "The Bikeriders," a visual and literary record of motorcyclists from the sporting clubs to outlaws.

The exhibition is divided into 12 sections arranged in chronological order and at some points overlapping in time. Several photographs are from the books mentioned. There also are photos depicting demonstrations of 1963 and '64, a major selection of photos of small towns in the Southwest, and a large section dealing with a small South American town, Santa Marta, Colombia.

After Newport, the exhibition will circulate to eight major institutions. These include the Addison Gallery of Art, Andover, Mass.; Henry Gallery, University of Washington; Santa Barbara Museum of Art, Krannert Art Museum, University of Illinois, and Baltimore Museum of Art.

Newport museum hours are noon to 4 p.m. Tuesdays through Sundays, 6 to 9 p.m. Fridays. Admission is by donation.

Exam time for pianists

Approximately 300 local young pianists will play from two to twenty pieces in the national piano playing auditions May 7 through 26. These 24th annual, non-competitive, private examinations are sponsored by Long Beach Center, National Guild of Piano Teachers of the American College of Musicians. They will be held in Yamaha Music Center, 11015 Downey Ave., Downey, and will continue from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Ken Fisher, experienced adjudicator from Sebastopol, will evaluate the performances. After extensive early study in Texas, Fisher concentrated on artist-level preparation with outstanding teachers in San Francisco. For years he was a performer, then turned to teaching and currently conducts a private piano studio in Sebastopol. As a member of the Music Teachers Association of California, he serves as vice president of Sonoma Branch.

After he completes his assignment for the Long Beach Center, Fisher will adjudicate for four days for the same organization in Torrance at Christ the King Lutheran Church.

Rilla McReynolds Branyon is chairman of the Long Beach Center; Lura Soderstrom is assistant chairman and Mrs. Dorothy Schumacher is monitor. In Torrance, Mrs. Frank Jacobson is chairman and Mrs. Freddie Windell is monitor.

Honors go to student talent

Outstanding student performers will be soloists at the annual honors concert to be played by the Symphony Orchestra of Long Beach State University, under the direction of Dr. Hans Lampl, next Sunday at 3 p.m. in the college Little Theater.

This will be the first time that an entire program—the fourth of the season— will be given over to the presentation of students. Selected on the basis of auditions they are: Karen Tkaczyk, trumpet player; Becky Sabin, violinist; Andrew Taylor, baritone; Joan Carlson, soprano; Leaine Gibson, pianist; Mark Stucker, pianist; Dorothy Newhall, soprano; Mark Kovacs, conductor; Margaret Hunt, soprano; and trombonists John Hollenbeck, Steve Pilling, Peter Brown and Mitchell Fennell who will collaborate in a performance of "Concerto Grosso for Four Trombones and Strings." This composition is by Dr. Robert E. Tyndall, professor of music and executive dean of planning at LBSU.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

Dixie beat

Jack Martin, above, and his Dixieland Band will play a free public performance Wednesday at 11 a.m. in Studio C of the Music Building, Long Beach City College, Clark Avenue and Harvey Way. The program is part of LBCC's Concert Hour. A vocalist and saxophonist with the Lawrence Welk Orchestra, Martin will present a progrm of such favorites as "Sweet Georgia Brown," "Bourbon Street Parade," "Dixieland Onestep," and "When the Saints Go Marching In."

Music of Romania is theme of bill at LBSU

Julien Musafia, at extreme right, conducts rehearsal for Consortium Musicum concert Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Little Theater on campus at Long Beach State University. The program, which will involve 58 players in various chamber combinations, will be made up of the United States premieres of works by Romanian composers. In addition, there will be the world premiere of "Pontica" by Dinu Ghezzo, written especially for this concert and prepared for piano, narrator, flutes, saxophone and brass ensemble. It is based on texts recently uncovered on ancient funeral stones on the shores of the Black Sea (Pontis Euxinus).

The major work will be "Symphonia da Camara" by George Enescu. Written just before the composer's death, it is considered his musical testament in material and style.

A "Rain Ritual" by Miriam Marbe will be performed with special effects on stage and in the auditorium. In contrast to the Enescu work will be an octet for winds, strings and piano by Tudor Ciortea and based on the pranks of Pacala, a legendary, mischievous character.

Dinu Lipatti, Romania's best known pianist, will be represented by four songs. A solo sonata for clarinet by Tiberiu Olah conveys a polyphonic feeling on a monophonic instrument.

To conclude the program, the consortium will play a folk-spoof on the army inspired by Paul Constantinescu and written for brass, piano and percussion.

Concert participants will include faculty members David Atkins, clarinetist; Gretel Shanley, flutist; and more than a dozen professional alumni as well as outstanding students.

The program will be broadcast over KPFK and Voice of America. General admission tickets are $2. Student tickets are $1.

Travelers find new way to go

travel

From an unpromising commercial launching a half-dozen years ago, vacation houseboating has cruised gently into the forefront of favorite American family pastimes.

Now the Sacramento Delta has been transformed from an anonymous labyrinth of watery corridors into the nation's houseboating capital.

Small wonder, for houseboat U-driving offers individual family members far more than customary recreational pleasures. For one, there is the boat cruising itself, an especially pleasant diversion. But there is also fishing, diving, swimming, waterskiing, exploring, photography, reading, games and dining — all set within a glorious context of privacy and relaxation.

Making it all that much more comfortable and convenient are the luxurious furnishings aboard rental houseboats — fully equipped kitchens and bathrooms, separate sleeping quarters, and the various other appointments of a modern house.

AS FOR THE Delta, it offers an especially suitable setting for houseboats — 1,200 miles of rivers and sloughs stretching, clasping and interthreading each other amid an agreeable backdrop of meadowy wood and grassy marshland. Houseboaters can cruise for days without seeing the same sight twice.

In 1967, the first of the Sacramento Delta's houseboat rental companies opened for business with a 12-craft fleet. This year, there are 20 Delta houseboat rental companies and some 300 rental houseboats, all of which will probably be booked up for the summer.

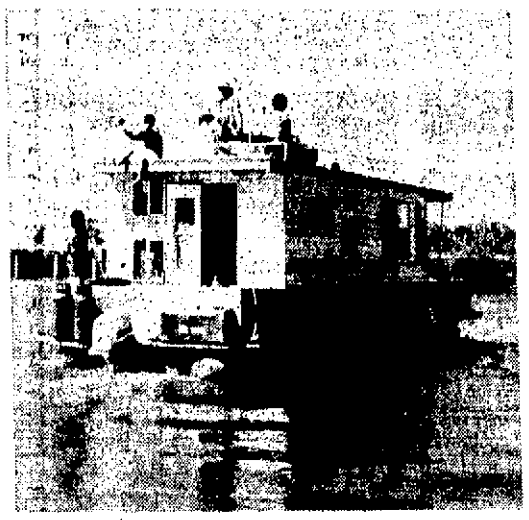

Meanwhile, that first company has evolved into International Houseboats, its 110 craft armada making it the largest such company in the world.

The houseboats are child's play to operate, their entire operational procedure consisting only of a steering wheel and forward-reverse power lever. Summer rental rates range from $50 daily to $450 for an entire week. Off-season rates are considerably less.

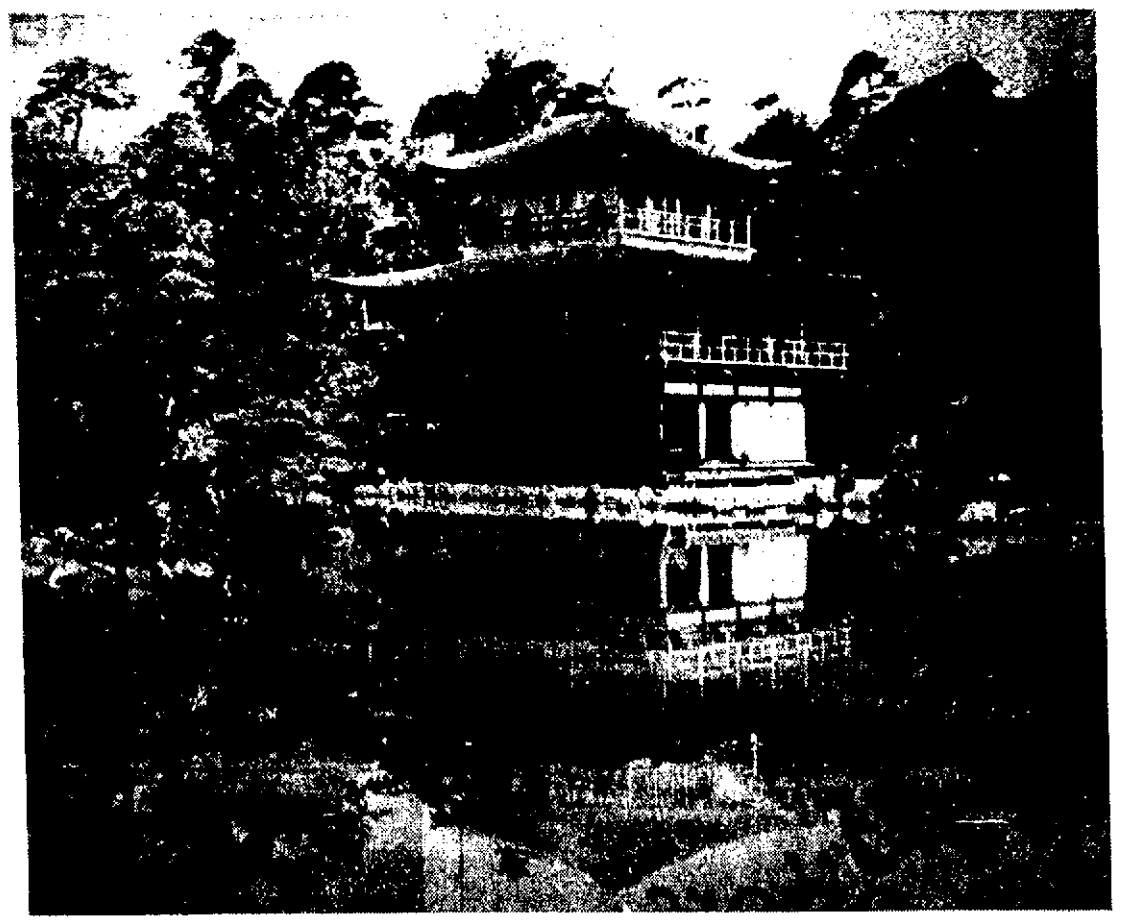

WITHIN THE Delta's soft currents are abundances of anadramous gamefish — fish that live in the ocean and migrate back to fresh water. Above the waters are waterfowl making their way along the Pacific Flyway. Out beyond the levees and tall woods are ancient and charming riverbank towns and thousands of square miles of rich, fertile, golden farmland.

On the waters are people, alone and in groups, in houseboats of varying sizes and shapes, doing all the things they never seem able to do in the places they call home, usually within two miles of marinas, service centers and personal assistance.

The Sacramento Delta is inland an hour's drive from San Francisco, downroad less than half an hour from Sacramento, and five hours upstate from Los Angeles.

HOUSEBOAT ON THE SACRAMENTO

KINKAKOJI TEMPLE (GOLDEN PAVILION), KYOTO, JAPAN

GAL-IVANTING

No such thing as a la carte

By CHORAL PEPPER

Kyoto, Japan

The "not big much" Japanese menu so modestly deprecated by our stewardess on Japan Airlines was an experience we hesitated to repeat in Kyoto where one cup of tea with a piece of pie costs $2.50.

I had never flown with JAL before, but now I can recommend it as a fine introduction to Japan. Unless you are very rich, its goodies wrapped in seaweed with steak teriyaki and even caviar might be your last full meal before leaving Japan.

By the end of my second day in Kyoto, I had decided that Japan is no place to go if you like to eat. What makes it worse is that the artistry of these people produces the most delectable looking food in the world. Even plastic models displayed in restaurant windows look good enough to eat.

I was lured into an informal tearoom on Kawaramashi Street for lunch. Nobody spoke English, so I escorted the waitress out to the window to point out a plastic replica of a small green salad that I wanted.

When she placed the edible counterpart before me, everyone in the room watched with intense interest. Bravely I unwrapped a long, neatly wrapped package inscribed with an identifying character that probably spelled "chopsticks."

Their suspense grew breathless as I clumsily lifted a sliver of shredded lettuce. When I made it to my mouth, you could almost feel their relief. The radishes were easier. I simply picked them up with my fingers. But when it came to the thin slices of tomato, they started taking bets.

THE JAPANESE ARE marvelously polite, but they are not humorless. When the tomato plopped back into the bowl, the mini-skirted girls watching from the kitchen broke into uncontrolable giggles.

It didn't seem all that funny, though, when the waitress presented me with a check for $4.50. We resorted to an English-speaking proprietor of a watch shop next door for an explanation. It seems that there is no such thing as a la carte on Japanese menus. When you want only a small dinner-sized salad, you have to pay for the entire dinner.

I stayed in Kyoto a week. It is a good place to go on a diet.

Beauty is the only bargain left in Kyoto. Even it does not come easily. The understated nuance of pagoda-peaked tile roofs softened by long-needled pine, simply two-storied frame houses accented with linear designs and spacious-appearing infinitesimal gardens must be studied to be appreciated.

There is a word for this typical Japanese form of elegance. It is Shibui. It is an effect of ultra-refinement wherein nothing is too much, like the color of ashes and old silver or snow flakes falling through sunlight.

WHILE OTHER CITIES of Japan were levelled during World War II, this ancient former capital was spared. Today it is preserved as a cultural treasure. Its historic temples, shrines and gardens are everywhere.

Tucked into a cul-de-sac between Kawakamachi and Karasuma streets, the Ginza of Kyoto, is the compound of Higashi Hongan-ji with the largest wooden roof in the world.

Then nearby on a hidden street is a tiny but impressive Buddhist temple with a strange cemetery reposing under apartment balconies hung with the day's wash.

Maroyama Park, near the Gion district where Geisha girls learn their arts, is another fascinating place to wander. Here children feed pidgeons harbored by the Yasaka Shrine while their elders beat gongs hanging from its eaves to attract the gods.

On an adjacent street is Junidan-ya, a cozy restaurant that serves an excellent Japanese luncheon for $5. The minos, or straw raincoats, that decorate its walls are superb examples of native straw craftwork that is becoming a lost art.

Until items made of it became replaced by plastic, straw cloaks, snow boots and ropes provided a useful means of disposing of rice straw, a by-product of Japan's most important agricultural commodity.

The cloaks that resemble a porcupine's hide and the zohris, or straw snowboots, are both warm in winter and cool in summer, as well as waterproof. You will see the boots used as plant containers in many smart shops. Today they are available in Kyoto and in country stores where elderly farmers still wear them.

Antique dealers here are beginning to collect them for a future market. Old weavers are dying and young ones are not replacing them.

ANOTHER KYOTO BARGAIN might be in the wood block prints that have acquired an exalted reputation here, although they have soared in price since I last visited Japan. Gallery Ashiya located in a century-old inn that is now the Ashiya Steak House at 172-13, 4-chrome, Kiyomizu Matsubara, Higashiyama-ku is a reliable place to buy.

Its owners, American Bob Strickland and his Japanese wife Tokiko, have reserved gallery space in Kyoto's finest restaurant (dinners from $15) to introduce the work of Kyoto's most promising artists.

So far they have guessed right. An original Karhu woodblock purchased here for $80 three years ago was recently re-purchased by a calandar company for $2400. Some Karhus still hang in the Ashiya gallery, alongaide the work of new, younger artists.

Other reliable galleries are located in and near the Miyako and Kyoto hotels.

NEW!
S.S. ORIENTAL EMPRESS WORLD CRUISES.

100-day cruises from $48 a day with bath

FIRST SAILING AUGUST 1973.
(Embark from Either Coast)

Tailor your own vacation package. Want to match a world cruise itinerary to your vacation schedule? There's an Oriental Empress world cruise departing every 100 days. You can go at the time of year which works out best on your calendar. And at first class fares which work out best with your pocketbook—less than on most other cruise ships.

What an idea! A major passenger liner circling the globe on a fixed schedule every 100 days! Twenty ports of call—the most interesting cities the world has to offer. An ideal 100-day itinerary touching on four continents.

You'll be sailing on the 23,000 ton S.S. Oriental Empress. She's a handsome cruise liner built to carry 500 passengers, but we limit her to 350 passengers for spacious comfort and relaxation. Formerly the S.S. President Wilson, the Oriental Empress is stabilized and fully air-conditioned. And she has been tastefully refurbished to impart a gracious Oriental charm.

Attractive accommodations with nearby facilities are available from $2000 ($20 a day) ranging to deluxe suites at $14,500 ($145 a day) per person.

To learn how you can see the world with an Empress, contact your travel agent or write for our new full-color brochure.

Austria for wedded bliss

A growing number of young people from the United States are choosing Austria for their weddings and honeymoons, and the Danube Republic has responded hospitably with offers of reduced rates for accommodations, free cable-car rides, use of sports facilities and small gifts.

These courtesies also apply to couples celebrating their Silver and Golden Anniversaries.

The long established "wedding" towns of Salzburg and Steyr have been joined by Badgastein and Bad Hofgastein, with their international reputations as honeymoon paradises.

A special bonus is offered by the Austrian Federal Railways: upon proof that the wedding has taken place, the bride receives a free railway ticket to take her to her honeymoon location.

Palm Trees & Beaches

There was never a more exciting hotel—white sandy beaches, beautifully landscaped gardens—with more fun and festivities than you'd enjoy on a holiday cruise.

Charming guest rooms and suites—all with aquatic or garden views, many with complete kitchens. 3 pools, golf, tennis, fine restaurants, famous Barefoot Bar.

MALTA WATER TAXI, PATTERNED AFTER PHOENICIAN BOAT

Malta offers a bit more

By HOWARD WATSON

Rivaling Caribbean resorts in sunshine, sandy beaches, scenic beauty and luxury hotels, the Mediterranean islands of Malta and Cyprus offer something more.

With their Stone Age ruins, fabled sites from Homeric myths, havens of St. Paul and bastions of Christian knights, both British Commonwealth islands are treasure troves of archeology, history, architecture, art and culture to delight and fascinate the visitor.

The Maltese Islands, consisting of hilly Malta, Gozo and Comino, are fragments of the landbridge that connected Sicily and Africa some 170,000 years ago when the Mediterranean was merely a cluster of freshwater lakes. Here Hannibal was born and here St. Paul was shipwrecked on his way to Rome.

Ruins of monumental stone temples built 2,000 years before Christ stand in stark contrast to the magnificent medieval churches and palaces of the Knights of Malta, who received the island from Spain's Charles V for an annual tribute of a falcon and governed it for over 250 years.

ON NEARBY GOZO one can still see the grotto where, according to legend, Calypso entertained Ulysses for seven years.

Excellent hotels — the regal old Phoenicia, the new Malta Hilton, the Preluna, to name a few — located in the capital Valletta or on the nearby coast offer accommodations in all price ranges, together with excellent cuisine and outstanding wine cellars.

During the long Maltese summer all outdoor sports are available — waterskiing, fishing, snorkeling, sailing, golf, tennis and polo. The leisurely island life is punctuated year round with "festas" and in quaint shops one can find exquisite handsome laces, gold or silver filigree jewelry, and unusual hand-woven fabrics.

Malta is easily reached by regular British Airways' BEA flights out of London. On the island itself, local buses, painted in varied colors indicating their destination, provide convenient transport, or one can ride a "karrozzin", a horsedrawn carriage. Ferry service links Malta with Gozo and Comino, where smaller hotels provide intimate service.

THE CO-CATHEDRAL of St. John, the National Museum, the Palace of the Grand Master and the Armoury of the Knights, all in Valletta, contain abundant evidence of Malta's rich archeological and art heritage. Seven miles away is the Silent City, Mdina, encircled by ancient walls, and nearby at Rabat is St. Paul's Grotto, the underground dwelling place of the Apostle.

The 1800 B.C. Hypogeum, a monumental structure cut in rock, is at Paola and still older megalithic temples of an unknown culture are found at Tarxien, Hagar Qim, Mnajdra and at Ggantija, the place of the giants, on Gozo.

West of Syria and south of Turkey lies Cyprus, the third largest Mediterranean isle, which is also conveniently serviced from London by BEA. Richly flavored with the Near East in both architecture and cuisine, the island has a coastline of coves, sandy beaches and resort towns. Inland the pine-clad Troodos Massif rises to 6,000 feet at the peak of Mt. Olympus.

Take 'Sunspots' to Mexico

travel

Hughes Airwest is offering two new tour packages to sunny Mexico for the bargain hunting vacationer.

The first, called "Sunspots," is aimed at Southern California travelers.

It features holidays in Mexico resort cities at prices, per person, ranging from $189 for five days in Mazatlan to $440 for 15 days in six different cities.

It also includes Sundance jet transportation from Los Angeles and deluxe hotel accommodations.

The all-inclusive packages also are available to Cabo San Lucas, near La Paz at the tip of Baja California; Guadalajara, Mexico's second largest city; picturesque Puerto Vallarta; and other south-of-the-border destinations.

The second tour package, "Mexico Sundancer," is being offered in the San Francisco Bay Area as well as Los Angeles.

It provides travelers with reduced Sundance air fare, hotel accommodations for up to eight days and other bargains in Mazatlan, Puerto Vallarta, Guadalajara and nearby Lake Chapala, as well as La Paz and Cabo San Lucas.

Additional information on the tour packages to Mexico is available from any travel agent.

Exhibit slated

At least a dozen countries will be featured when the famous international exhibition, Man and His World, re-opens for another 75-day season on June 21 at Montreal, Canada.

The show will go on seven days a week until Labor Day, September 3.

Ports put out welcome mats

By TROY GARRISON

Ships do not just pass in the night at Pacific ports. In fact, they almost always arrive in morning sunlight, and their passengers see on the shore a welcoming committee dancing and or singing "Welcome" with music, amid palm trees gently animated by tradewinds.

One of the more spectacular welcomes is offered by Suva, capital city of the Fiji Islands. There, as the ship is winched into dock by small boats' lines, a band of six-foot Fijians, in scarlet or blue jackets and white skirts marches sharply up and down the pier, playing rousing tunes. They're there to see you off that evening too, their last selection being their islands' loveliest song, Isa Lei.

In Manila, Filipina maidens come aboard to garland the passengers with sameagiuta, white and fragrant.

At Honolulu, as the ship glides toward her berth below the Aloha Tower, with Diamond Head forming the horizon on the right, passengers are greeted by the sound of ukeleles and the sight of hula girls swaying on the upper deck of the terminal. Brown boys come swimming up to the ship's side after she's docked, and dive for coins.

Sydney's harbor offers a welcoming bustle of other ships and craft from all nations, as yours sails past the spectacular new Opera House and under the "coat-hanger" bridge.

Fleets of sampans circle the ship in Hong Kong's bay, their cone-hatted occupants calling up to you to buy their goods; and in Japanese ports, girls in bright kimonos board and, bowing deeply, present you with small gifts.

Closer to home, in the quaint English city of Victoria, British Columbia, girls in Victorian dresses stand at the foot of the gangway to give the women passengers flowers.

The Trans-Pacific Passenger Conference — whose Regular Members are Donald L. Ferguson Cruises, Ltd., German Atlantic Line, Orient Overseas Line, Pacific Far East Line, P & O, Princess Cruises, and Royal Viking Line — claims "only when you approach a destination in the Pacific by ship will you be made so aware of your welcome."

TRAVELING WITH DELAPLANE

Watch out for the high tea

By STAN DELAPLANE
Loch Ness, Scotland

This misty Scottish lake gets a bunch of zombie-like people looking at the water. Staring for hours and days into the mirror lake. Smooth as glass. Everybody looking for Nessie the Monster. Permanent cameras trained on the lake.

Welcome signs all around. Happy to have you stop by. Delighted to give information. Few cars can resist stopping at least for a beer.

Many great trucks hurtling along the North Sea roads. Gold lettering is familiar. You've seen it behind a bar. Spirited cargo of Scotch whisky, Great Britain's biggest money-making export. (Scotch is the ONLY one spelled whisky — without the "e".) Countryside full of golden gorse.

Stayed in a fine little village, Dunkeld near Perth. Really good hand-crafted and original goodies in tiny shops lining the square. Hand carved porridge stirs — where else could you find these? Busy Kettle serves home-made pies and cakes right out of the oven.

Met a Victor McLaughlin type in a bar who had just fallen into the River Tay. (No way he could have caught cold. Full of Scotch anti-freeze.)

To save money in Scotland, England, Ireland: Watch out for the high tea. It's a knife and fork meal, but for half the price of the regular evening meal. Starts about 5 to 6 o'clock — an hour before the evening dinner.

Good for families who are watching the money. Great for the hungry backpackers on the shorts.

"We are not wine drinkers, but on our first trip to France we would like to try some. Is there some rule on ordering?"

Lot of wine books in your library. But I'd let the owner bring out his house wine in small French restaurants. The great vintage wines have gone out of price sight. As much in France as here. And really you have to be a grower — or an absolute expert — to tell. I've run into fine drinking wines (no expert but I LIKE wine) just letting the boss bring in his own. That's what HE drinks.

Good country for good wines, not well known, is in the chateaux country along the Loire River.

It's true that some wines don't "travel." That is, you move them around and they're not so good. These are the local wines ordered by proprietors. Particularly true in south Germany, around the Black Forest. Try one of their light reds with venison and cranberries.

Good local wines in Austria — I never see them shipped. GOOD wines in Spain and Portugal. Yugoslavia has a couple of sleepers. Let the owner pick one for you. MANY wines offered in Mexico. I have yet to find one that is for drinking — even though it's the only game in town. Drink the beer. Magnifico!

"Any small things we should carry on a trip to Europe? Soap?"

Handy things I pack: Pocket flashlight. Small travel alarm clock. Plenty

"Any small things we should carry on a trip to Europe? Soap?"

Handy things I pack: Pocket flashlight. Small travel alarm clock. Plenty of soap in Europe now. I don't bother carrying it. Lighter — never enough matches.

" . . . a good place to have shoes made in Europe?"

Albion in Florence, probably best of anywhere. For men and women. ALL kinds of workmanship in Florence is superior to Rome. Rome getting shoddy, probably due to masses of tourists demanding cheap merchandise. (This is happening all over in major

Great place for stationery: Pineider in Florence, branch in Milan, main shop in Rome. Color combinations and fine paper make you want to sit right down and write love letters. (Thatsa some spicey meatball!)

Florentine silver work — and it's great when it's good — is MUCH better in Florence. Same work in Rome has gone way down. Places I used to go for Florentine silver Zippo cases don't cut it. I wait until I get to Florence.

Island Highway history and scenery

A quart in a pint pot.

That's what the Island Highway is with its wealth of history, scenery, and interesting things to do crammed into the 70 miles between Victoria and Nanaimo, on Vancouver Island in British Columbia.

The route follows an old moccasin trail from 19th century Fort Victoria to the Indian settlement of Senymo, now Nanaimo.

The white man widened part of the trail to five feet in 1861. Ox carts were banned from the new road, which was called the Goldstream Trail and used strictly for pedestrians and cattle droves.

Only a few miles out of Victoria a modern highway brings you to Goldstream Provincial Park and Campground in a superb setting of rock bluffs, towering conifers and a tumbling creek. Here is British Columbia's coastal forest in all its beauty and grandeur.

Leaving the park, the road climbs Malahat Mountain, providing fantastic views of fir green islands set in a wide, blue sea.

Washington's snowcapped Mount Baker probes into the distant mist. Further northward, the Coast Range etches a hazy outline on the British Columbia mainland — a spectacular panorama, glimpsed again and again along the highway.

Down off the Malahat, the road passes fertile farmlands. Prize cattle graze in fields carved out of the wilderness by the early settlers.

TUCKED BESIDE the highway is well-stocked Dougan Lake, where picknickers often land a cutthroat trout while lunch is being prepared.

Further on, a zoo beckons the kids with posted promises of a reptile house, a hundred cute little animals, and exotic birds.

The kids will also clamor to stop at nearby George's Glass Castle. They may try to count the 18,000 bottles used for the turreted building which houses a museum and imaginative souvenir shop.

Schedule a stop at Duncan, hub of the beautiful Cowichan Valley.

Here the largest Indian Reserve in British Columbia sprawls across the highway. Its almost 1,400 inhabitants mingle on Duncan's bustling sidewalks with the notorious 'long-stockings' — tweeded 'country gentlemen' of English descent, more British than the British.

Duncan is also home of the world-famous Cowichan sweater industry, introduced to the Indian women by Scottish missionaries at the turn of the century.

Thousands of these distinctive garments are exported every year.

YOU CAN purchase a sweater yourself at the little store located on the highway near Duncan. The store is also stocked with a large and varied collection of native crafts, including carvings by local Indians.

Ivy Green provincial park offers overnight camping in a forest grove as you near Nanaimo.

A LITTLE further on is Petroglyph Park, famed for its prehistoric rock carvings. Scholars believe that these were done by a race of people who were here before the Indians.

Here you may stand on a split boulder and pay homage to the sun, in memory of an ancient people who may have used it as an altar in their worship of the sun god.

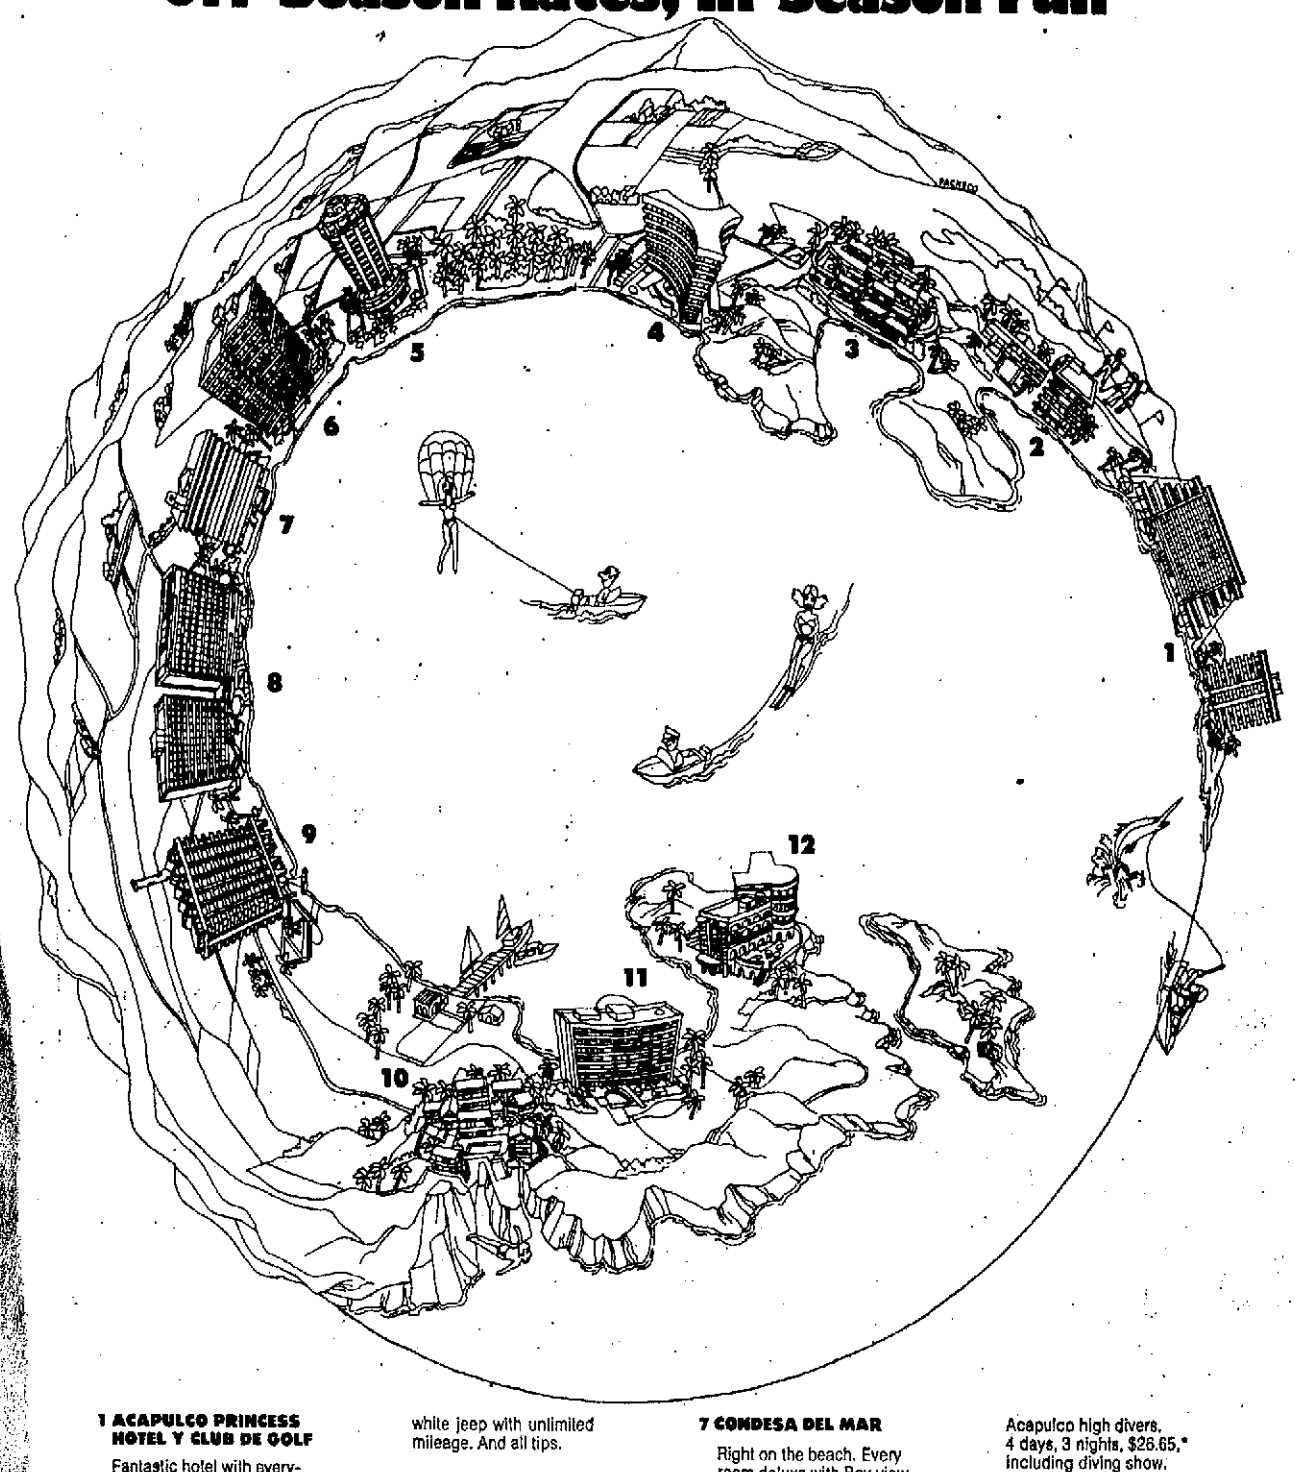

In Nanaimo you will want to visit the historic Bastion, and the exciting new Centennial Museum.

From Nanaimo you can board a ferry for the trip to the British Columbia mainland.

Or, you can continue 'up-Island' to Campbell River, mecca of the salmon fisherman, and on to Kelsey Bay.

PENNYWISE TRAVELER

You can see it all by bus

. . . and leave your cares to someone else

By JANE MORSE

A motor coach tour is never having to carry your own suitcase, says my mother, the tour-taker. It's wonderful, she remarks, how your baggage miraculously appears in your hotel room when you arrive and somehow gets back on the bus when you depart.

My mother only sounds innocent. Her baggage is lifted in and out of hotels because she won't go on a motor coach tour that doesn't include this little labor-saving dividend. Not all do. In fact, as Mother has learned, it's what's in some trip packages and out of others that gives tour shoppers headaches.

A nice catchy, low, low price may be just that, a come-on, because when you get through adding the extras, you're back to life at the top. If a sightseeing tour is-"optional" but not buying it leaves you sitting around for an hour or two with no free or worthwhile substitute activity at hand, you could begin to think dark thoughts.

On the other hand, if you prefer having a hamburger around the corner rather than chicken and peas with your group in the hotel dining room, you might regard a skinned-down tour — thrift hotel, transportation and minimal sightseeing — as the biggest boon that could come your way.

travel

READ A FEW brochures and you'll begin to spot the differences between real thrift tours and those that only sound that way. Distance and length of stay of course are the major determiners of price, but when you want to figure which of two "similar" tours is the better buy, thrift, standard or deluxe, there are three important things to study:

What kind of bus will you travel on?

If there's a nonunderstandable difference in "twin" tours, it should alert you to ask about the age of the bus and how it's equipped. Older buses, like older cars, may be a little bouncier and noisier and subject to air-conditioning problems. Usually in the U.S., though, you can count on any tour bus to have restrooms, a loudspeaker system and adjustable, reclining seats. Abroad, the restroom feature is often missing. Ask and, if you want to play safe, be sure the equipment is described to your satisfaction in your brochure-tour contract.

Here, the Interstate Commerce Commission is empowered to see that professional tour brokers "faithfully carry out" their promises concerning interstate travel.

Is the tour led by a special tour conductor or is it driver-escorted?

Driver-escorts are cheaper for the broker, but, because driving is demanding, there's a limit on how much real conducting is done. A tour conductor's expertise is important enough to make asking questions about his or her background and training a good idea. Continental Trailways, for one, won't put a tour escort to work alone until he or she has done at least one or two practice trips with experienced escorts. Abroad, you'd better make sure ahead of time that your escort speaks the same language you do. Don't just take it for granted.

What standard of hotels is used?

Don't forget that expensive ones are generally more expensive in all departments, from the price of morning orange juice to laundry, pressing and baggage handling.

There are tours with all meals included, all meals excluded, a big breakfast, a small breakfast, no breakfast, lunch in City X but not in City Y. The variations are infinite and if you shop around, chances are you can find something that hits you just right.

If you want some help shopping, they have the 1973 catalogues of all members of the National Tour Brokers Assn. at their headquarters, 3706 Alton Place, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20016, and they say they'll be glad to tell you what motor coach tour is going where if you write for specific information on times and places.

If you've cased the action out of your own city and found no winner, you might ask them to look up what's leaving from a nearby city. Just do your writing well ahead because answering will take time.

For comfort's sake you might want to assure yourself that there are a few seats customarily kept empty on your motor coach tour, the better for you to move around and feel freer in. Daily seat rotation is usually mentioned but if it isn't, ask to be sure of getting a turn at the good ones or at least not being surprised if you don't.

Check the timetables. Most motor coach tours are geared for senior citizens and senior citizens are presumed to be early risers and early diners. If you're not, you may be getting on the wrong bus.

Next time try the train. And a bus. And a ship. And maybe an airplane to boot.

Greyhound Highway Tours operate package tours to Alaska which combine all these exciting means of transportation.

The basic tour is an unforgettable 24-day journey to America's last frontier — a part of the country that has remained virtually unchanged with the passage of time.

Following the Alaska Highway, the tour includes visits to many of the places made famous in history and legend — Dawson Creek; Whitehorse, capital of the Yukon; Fort Nelson, an early fur trading post; Mt. McKinley, the tallest mountain on the North American Continent; Fairbanks, Anchorage, Skagway, Juneau and many, many more.

WHILE MOST of the tour is on board a comfortable Greyhound bus, two other modes of travel are used. On the return trip, the Greyhound bus goes "piggy-back" on the White Pass and Yukon Railroad with tour passengers riding in the arm-chair luxury of an observation coach for the 110 mile journey over the "Klondike Trail" from Whitehorse to Skagway through some of the most scenic country to be found anywhere in the world.

From Skagway the tour includes a three-day trip on board the Alaska State Ferry to Prince Rupert in British Columbia with a one-day stop in Juneau and a visit to beautiful Mendenhall Glacier nearby.

A fourth mode of travel, air, also may be used by passengers who elect to take any of the optional side trips — to Nome, Kotzebue, or to Kodiak from Anchorage and to Point Barrow from Fairbanks.

This is the seventh year Greyhound has been conducting tours to Alaska, and they rank among the most popular of the nearly 100 escorted tours the company operates to points of interest throughout the United States.

THE SHORT SEASON in the north country limits the number of tours that can be operated to Alaska. Greyhound will have six departures from Seattle, Wash., on June 21, July 5, 19 and 26 and August 9 and 23.

Anyone interested in this outstanding tour should make reservations as early as possible to ensure a place on one of the departures.

Details on the Alaska tour are available at all Greyhound terminals and travel bureaus and local travel agents.

Canada to establish new national parks

More than 18,500 square miles of unspoiled wilderness in the Yukon, Northwest Territories, and Baffin Island have been set aside to create three new Canadian National Parks.

These are Kluane in southwest Yukon Territory, Nahanni in southwest Northwest Territories, and Baffin Island National Park on the Cumberland Peninsula on the east side of that island.

Kluane contains the towering St. Elias Range, including 19,850-foot Mount Logan, Canada's highest peak. It is close to one of the world's largest non-polar glacier systems.

Nahanni boasts Virginia Falls which plunge 300 feet, almost twice as high as Niagara Falls. There is also a hot-spring with water at 109 degrees, surrounded by luxuriantly growing northern plants.

Off Baffin, it is possible to see rare blue whales.

If you're going to Acapulco looking for fun this summer, look no further than the Acapulco Hilton.

$30.50* 3 days, 2 nights "Do It Now" Holiday, plus round-trip air fare.

We put the Acapulco Hilton right in the middle of the best-equipped adult playground in the Americas.

We gave every room a private balcony overlooking the Bay. We removed the undertow from our huge beach. We put in a discotheque and an elegant supper club—informal dining, no jacket, no tie.

There's an Acapulco Bay cruise and a welcome cocktail party included in your "Do It Now" Holiday. Also available are tennis, fishing, horseback riding and sky sailing. Plus terrific shopping and sightseeing in the city.

For fun, there's Friday's "Night on Bora Bora" party, an excuse for a lot of carrying on. At our Saturday beach barbecue, the hardest thing you'll be doing is keeping sand out of your tequila. At Sunday's Mexican Night, there's marathon folk dancing with pretty swinging people.

Western Airlines has daily nonstop service from Los Angeles. Western's famous Fiesta Flight service gives you a choice of entrée in both First Class and Coach, plus First Class Legspace for everyone and, of course, complimentary champagne for every adult. TV reruns: are they necessary?

Robert Clary— he's a daytime 'hero' now

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

Ever wonder what has become of someone you used to see regularly on television?

Of course — we all do.

Often, after a popular series goes off the air following a lengthy run, some of the performers seem to disappear from the airwaves. Some of them, perhaps, decide to gather up all their money and take life easy. Others may be unsuccessful in attempts to land new TV roles.

Whatever the reason, they vanish from our lives after coming into our homes like friends, week after week, for years. And we miss them.

Take Robert Clary. The little French native played Cpl. Louis LeBeau throughout the six-year run of "Hogan's Heroes" on CBS-TV. It went off the air (except for syndicated reruns) after the 1970-71 season, and, unless you're a daytime TV viewer, you haven't seen much of him since then.

Yes, Bob's in soap opera now. Anybody who can have fun in a World War II prisoner of war camp can have fun anywhere.

He's one of the stars of the new daytime dramatic serial "The Young and the Restless," which made its bow on CBS-TV March 26. It airs weekdays from 11 to 11:30 a.m.

I had lunch with the talented actor-singer-comedian last Tuesday at the Beverly Hills Brown Derby, and had to admit to him that I seldom have the opportunity to watch daytime shows.

"Good!" he said, with a laugh. "Now, I can make up anything I want to about the show. First of all, the cast is very young. We're all under 32."

A great kidder, as you can see. Clary has been well known as an entertainer in America since appearing on Broadway in "New Faces of 1952" — and he was no subteen at the time. Actually, he is well into his 40s, but looks much younger.

Bob has a youthful manner, too. He exhibits a boyish grin and laughs a lot, and seems to be as full of fun in real life as he was on "Hogan's Heroes."

"I'm one of the few older ones on the new show," he confessed. "Most of the cast is young and beautiful."

The serial apparently is aimed at attracting young married women viewers in particular — "but we'll take the old ones, too," Bob pointed out. It is set in Genoa City, a mythical city of about 250,000 in upper mid-America, and revolves around two families with a number of children in their upper teens and early 20s.

"I play Pierre, the owner of a restaurant-nightclub where much of the action takes place," Clary pointed out in his engaging French accent. "One thing different about our series is that it has music — I sing on the program about once a week. Most daytime series are so serious, you know."

Pierre may be older than most of the other characters, but that doesn't mean he's past the age of romance. Said Bob: "I'm in love with a blonde waitress — played by Lee Crawford — but she's got a crush on another guy, who's interested in someone else."

"Are you having an affair with her?" I asked (I know what goes on in these daytime serials!)

"No," replied Bob, "I just bite my nails."

BEFORE "The Young and the Restless" came on the air, Clary had been appearing as a semi-regular member of the cast of another daytime series, "Days of Our Lives." In that, he portrayed a nightclub performer. So he's moving up — now he owns the joint.

The new series, incidentally, was created by the head writer for "Days of Our Lives," William Bell, who now is head writer for both shows. "The Young and the Restless" is produced by Screen Gems and is videotaped at CBS Television City in Hollywood — the only CBS daytime serial drama produced on the West Coast.

One of the things Clary likes best about doing a TV series is that he can stay in one place. "I hate to travel," he told me. "I enjoyed doing 'Hogan's Heroes' because it meant I didn't have to travel anymore. I hated to see it canceled."

Before "Hogan's Heroes," Clary was known mainly as a singer. Then, with the long run of the TV comedy hit, he came to be thought of mainly as an actor. Now, he's happy to have the opportunity of both acting and singing.

"It's the best of both worlds," he said. "I enjoy them both — singing and acting. And I hope to do them both for a long time to come."

ROBERT CLARY . . . one of 'The Young and Restless.'

He admits that his French accent limits his opportunities as an actor. Also, his size is no asset — he's only about 5-foot-3. But the little guy has talent enough to offset any liabilities.

THE YOUNGEST of 13 children — his father was a tailor whose workshop was in the family home in Paris — Robert was, he concedes, a natural-born entertainer. (Maybe, in a family of that size, singing was the only way the littlest one could gain any attention.) He began singing on Paris radio shows at age 12 and that led to nightclubs. In 1948, he was persuaded to record the song "Johnny, Get Your Girl" for the American market in English, a language of which he knew not a word. The record was a big seller, and the next year he came to America to make more records and launch a nightclub career here.

Clary was singing at La Vie en Rose in New York City when he was signed to appear in "New Faces of 1952" on Broadway. Others in the remarkable cast of the revue included Eartha Kitt, Paul Lynde, Carol Lawrence, Ronnie Graham and Alice Ghostley.

"There were three numbers that stopped the show every night," Clary recalled. "One by Eartha, one by Alice Ghostley and my singing of 'I'm in Love With Miss Logan.'"

Other stage shows, movies and TV followed.

In 1950, Bob had been introduced to Eddie Cantor's daughter Natalie by his friend Merv Griffin. Fifteen years later, in 1965, they were married.

Before that, I guess, he was young and restless.

Reruns: Can anything be done about them?

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — If you feel television's rerun season gets earlier each year, you're right. It once began in mid-April. This year, it began March 7 at CBS, a day later at NBC and ABC, and got into full swing by mid-March.

Bernard Balmuth, a quiet, 54-year-old film editor, thinks this is all wrong and hopes to reverse the trend. The way he's going about it is giving the networks a king-sized headache.

Last May, Balmuth capped his long-standing gripe against the increasing number of reruns by formally petitioning the Federal Communications Commission to put a limit on them.

His plea, known to the FCC as FM-1977, asked the agency to restrict network reruns to a "maximum of 25 per cent of the allotted prime (evening) time during a specified television year."

It touched off a vigorous rerun defense by the networks — all cited skyrocketing production costs in Hollywood — and support by President Nixon for Hollywood's reduce-the-reruns gang.

"Curiously enough, my petition wasn't prompted by the fact I work in the film industry," said Balmuth, who works for Columbia Pictures and lives in North Hollywood. "I filed it as a viewer."

He said he wasn't surprised by the uproar caused by his plea, which since its filing has drawn vociferous support both before the FCC and the public by 29 Hollywood unions and guilds.

"It was an obvious crusade everybody should take part in," said Balmuth, whose petition asserts that 80 per cent of those toiling in motion pictures work in TV production and that reruns now deprive them of work for as much as six months a year.

NO COMPLETE figures on network reruns are yet available for the 1972-73 season. But what about last season?

Chester L. Midgen, president of the multi-union Film and Television Coordinating Committee formed to back Balmuth, says the reruns then were "in excess of 50 per cent" of network evening shows.

However, Broadcasting magazine comes up with a lower percentage that the White House Office of Telecommunications Policy — which made its own rerun study — says agrees with its figures.

Broadcasting, using the New York edition of TV Guide, analyzed the 1971-72 season and found that reruns accounted for 41 per cent of the season's prime-time network programs.

It said that ABC had the lowest proportion of reruns — 36 per cent — and CBS the highest, with 44.8 per cent.

CBS roared the loudest in defending the current rerun pattern. The roar came from the network's president, Robert Wood, in a speech last September in Beverly Hills.

He said production costs had grown so high that if the networks were obligated to put out 12 more weeks of new programming, as some critics had proposed, it would cost $150 million compared with $30 million for reruns.

"The $120 million difference would have wiped out the combined profits of the three networks during 1969, the most successful year in television history," he said.

MIKE DANN, CBS-TV's programming chief during that year, agrees that spiraling Hollywood production costs gradually have brought on television's short season.

"There's no question of that," says Dann, now a lecturer at Yale and a consultant to the Children's Television Workshop.

"Since an hour's new program now costs somewhere around $250,000 to make and a repeat may run only about $30,000, the tremendous increase in costs is controlled very easily by reducing the number of new programs," he says.

He said when network television moved heavily into film series in the late 1950s it had a programming formula of either 42 new shows and 8 repeats, or 39 originals and 13 reruns.

"By 1962-63, a very clear trend was developing: to decrease the number of new programs so that, as of now, the number of new shows is normally never over 25," he said, referring only to series shows.

He said the reduction in that type of show was gradual and generally unnoticed until 1970, when Paul Klein, then a top NBC executive, publicly said NBC's 1969-1970 season would end March 22.

"It brought out into the open very clearly how short the seasons were," Dann said. "Nobody realized it, because it (the short season) was never discussed.

"It was the first time a network said, 'the season ends when repeats start.' Nobody wanted to talk too much about that." Why?

"It wasn't good for public relations to talk about repeat shows," Dann said.

NETWORK silence prevailed again this month when top network officials were asked what effect they felt jawboning by the Nixon Administration would have on their future rerun programming.

The questions drew reruns of original speeches made on the rerun issue last September by Wood and in December by Julian Goodman, president of NBC.

Wood, normally quite available to the press, sent word through a spokesman that it would be premature to speculate on the effect of whatever the Administration might do. Goodman declined to comment.

ABC officials reran a corporate statement on the subject that was issued last September, but added a postscript.

ABC said it hadn't significantly increased its number of reruns in a decade and asserted that 10 years ago, 69 per cent of its prime-time shows were first-run and now the figure is 65 per cent.

It said the charge that reruns have caused wide unemployment in Hollywood "is a grossly oversimplified and distorted conclusion. The real reason employment has declined is the decision of Hollywood producers to make fewer motion pictures and to make them away from Hollywood."

Meanwhile, back at his September speech, Wood made one point echoed three months later by Goodman. Wood said it was "completely cockeyed" to say networks force viewers to watch programs they've already seen.

He contended that when the average program first is shown about "131 million people—86 per cent of television's potential audience—do not see it." In other words, it's an original for many.

Goodman's speech raised the initial non-viewing ante by one per cent. He said the important thing to realize is "that for 87 per cent of the viewers, a rerun is an original — because they've never seen it."

BALDERDASH, says Balmuth: "They argue that way, but when you sit down at the negotiating table with them and ask for higher residuals, they impress us with the fact these are reruns and not original shows."

By residuals, he referred to a sliding scale of payments that composers, performers and writers get each time a show on which they worked is broadcast by a network.

While the debate roars on, what is the outlook for a reduction in reruns? Not good, says Mike Dann.

"I think the networks will have to continue to run repeats because of the economics," he said. "The economics are simply going to keep the repeat pattern exactly the way it is now.

"It could even increase. There's no reason to believe the number of repeats has reached its maximum level."

Will the White House reduce-the-rerun campaign work?

"I think the networks would like to put on as many preemptions (specials) as they could, but I don't think it (White House efforts) is going to have any effect on the repeat pattern," he said.

"I don't think anybody can change that. The networks are under the free enterprise system. They must do what they must do."

The White House Office of Telecommunications Policy says the networks refuse to consider adopting voluntary rerun limits.

It now is asking the FCC to make a full study of the issue and consider whatever regulatory action may be appropriate to protect the public interest.

An FCC spokesman, meanwhile, says the agency will decide in late spring or early summer if it'll hear Balmuth's petition. And what does viewer-editor Balmuth think of the whole mess?

"Looking back on it," he said, somewhat sadly, "I had hoped that this situation wouldn't have been necessary.

'Laugh-In' is on the way out, but who will ever forget it?

By JERRY BUCK

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The Man from U.N.C.L.E." was going off the air at midseason and NBC decided to take a chance with a new comedy show.

That new show, "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In," landed in January 1968 with the impact of a bucket of water in the face.

It changed the language: Sock it to me. Here come de judge. You bet your sweet bippy. Look that up in your Funk and Wagnalls.

"Laugh-In" changed viewing habits. It put Beautiful Downtown Burbank on the map. Its influence was felt in advertising, movies and the stage. Verrry interesting.

Most of all, it changed television. "Laugh-In" is fading and soon will be gone, but it left the tube permanently bent in its own wacky, irreverent, free-wheeling image.

"IT REVOLUTIONIZED television," said Paul Keyes, originally head writer and later producer. "It loosened up what you could do and what you couldn't do. I think before us, except for the midnight shows, television was fairly bland.

George Schlatter, former executive producer, said: "Without 'Laugh-In,' you'd never have had 'All in the Family' or 'Sanford and Son' or any of the others. It brought back satire.

" 'Laugh-In' was the first pure television show. Everything else was an abbreviation of something else. From radio or vaudeville or the stage."

Dick Martin said, " 'Laugh-In' made a major contribution but it wasn't on purpose. It was accidental. We're proud of it. It did change television and we take credit only that we didn't start out to. All we did was make it mandatory for the audience to keep its eyes glued to the set."

"Laugh-In" got people to talking about television again. Its rapid-fire gags, many of them dreadful, were repeated by millions every Tuesday morning.

It was the first television show to truly take advantage of the electronic medium and stretch its technical capabilities to the maximum. For every hour on the air as many as 23 hours were taped and painstakingly edited and spliced together. Technical equipment built to handle the editing job is now in common use throughout the industry.

"LAUGH-IN" took two night-club comics who had never really made it big, Dan Rowan and Dick Martin, and turned them into overnight sensations.

It took a group of complete unknowns and made them household words: Goldie Hawn, Lily Tomlin, Judy Carne, Jo Anne Worley, Arte Johnson, Gary Owens, Henry Gibson, Ruth Buzzi, Alan Sues, Chelsea Brown.

DAN ROWAN and Dick Martin, pictured in a late-vintage "Laugh-In," have squeezed the show's last laugh out, except for reruns.

JUDY CARNE is socked to it in the wettest running gag on television, during the early days of "Laugh-In."

People who seldom did television clamored to be on the show to utter inane lines. Among them: Richard M. Nixon, Republican candidate for president in 1968. Candidate Nixon asked "Sock it to me." An invitation to his Democratic opponent, Hubert H. Humphrey, was declined.

When "Laugh-In" premiered in January 1968 its 8-9 p.m. time slot lapped from the second half of "Gunsmoke" to the Lucille Ball show. Both "Gunsmoke" and "Lucy" were in the top five of the Nielsen ratings.

NBC had so little hope for the show that it had already signed a replacement.

"We had every pressure to make it a normal variety show" said Schlatter. "The network kept asking who are the guest stars? What are the songs? I finally said, 'Let me be right or let me be wrong, but let me be different.' They left us alone after that."

Fourteen weeks after its premiere "Laugh-In" hit the top of the ratings.

IT IS DIFFICULT to say exactly what caused the show to finally slip.

Inevitably, the form became predictable. The rapid barrage of old gags, new gags, innuendos and inanities no longer titillated. Instead of laughs they provoked yawns.

"The trouble was 'Laugh-In' went a year too long" said Martin. "We told NBC it was over, but they said it was sold out. 'Laugh-In' was a form and when the form becomes predictable, it becomes less interesting."

And as yesterday's avant garde is today's rear guard, so "Laugh-In" found itself surpassed by the shows it had made possible. "All in the Family" and others become more daring, more provocative, more outrageous, more thought provoking — and certainly funnier — than "Laugh-In."

It cannot be calculated how much internal bickering contributed to the downfall of "Laugh-In."

"Disagreement over what 'Laugh-In' was is probably what brought

Brando behind times: chief

Marlon Brando's reason for cutting Oscar dead — that "the motion picture community has been as responsible as any for degrading the Indian" — is rejected as "dated" by the only redskin ever to win an Academy Award nomination.

Squamish Indian Chief Dan George, 73, of British Columbia, guesting with David Carradine in the "Kung Fu" episode airing over ABC-TV from 9 to 10 p.m. Thursday, won that nomination in 1970 for his performance as Old Lodge Skins with Dustin Hoffman in "Little Big Man."

He commented: "The writers, producers and directors long ago changed to the Indians' own viewpoint in telling our story, so except for reruns of old movies on television, which Mr. Brando did mention, his protest is no longer valid."

"After 'Little Big Man' I received many letters and telephone calls from Indians throughout Canada, and from Crows and Cheyennes in Montana, expressing gratification with the way the conflict between our people and the whites was presented.

"In 'Ancient Warrior' — the "Kung Fu" episode — "I have again been given a role of dignity. The villains are played by whites, and it is established that their government broke a treaty with my tribe and provoked us to war in defense of our way of life.

"This is the whole trend in pictures and television today — to correct the injustice done to Indians in movies made years ago, and to show the so-called Winning of the West the way it truly was.

"All studios are on notice that I will never accept a role in a film that does dishonor to the Indians, showing us as vicious savages, but I don't think there is any danger of any studio doing a film like that these days."

In "Ancient Warrior" he portrays an Indian who is the last of his tribe, an old man coming home to die and wanting to be buried in a spot that is sacred to him, but begrudged the space by white settlers who hate all Indians because of a battle long ago.

So, at his request, Carradine helps him in a final gesture purging the hate with forgiveness for all the Wounded Knees.

Will Geer, Denver Pyle and Victor French also guest-star, under the direction of Robert Butler.

CHIEF DAN GEORGE, a 1970 Oscar nominee, guest-stars in the "Ancient Warrior" episode of "Kung Fu" on ABC Thursday night. Star of the series is David Carradine.

PAN AND FAN MAIL

ALTHOUGH I agree that the humor on "Bridget Loves Bernie" was rather sophomoric, I have mixed emotions over its leaving the air because some of the lines were priceless.

As a Bersteinian Marxist, I especially enjoyed Walter Fitzgerald's line that "if big business were run on honesty, this country would come to a standstill." I wonder if the show's writer realized how unfortunately true that comment was.

I READ WITH great interest your report on "The Small Miracle." In spite of the fact that I missed the first ten minutes of this lovely play, I enjoyed it.

It was a delightful story — well acted, showed how faith can be built into children's lives.

I'll never be able to go

SPECIAL

YIZKOR: REMEMBER (7), 3:30 p.m. — Howard Da Silva is narrator as "Directions" marks the anniversary of the 1943 Warsaw Ghetto destruction. Taped in January, the solemn oratorio, "A Memorial to the Holocaust of Six Million Jews," stars tenor Richard Tucker and soprano Bianca Saulee.

BALLAD of a Soldier (28), 10 p.m. — Shifted to Sunday this week because of station's "Auction '73" coverage, "Humanities Film Forum" offers Crigori Chukhrai's 1960 film about a young Russian soldier during World War II, who earns a six-day leave to visit his mother. His fleeting encounters en route home are the basis of the story.

SPECIAL

STEAMBATH (28), 10 p.m. — A bizarre comedy by Bruce Jay Friedman, seen originally off-Broadway three years ago, shifts "Hollywood TV Theatre" from its normal family-viewing hour. Utilizing black comedy that stops at nothing—including nudity, homosexuality and obscenity—play was directed by Burt Brinkerhoff and stars Bill Bixby, Jose Perez and Valerie Perrine. Story takes place entirely in a steamroom populated by a melting pot assortment of characters, temporary stop for wandering souls en route to life after death.

VALERIE PERRINE and Bill Bixby star in the Hollywood Television Theatre production of "Steambath," which airs Monday night on Channel 28. The play by Bruce Jay Friedman is a bizarre comedy about 12 dead characters in a steambath.

SPORTS TODAY

BASKETBALL, 6 p.m. (7), has Chick Hearn and Jerry West courtside at San Diego for the second game in the rematch series between Russia and the U.S. Bill Walton's due for his second appearance on the U.S. all-star squad.

'LAUGH-IN' NEAR END

about my departure," said Schlatter. "In the original deal I had undisputed control and in the first four years I did the show the way I wanted and I was proud of it. At the point I could no longer control the show I left."

KEYES QUIT the show earlier, walking out in October 1969 calling the show "slanted, vulgar and dirty." He denied at the time that it had anything to do with his friendship with President Nixon. He said he had not been under White House pressure to stop the sniping at Nixon because he did not think there had been any.

Eighteen months later Schlater was out and Keyes was back.

"When I came back the writers asked, 'Does this mean the Nixon jokes are out?' Keyes said. "I said, 'Give me your political jokes. Don't give me your political views.' "

Much of the argument centered on who had created "Laugh-In." Schlatter claims credit and said his claim is on file with the Writers Guild of America. He said the title and the show will revert to him once it goes off the air this summer.

"Rowan and Martin were not in it from the beginning," said Schlatter, a round-faced, bearded man. "The original deal was for the form. Rowan and Martin may have contributed to the success of the show more than we know. They were little known. They added a touch of sanity.

"They were the only foreign element to 'Laugh-In.' We never really agreed on it. They didn't understand the form."

Martin said, "In the beginning we were very lavish with the credits. No longer will we be Mr. Nice Guy. No longer will we mention collaboration. Where did 'Laugh-In' come from? Dan and I brought it to television."

INSIDE THE TUBE

By BILL MAHAN

No employes in the world depend as much on luck as those in the entertainment business. By employes I mean every person from the grips, prop men, secretaries, janitors through the producers and executives.

Filmation is the largest producer of animated cartoons in the world and it has been in business only since 1966. Its slogan is "Disney Yesterday — Filmation Today."

On TV, Filmation now brings you "Archie," "Sabrina," "The Teen-Age Witch," "The Brady Kids," and "Fat Albert and the Cosby Kids." In the fall will come "My Favorite Martian," "Lassie," and "Star Trek."

The firm is working on "Oliver," "Treasure Island," "Huckleberry Finn," and "The Three Musketeers" for the big screen. Its enormous success is quite a story.

The company is run by three young men named Norman Prescott, Hal Sutherland and Louis Scheimer. Before Filmation was formed, Sutherland and Scheimer had been animators and Prescott an entrepreneur who helped make Joe Levine's "Hercules" the tremendous success it was.

All three men were disgusted with the sporadic work in the business, so they decided to rent an office and go into business for themselves. Unfortunately business wasn't very good and they found themselves discussing bankruptcy sitting in one of the 21 empty offices surrounding them.

They were folding the company that day. Then the telephone rang and a man who called himself Superman asked to speak to Prescott. Superman was really Mort Weisinger, who was the story editor for Action Comics in New York. He knew nothing about film making but knew about Prescott and the company he had formed. He asked Prescott if he would be interested in a contract to make a cartoon series from "Superman."

Prescott, not believing what was happening, responded in the affirmative and Weisinger said he would send an aide out to look over their studio. The aide would arrive day after tomorrow.

Now Prescott, Sutherland and Scheimer had to go to work. They called every friend they had, borrowed typewriters,

The BIBLE Says

Question: "Have miracles ceased?"

Yes, the Bible says that miracles have ceased. The apostle Paul spoke of the coming end of the age of miracles. "Charity never faileth: but whether there be prophecies, they shall fail; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away. For we know in part, and we prophesy in part. But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away" (1 Cor. 13:8-10).

Paul clearly foresaw a time when miraculous activities would cease. He uses three activities as illustrative of the whole category of spiritual gifts that existed in the early New Testament church — prophecies, tongues, and inspired knowledge. Paul says that while these things continued, it was a partial situation; when they ceased, it would be a completed situation. During the days of the apostles and the early days of the church, they did not yet have the New Testament — completed revelation. Thus, they knew in part. But when God's completed revelation came, knowledge would be complete. Then, miracles would cease. "The purpose of New Testament miracles was to confirm the spoken word (MK., 16:20, Heb. 2:3-4). When the word was finally delivered in written form, no further need existed for miracles." The analogy of this passage is clear — partial knowledge, completed knowledge. When knowledge was complete in the delivered word, the New Testament — miracles would cease.

Some have tried to apply "that which is perfect is come" to Christ at His second coming, and thus have miracles cease when Christ comes again. But the original language will not permit this — to teleion, neuter gender. If it referred to Christ, it would be masculine gender and read, "when He Who is perfect is come." But this it does not do. "That which is perfect" refers to completed revelation, "the perfect law of liberty" (Jas. 1:25). The Bible says that miracles indeed have ceased.

SPECIAL

WHY DO LIONS Have Yellow Eyes? (2), 7:30 p.m. — In a light-hearted study of animal lore, showing behavioral differences of the wild life at Lion County Safari host Lloyd Bridges has ready answers for the intriguing questions of curious youngsters.

IT TAKES a Lot of Love (2), 8 p.m. — A reprise look at the devotion that exists between animal fanciers and their pets is hosted by Chad Everett. Visits include one to a super-plush hotel for dogs, and a mental health facility where an Irish setter provides loving therapy for emotionally disturbed youngsters. KUNG FU

(7), 9 p.m. — A dying Indian returns to his native valley for burial — but his chosen burial place now is in the middle of the western town's main street. Chief Dan George, who guest stars, notes that Brando spoke up about ten years too late. SAGA OF SONORA

(4), 10 p.m. — In a musical spoof of Westerns, a young man is transformed back to the 19th century and into a handsome hero, and as sheriff of a Western town meets with opposition from the town boss. Don Adams hosts, with Vince Edwards and Zero Mostel heading the cast of stars.

FLIP WILSON and guest star Tony Randall appear on Thursday night's "Flip Wilson Show" as an injured football player and an acupuncturist.

Sex education films OKd for coed kid group

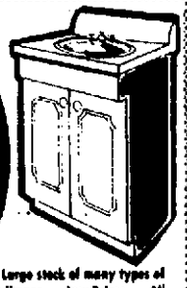

REDDING (UPI) — Redding Elementary School District trustees have approved three film strips and a movie on sex education for showing to mixed groups of students, although questions were raised as to whether boys and girls should view the materials together.

The films were recommended to the trustees for sixth, seventh and eighth graders by the parent advisory committee and the district nurse, Ruth Frazier.

Asked about the mixed showings, Mrs. Frazier said, "We do not have nearly the problem we would have if we separated them. The less production we make over it, the better off we will be."

The district's sex education program requires written parental consent from each student participating.

to Italy, therefore I enjoyed seeing the countryside, the entrance into Rome, the scenes in the church. It was so interesting I didn't realize how fast time was passing, until I realized there would be only 20 minutes more of this lovely story.

I also like "Bridget Loves Bernie" and Mary Tyler Moore. Merv Griffin, I can take or leave. I think he delves too much into the private lives of his guests. I wonder how he would like it if a guest would ask questions about his impending divorce.

COULD YOU TELL me why they have dumped "Here We Go Again" and "A Touch of Grace"? I just watched them both — and looked forward to Saturday evening seeing them.

Every one in these shows were excellent and the writers of these shows excelled — clever, funny, down to earth, etc., etc.

So much trash — illness — sex — etc. — that these cute shows should never have been dumped. Best to each in the cast. Mrs. L. E. Gapen

(The two shows were dropped because they regularly finished near the bottom of the Nielsen ratings.)

WHEN THEY give out the Emmy Awards, why can't they give one to Bill Welch? He has been around for years and still has lots of pep. We love him! Mr. & Mrs. M. Brown

IN ANSWER to Brad E. Altman, who sees no harm in the "new morality" and an easygoing approach to sex:

I suggest that he study the statistics on illegitimate births, divorce, and emotionally disturbed children — as the "new morality" has made a major contribution to the increase in all three. Many emotionally disturbed children are the result of broken homes, and or fatherless homes.

The "casual" approach to sex, only means sex without responsibilities — sometimes harmless in itself perhaps (?), other times resulting in an innocent child bearing the emotional consequences of the casual adult act.

Anyone who thinks this is past history due to birth control pills and abortion should study the current statistics.

It is easy for a male to see "no harm" when it is the female who usually bears the burden — emotional, physical, financial and every other way. No doubt in most cases, the mothers of illegitimate children go through a private hell of their own. And all too often a perfectly innocent child pays, too.

In case Mr. Altman prefers to think only of the male viewpoint, it is interesting to note that the "new morality" has its drawbacks for the male, too. According to latest reports, males are suffering from increasing impotency problems, due to sexually educated and liberated women's increasing demands for adequate sexual performance and equal satisfaction.

Women are no longer accepting selfish and unsatisfying sex because they have learned they are entitled to something better.

Sex is an emotional relationship and the ideal sexual relationship also contains love and trust and a future together — the more good feelings the partners have toward each other, the more satisfaction they will also find in their sex life.

The casual and selfish sexual act simply has no comparison with the loving and giving mature relationship between a husband and wife who care, communicate, have trust in each other and share lifelong goals.

Unfortunately, many people, due to inadequacies in their upbringing and their emotional makeup, and early conditioning in today's "new (selfish) morality," will never know what they are missing. Mrs. Allen Steele hooked up telephones and had many other friends standing by to make incoming calls.

INSIDE TUBE

When Weisinger's aide arrived and entered the Filmation premises he was greeted by action that would have made even Superman take notice. Ted Knight, who plays the newscaster on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," was relatively unknown at the time. He was a friend of Prescott's and his assignment was to keep running from office to office repeating the lines "There's trouble in the lab."

After the aide had looked things over thoroughly he turned to the Filmation executives and said, "You've really got a swinging operation here." He reported the same to Weisinger and Filmation was born.

The real Supermen are Prescott, Sutherland and Scheimer. They are bringing quality film to the kids who like cartoons and stare at the tube. When their opportunity came along they were ready and executed their chores with class.

Announcing a unique new supplementary hospital policy. If your application is accepted, you will receive benefits of $40 a day... from the first day in the hospital for any sickness or accident.

Continental Casualty's CNA/PLUS Supplementary Hospital Plan

Continental Casualty's unique new CNA/PLUS supplementary hospital plan

If you qualify for this plan, your coverage begins immediately for any sickness...any accident–bar none. And you receive benefits from your first day in the hospital.

If you compare the new CNA/PLUS plan with many of the other supplementary hospital plans available, you'll find a number of features in our plan that set it apart. For example, there are...

No waiting periods— your coverage begins immediately

If your application for the new CNA/PLUS supplementary hospital plan is accepted, we insure you against any sickness or accident—not just most of them. You're eligible for the benefits this plan offers the minute your policy is in force . . . not 6 months, a year or even two years from now.

Unlike many hospital supplements, this plan offers you benefits beginning with your first day in the hospital—not three days after you're confined. You'll receive CNA/PLUS benefits no matter how long you are laid up in the hospital. There is no time limit and no maximum amount. Your benefits may continue for life, if need be, at the rate of $40 a day.

Benefits begin with your first day in the hospital for all sicknesses—any accident

In other words, if you are hospitalized, you have benefits coming. You are also entitled to benefits if your wife or children are hospitalized—assuming you have chosen one of the CNA/PLUS plans that covers them. Should you and your wife both be hospitalized, you'll receive benefits for both of you.

Your wife's benefit is the same as yours–in both the Husband/Wife Plan and the Family Plan. The Family Plan also covers each child at a benefit level of $30 a day while hospitalized. However, routine nursery care and in-hospital care of a healthy infant are not covered.

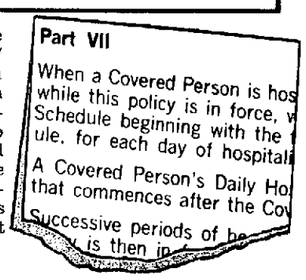

It is common practice to put a time limit on benefits in many supplementary hospital plans. Or, a certain figure may be stated, beyond which, you are no longer entitled to benefits.

CNA/PLUS has neither limitation. It will return benefits on any person covered by this plan for as many days as that person is in the hospital—regardless of time or amount of benefits. Unless you have assigned your benefits to the hospital, your benefits will be sent directly to you.

Here is this Plan's one EXCLUSION

This is the one exclusion you will find in the CNA/PLUS plan—word for word—as it appears in the policy: "We will not pay benefits for hospitalization in a hospital that does not customarily charge its patients, in the absence of insurance." For example, benefits are not payable in V.A., Federal, state or local government hospitals.

As you can see from the wording above, the CNA/PLUS policy is written in plain English—with a minimum of legal-sounding language. This is so you can really understand what you're getting. The portion of the policy reproduced at right shows the large, readable print used throughout.

Renewability

Your CNA/PLUS policy can only be terminated if all policies with this same form number in your state are terminated. Likewise, your premium cannot be changed unless the premium on all policies in your state are changed. You may terminate your policy at any time.

These are your CNA/PLUS benefits for each day, week, month you're hospitalized

Let's suppose you have the Individual Adult Plan and go to the hospital. Your benefits are $40 a day beginning with your first day of hospitalization . . . regardless of whether you are in the hospital for sickness or an accident. The amount depends on the number of days you are hospitalized. Example: 1 day—$40 . . . 7 days—$280 dollars . . . 30 days—$1200 dollars.

Your benefits continue for as long as you're hospitalized

Under terms of this plan, you will receive benefits whether you're hospitalized for a single day, a week, a year or for the rest of your life. You are also entitled to benefits—sent directly to you—for your wife ($40 per hospital day) or any child at birth through 18 years of age ($30 per hospital day) provided you chose the CNA/PLUS Family Plan.

How we can offer this unique plan at these reasonable rates

Most newspaper offerings of hospital insurance accept all applicants, regardless of their state of health, including many people with a history of illness.

To keep rates from going too high, many of these policies do not immediately cover health conditions for which an applicant has recently received medical treatment or advice. In insurance language, these health conditions are called "pre-existing conditions" and are often not covered for 6, 12 or sometimes 24 months.

CNA/PLUS is different. If you qualify, you are immediately covered for all conditions, including pre-existing conditions. This is possible because you are selected by our underwriters on the basis of a reasonably good health record—as stated in your application. Please be sure to include all items of health history, as required by the application. An omission could result in voiding of your policy.

Can people who don't have perfect health be accepted?

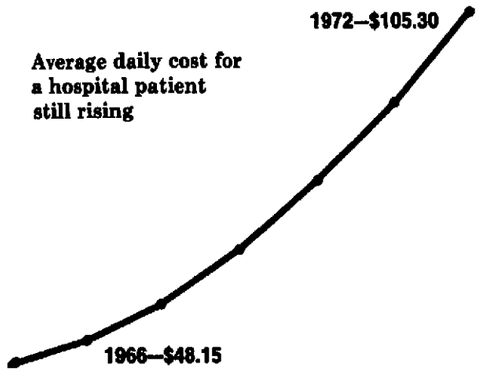

Of course! In fact, we anticipate that we'll be able to accept about 80% of all applicants for CNA/PLUS. And once you are accepted, this plan covers you for all sicknesses—even those conditions you may have had before. And you are entitled to benefits immediately, if you do have to go to the hospital.

Why you may need CNA/PLUS

If your regular hospital plan (group or other) doesn't cover expensive medical-hospital-surgical bills completely, you may wish to use your CNA/PLUS benefits to supplement your other insurance. You may also use your benefits for those necessary extras that some plans do not cover, including: ambulance, X-rays, lab fees and so on.

Many people also discover, after they get to the hospital, that groceries aren't the only thing that have been hit by inflation. The graph above shows that the average cost per day for a hospital patient (nationwide) has risen from $48.15 in 1966 to $105.30 in 1972. And the cost is still rising!

The point is, many of us—even those who have hospital and medical care plans—need the kind of supplementary benefits made available by CNA/PLUS. The cost is reasonable to those who qualify.

Children's coverage

Under the CNA/PLUS Family Plan, all children you may have will be covered from birth at no increase in premium. Under the Husband/Wife Plan, new-born children are covered at birth; however, there will be an appropriate increase in premium. Please see the rate table for the Family Plan rates.

No reduction in benefits at age 65

If you are familiar with supplementary hospital plans, you may know that many such plans reduce benefits as much as 50% at age 65. This is not the case with CNA/PLUS.

This plan does not reduce your benefits at age 65, 70 or any other age. Nor do we reduce benefits for your spouse, if he or she is covered under one of the plans. You are entitled to benefits of $40 a day any time you are hospitalized—regardless of age, other insurance you may have, or Medicare. And, you may apply for CNA/PLUS at any age.

It won't cost you a cent to find out if you're eligible

All you need do is complete the application form attached, sign it and drop it in the mail. Send no money with this form, please. Your policy is issued on the basis of your answers to the questions. So please answer them carefully and completely.

In the meantime, to find out exactly what your premium will be, check the "Monthly Rate" chart by age and the CNA/PLUS plan you prefer. We urge you to act now, because who knows when you may need this protection. The sooner you apply, the better off you may be. If your application is accepted, coverage will begin with the effective date shown on the issued policy, provided you mail in the premium within ten days after you receive the policy.

CNA/PLUS Makes It Easy to Find the Plan That's Exactly Right For You

The Individual Adult Plan
This plan covers any adult, 18 or over, for one modest monthly premium. There are no restrictions as to age, sex or marital status. You can apply at any age. The plan is designed to supplement your regular hospital insurance, not to replace it. Daily benefits while hospitalized: $40 a day for life, if need be. Benefits begin with the first day in the hospital, and last as long as your hospitalization.

The Husband/Wife Plan
This plan covers both you and your wife for one modest monthly premium. Newborn children are covered at birth; however, there will be an appropriate increase in premium. Please see the rate table for the Family Plan rates. Daily benefits while hospitalized—for life, if necessary—are as follows: Husband $40 a day . . . wife $40 a day. All benefits begin with the first day in the hospital and last as long as the hospitalization. Benefits for hospitalization due to pregnancy will be payable only if such pregnancy commences after the effective date of the policy.

The Family Plan
This plan covers your entire family—husband, wife and children for one modest monthly premium . . . regardless of how many children you have. All children are covered from birth through 18 years of age. Future children are automatically included at birth with no increase in premium—however, routine nursery care and in-hospital care of a healthy infant are not covered. Daily benefits while hospitalized—for life, if necessary—are as follows: Husband $40 a day . . . wife $40 a day . . . each child $30 a day. All benefits begin with the first day in the hospital, and last as long as the hospitalization. Benefits for hospitalization due to pregnancy will be payable only if such pregnancy commences after the effective date of the policy.

CNA/PLUS supplementary hospital plan is available in most states.

Read on! Learn why you need this plan today!

Age 65 or Over ?... You Still Get Full Benefits of $33.33 a day ...$1,000 a month When You're Laid-Up In the Hospital...For Covered Illness or Covered Accident...Even for Life!

Benefits paid even if you have Blue Cross, Blue Shield, Medicare or any other insurance . . . and your rates will not automatically increase or your benefits decrease when you reach age 65!

Most folks 65 and over realize that Medicare doesn't cover all hospital bills. That's why they need the added coverage of the Daily Hospital Benefit Plan. Even if you're 65 or over, you'll receive FULL BENEFITS OF $33.33 a day . . . $1000.00 a month – for as long as you remain in the hospital – EVEN IF IT'S FOR THE REST OF YOUR LIFE! And here's good news for you if you're nearing 65 . . . your rates can increase only if there is a general rate increase on all of our policies of this type (Form 1-184) in your state. There is no limit to the number of days for which you are eligible to receive benefits.

YOU ARE WELCOME TO APPLY EVEN IF YOU ARE 65 OR OVER!

You are welcome into the Daily Hospital Benefit Plan no matter what your age and without any other qualifications to apply! Even if you are 75, 85 or older, you are still eligible. Pre-existing conditions will not be covered until your policy is in force for two years. All you must do is fill in the application form and mail it in the postage-free envelope with $1 for coverage for the first month. Renewal rates after the first month are listed below.

HERE'S WHAT IT COSTS

Form 1-184

Union Fidelity's Reasonable Monthly Rates

$33.33 a day . . $1,000.00 a month

Age at Enrollment	Individual Plan	Husband-Wife Plan (Age of younger Spouse)
16-39	$ 6.50	$13.00
40-49	$ 9.00	$18.00
50-54	$10.00	$20.00
55-64	$11.00	$22.00
65-74	$15.00	$30.00
75-79	$20.00	$40.00
80 & over	$22.00	$44.00

ALL-FAMILY PLAN

Take advantage of family savings . . . start up coverage for you and your spouse . . . your rate is based on the age of the younger spouse. For example: if the husband is 54 and the wife is 49, your rates are based on the age of the wife.

If both husband and wife are covered, you may cover all children under 19, regardless of the number, plus all future children, by adding $3.50 to the monthly rate. Benefits are $16.67 a day when each child is hospitalized.

If you are widowed or divorced you may include all your unmarried children under 19, regardless of the number, by adding $3.50 to your monthly rate.

ALSO AVAILABLE

$16.67 a day . . $500.00 a month

Age at Enrollment	Individual Plan	Husband-Wife Plan (Age of younger Spouse)
16-39	$ 3.25	$ 6.50
40-49	$ 4.50	$ 9.00
50-54	$ 5.00	$10.00
55-64	$ 5.50	$11.00
65-74	$ 7.50	$15.00
75-79	$10.00	$20.00
80 & over	$11.00	$22.00

ALL-FAMILY PLAN

Take advantage of family savings . . . start up coverage for you and your spouse . . . your rate is based on the age of the younger spouse. For example: if the husband is 54 and the wife is 49, your rates are based on the age of the wife.

If both husband and wife are covered, you may cover all children under 19, regardless of the number, plus all future children, by adding $1.75 to the monthly rate. Benefits are $8.33 a day when each child is hospitalized.

If you are widowed or divorced you may include all your unmarried children under 19, regardless of the number, by adding $1.75 to your monthly rate.

MATERNITY COVERAGE

In addition, if both husband and wife are covered, maternity coverage may be added by adding $3.00 to the $33.33-a-day Plan or $1.50 to the monthly rate for the $16.67-a-day Plan. Maternity benefits are the daily rate, with no limit to the number of days for which maternity benefits are payable.

NOTE: Your monthly rates will increase only if there is a general rate increase on all policies of this type (Form 1-184) in your state. Covered members, when they reach age 19, may obtain their own policy, regardless of their health, at the rate then in effect for their age group. What's more, they'll receive full credit for continuous coverage.

DAILY HOSPITAL BENEFIT PLAN so practical you'll want to cover your entire family!

Why We Can Offer This Coverage At Such Reasonable Rates

Union Fidelity enrolls a large number of people at one time, direct by mail. This highly efficient method of policy writing eliminates agents and reduces the high cost of underwriting and administration. In short, since we can issue many policies in a very short time we are able to cut all of our overhead costs substantially. Lower costs for us mean savings to you if you take advantage of the Daily Hospital Benefit Plan . . . the plan that pays $33.33 a day . . . $1,000 a month from the first day you're laid-up in the hospital for covered accident, and after the third day for covered illness, for as long as you're confined, even for life.

The Financially Sound Company Behind Your Policy

Union Fidelity Life Insurance Company, the company that stands behind your policy, is licensed in 49 states, Washington, D.C., Puerto Rico and Canada.

Union Fidelity holds a Policyholders' Recommended Rating from Best's, the nation's leading financial rating authority of insurance companies.

We created your policy with the pledge to provide much-needed benefits, at a modest cost, to people of all ages and in all walks of life.

For One Dollar *

YOU CAN HAVE THIS COVERAGE FOR THE FIRST MONTH

We're confident this Daily Hospital Benefit Plan is the best coverage you can get anywhere. When you get your policy, look it over, you have a 10 day right to examine it. You must be 100% satisfied that your Plan is exactly what we promise and exactly what you want. If you're not, send the policy back to us within 10 days and we will REFUND YOUR $1 IN FULL – at once. But meanwhile, you will be covered if you decide to keep this policy. And if you decide to continue this coverage, you do so at the rates that will not be raised because you grow older. Your rates can only increase if there is a general increase on all of our policies of this type (Form 1-184) in your entire state.

No red tape . . . Once you've decided to keep this coverage in force, you can have the satisfaction of knowing that your plan will be ready to provide the benefits you will need when you are hospitalized for all covered illnesses or covered accidents.

Apply Now!

"Tomorrow" may be too late. Mail your Form and ONE DOLLAR TODAY* for your first month's protection.

Mail Application Today You Are Guaranteed Acceptance! One Dollar ($1)* Can Cover Your Entire Family For The First Month.

To encourage you to take advantage of this Plan, we are making this offer with a 10-Day Inspection. Just fill in the Application Form on the back page of this booklet and mail it with $1*. Your policy will go into effect on the very day we issue it (generally the same day we receive your Application Form).

When you receive your policy, take your time to examine it carefully. It's written to be easy to understand. Show it to any trusted advisor. In fact, show it to your own insurance man . . . even though he probably works for another insurance company!

Even then, if you're not completely satisfied, return the policy within 10 days and your dollar will be cheerfully refunded with no questions asked. However, if you decide to continue this worthwhile coverage, you may do so at the rates shown on the reverse side of this page.

*(See page 3 for renewal rates)

YOUR QUESTIONS ANSWERED

1 Why do I need the Daily Hospital Benefit Plan in addition to my other insurance?

Chances are, your present hospital insurance won't cover all your hospital and medical expenses. You will need this coverage to help cover your uncovered expenses. And this plan pays as long as you're laid-up in the hospital for any covered sickness or covered accident, even for life, even if you're 65 or over.

2 When does my policy become effective?

The day we accept your completed application form we will issue your policy and put it in force immediately.

3 Will I qualify for benefits if I am in the hospital for less than a full month?

Of course you will! You will receive benefits at the rate of $33.33 a day . . . $1,000 a month from the first day for covered accident and after the third day for covered sickness.

4 Can you drop me?

Your policy is guaranteed renewable for life. We will not cancel, or refuse to renew your policy so long as you make your premium payments on time. You, of course, can drop your policy on any renewal date.

5 Can you raise my rates?

Your rates will increase only if there is a general rate adjustment affecting all of our policies of this type (Form 1-184) in your state. We will not increase your rates because of the number of claims you make or the amount of benefits you receive.

6 If there any limit on the amount of benefits for which I am eligible?

No. You're eligible to receive benefits for as long as you're hospitalized, even for life. And your policy will not be cancelled because you've made too many claims or collected too much money. There is no limit on the number of days for which you are eligible to receive benefits.

7 Can I join if I'm over 65?

Certainly! Medicare coverage is not enough. You need the additional coverage of the Daily Hospital Benefit Plan. Remember, you'll get $33.33 a day . . . $1,000 a month for as long as you're laid-up in the hospital for any covered sickness or covered accident, even for the rest of your life, even if you have Blue Cross, Blue Shield, Medicare or any other insurance. And another important point, there is no automatic increase in rates when you reach age 65. Conditions you have now, or have had before, will not be covered until your policy is in force for two years.

8 How do I join?

It's easy! Just fill in the brief application form and mail it with $1 for your first month's coverage (regardless of the number of people to be protected) in the handy postage-free envelope. BE SURE TO SIGN YOUR NAME. Mail your application today. Coverage starts as soon as it's processed. See renewal rates on page 3.

They're made from nutritious, natural ingredients, with no artificial colors, flavors or preservatives. Sure, there are a lot of granolas around, but Pillsbury has added something special to theirs—great, natural taste. Pillsbury granolas have the fresh crunch and delicious, natural flavor that you've been waiting for in granolas.

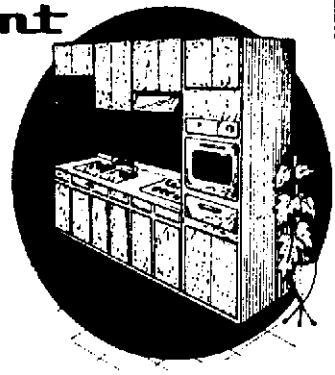

Pillsbury has skillfully blended delicious ingredients like raisins, seeds, almonds, coconuts, and honey into three great-tasting blends that we think you'll enjoy more than any other granola you've ever had before. There's Charles A. Pillsbury Basic Granola, Coconut and Cashew Granola and Raisin and Almond Granola. Pillsbury thinks granola should be more than just nutritious—they made sure it tasted great too! Try Charles A. Pillsbury granolas—the best 100 years of skill can make.

3 new granolas that taste just great!

Literary Pubs

The typewriter is one of the great conveniences of our century; no doubt about it. But like other machines it has left its impact on the environment. In return for its convenience, we have surrendered certain gracious institutions of civilized living.

Such as the literary pub.

When writers wrote in longhand, it was possible to establish squatter's rights to a secluded table in one's favorite public house where one could turn out a few pages of work while at the same time being periodically refreshed and keeping an eye on the action. Literary pubs and cafes thrived around the turn of the century, particularly in Europe.

But the typewriter ruined all that. One can hardly carry a portable and a briefcase full of paper into a bar. A typewriter is bulky and it is noisy. It takes two hands to operate, which with most people means there is no hand free to hold a glass. And after a couple of glasses, it is hard to keep one's fingers on the home keys.

Literary bars in their classic form today survive only in Dublin. Irish writers still prefer longhand. And the Irish literary tradition is still strongly oral. An Irish writer is expected to talk as good a story as he writes. He is also expected to drink and on occasion to brawl.

The American writer — novelists, screen writers or newsmen — have no such rigorous tradition to uphold, thank God. But in every city worthy of the name, there will be a few places, a few refuges of conviviality to which the wordsmiths retire to uphold their own drinking heritage, which if more modest than the Irish is equally honored.

To begin with, every daily newspaper has a house bar — a sometimes dark and rank place next door, or across the street, or around the corner, where newsmen stop after work along with pressmen in their square, paper hats and printers with pica rules in their back pockets. In Honolulu it is the Columbia Inn, in San Francisco it was Hanno's behind the Chronicle, in Los Angeles, the Redwood House until progress intervened. In Long Beach, it is Percy Ekegrin's Press Club on Pine Avenue.

The telephone numbers of these establishments are graven on the memory of every newsman's spouse. Contrary to the opinion of wives, the attractions of these places lie not in the bottled splendors dispensed by their owners but in the glory of the conversations that flourish there.

Newsmen stop for "just one" after work, but talk begins and flourishes like an impromptu symphony, and when one is participating in the creation of a collective work of art, it is hard to leave.

"I have an understanding with my wife," a newsman once told his friends at the Press Club. "If I'm not home by 7 p.m., she throws my dinner into the garbage disposer, but she doesn't turn it on until 11."

In addition to these newspaper bars, there are other, more prepossessing and expensive watering places frequented by writers as a class as well as by members of allied professions such as lawyers and cops.

In Los Angeles one will find writers at the Cock and Bull at the end of the Sunset Strip or at General Lee's in Chinatown. It was newspaper columnist Paul Coates, who gave the latter spot its name. When he found that the last name of the owner of his favorite Chinese restaurant was Lee, he, of course, assumed that it must be the famous Virginia family. After repeated references to General Lee's restaurant in his column, the owners sighed and changed the name.

Long Beach writers were dispersed when the old Docket was torn down, but lately have begun to reassemble at Kelly's and the Sportsman's Inn. Even columnist George Robeson has been turning up at those places lately.

Robeson tends to shun writers' bars in favor of establishments catering to bookies and honest workingmen. But when his favorite place was recently sold to a new owner who announced plans to turn it into a gay bar, George rejoined his colleagues.

Writers stay away from tourists' bars, but curiosity now occasionally brings them to the bars on the Queen Mary. These places have a spectacular view of the Long Beach skyline — a view that is gradually dimming as the portholes get dirtier and dirtier.

The City of Long Beach and the concessionaire that operates the bars are feuding over who should pay for washing the windows. So nobody washes them. It seems to be only a matter of time before the view of the skyline is gone entirely. □

Q: Were there any memorable incidents in General Patton's life that were left on the cutting room floor when George Scott made the film? — Maury H., Patchogue, N.Y.

A: At least one belonged in the final footage, though it probably wasn't included in the original script. An intelligence officer friend who was on the spot recalls the scene. "Once, when Gen. Bradley refused to receive Patton in the 12th Army area until he removed his colorful cowboy boots and pearl-handled 45s and put on traditional attire, Patton got furious and decided to get even. This he did when Generals Bradley and Eisenhower visited him in his own 3rd Army domain. He gave orders that both his superiors be issued cowboy boots and pearl-handled guns which they returned with wry grins as they left the Patton headquarters."

Q: Once and for all, is Ed Ames an Indian? Or isn't he? — Mrs. M.S.R., Cleveland.

A: Once and for all, he isn't, though he was plagued for years by being typecast as an Indian. "First," Ames explains, "I was a crusading redskin on Redigo. Then I went ape as a schizophrenic brave on Broadway. Then I made it as Mingo on the Daniel Boone Show. A Cherokee with a British accent and an Oxford degree." Ed, probably because of his height (6-foot-4), his dark complexion and his high cheekbones, was a natural to play a redskin. Actually he was born Edmund Urick in 1929 in Malden, Mass., of Jewish parents. They fled the Ukraine at the start of (no pun intended) the Red revolution.

Q: About how much money did the Andrews Sisters earn from their records during their heyday? — Mrs. Sally D., Denver.

A: Their royalty was two cents — on each of eight million Decca discs.

Q: Who were the original emcees on the old Breakfast at Sardi's radio program? — Mrs. Marshall L. Coade, Seattle.

A: It wasn't breakfast, but Luncheon at Sardi's. It originated in a popular theatrical restaurant still flourishing in the Broadway district under the aegis of the founder's son, Vincent Sardi Jr. The original WOR emcees were brothers Bill and Tom Slater, with Arlene Francis taking over the helm in its waning years.

Q: I can't find what an ombudsman is in my dictionaries. Can you enlighten me? — Mrs. E. Choquette, Falls Church, Va.

A: An ombudsman is a commissioner. In Scandinavian countries he's appointed by the legislature to protect the rights of the citizen against infringement by the government. Sweden has had one since 1809, Denmark since 1955, Norway since 1962. New Zealand was the first commonwealth country to appoint such an official (1962), and Great Britain named a Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration in 1967.

Look familiar? The Cinderella castle dominates Disney World's Fantasyland too. The Seven Dwarfs and other cartoon characters greet young guests and Big Albert is on hand to star in the Country Bear Jamboree.

Disney East

By FRED FERRETTI

Walt Disney World is filled with the songs of birds, but many of the songs come from little green speakers stuck in the ground. There are no pebbles on the custommade Disney beaches, and the water has the tepidity of a drawn-to-order bath. Disney boats never hit sandbars or founder on shoals; they run on wheels and rails. Disney animals are not endangered species because they are plastic and computerized and — best of all — 100 per cent replaceable.

There is no sex in Disney World, nor is there love — only cuddliness and niceness. All of the people who work in the world of Disney are young, handsome, invariably blond, ever-smiling and totally accommodating. Like living Barbie dolls they are, and their name tags identify them as Keri and Quent and Rick and Terri and Sueanne and Hank.

The Disney characters who made this world in central Florida possible — Mickey Mouse and Goofy and Donald Duck and Pluto and the Three Pigs — are models of niceness, too, ingenious cartoons carried into the third dimension and twice as large as life. They skip about and pose for pictures. Walt Disney's wolves growl, but you know they're not going to eat you. Captain Hook is a funny villain whose James Barrie nastiness has been transformed by Disney into a kind of mischievous rascality. Witches with their poisoned apples never bother visitors riding through Snow White's plastic forest.

Disney World is a world without violence, confrontation, ideological or racial clashes, without politics save for a recent poster campaign to elect Winnie the Pooh as president. It is a world that is white, Anglo-Saxon and Puritan Protestant, often red neck, void of ethnic cast. Visitors with long hair, once discouraged from entering the Magic Kingdom, are now tolerated but looked at long and hard by the Disney police, or Security Hosts, as they are called, touristy-appearing chaps in mufti who bear no resemblance to cops.

Aware of all this, the plastic, cutesy, make-believe phoniness, you ask yourself why you enjoy Disney's ersatz world? Perhaps it is because when you are here your most pressing concern seems to be the length of the waiting line for the Country Bear Jamboree. Perhaps it is because you have the pleasure of watching your children fall completely for Disney's gentle con. Perhaps it is because the kid inside of you remembers Mickey Mouse when he was gawky and funny looking and marvels that a cartoon concept can become transformed into a multi-million-dollar, three-dimensional place, I mean a real place. Or is all of this simply intellectualizing? Did I like it because it was what I did on my vacation? Maybe. And maybe the basic explanation is that at the age of 40 I'm lapsing into senescence. Maybe. I guess I know only a little about why I liked it.

In any event, Disney's America is the one we seem to want to escape to these days. It is Tom Sawyer and Booth Tarkington, dimdls and hoop skirts, eyelid-batting on the porch swing but no touching, simple piety and awkward manners. Disney's people, the real and the computerized, all say gee and gosh, and I imagine that the driver of the electric-powered antique auto on Main Street who confided one thick afternoon that he'd like once, just once, "to gun this thing 30 miles an hour through this crowd" won't be around too much longer. Aberrations are not tolerated in Disney World.

In the Hall of Presidents, a gawky, computer-programmed Abraham Lincoln, similar to one at the 1964-65 New York World's Fair, sits on a broad stage among his fellow chief executives from George Washington to Richard Nixon and rises creakily to deliver a speech that touches, kind of, on patriotism and justice and foreign entanglements as martial music crescendoes. Lincoln's address is the highlight of the Hall of Presidents show and is preceded by a multiscreen, stereo version of the Civil War, so artfully scripted and filmed that one watches in awe of American valor and forgets that Disney never tells us who won. It is an eerie and uncomfortable presentation and the programmed twitches of acknowledgement by each of the Presidential dolls as he is introduced do nothing to dispel the eeriness.

After the Hall of Presidents you continue to explore the nation's past. You travel, perhaps, on the Rivers of America, dug out of the Florida marshes and reinforced with concrete shores, in Davy Crockett's explorer canoes, on Admiral Joe Fowler's riverboat or on Mike Fink's keelboats, cruising past banalities that have become our standard visual historical cliches. Then you're back on the boat landing ready for a Pepsi at the Pecos Bill Cafe or some Frito-Lay potato chips at the Mile Long Bar.

Once you leave the America of Frontierland and Liberty Square, to wander through the Magic Kingdom to Fantasyland, you enter a realm which is vaguely imitation English or pseudo-European. Snow White's ride and Mr. Toad's and Peter Pan's all have that Sherwood Forest look. Captain Nemo's voice, coming through the speakers 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea, is undeniably English — almost, but not quite James Mason. Fantasyland is not America, to be sure, but it is familiar, recognizable, a cartoon come to life, comfortable, easy.

Off to Tomorrowland and it's back to America, today's America, overly stylized and highly parochial but today's America nonetheless. Eastern Airlines (Disney World's "official" airline, for which honor it pays a long-term bundle) has, for example, something called If You Had Wings. It is simply a trip via a system of moveable chairs through an illusory montage of Eastern's destinations. It is a frank commercial, but presented with flair and with the icing of an Orson Welles delivery. It is also free, a rarity in Disney's world. The other freebees are Monsanto Chemical's 360-degree film on the United States, which is a rerun of the attraction at Disneyland, and A Flight to the Moon, which features a mockup of Houston's Mission Control. The Grand Prix Raceway (sponsor: Goodyear) is simply a flood of 12 miniature plastic racing cars powered by lawnmower engines that put-put on tracks around a snaking course.

Adventureland is one of those familiar places that you've seen a hundred times in old Grade B movies. It is a vaguely savage, perhaps African, perhaps South American jungle, with computerized hippos and crocs rearing out of the water as your cruise boat (on rails) passes by. You could be on the Amazon, no the Nile, no the Orinoco, but don't look down or you'll see the trough the boat runs through and ask yourself how in hell can a hippo be submerged up to his snout in two feet of water? Stop that. Don't ask.

The illusions are far better on Main Street, the 1900s square and street that form the natural entrance to the rest of the Magic Kingdom. Main Street is a movie set, a permanent backdrop of a simpler time, Our Town come to Orlando, Fla., from New England via Anaheim, with an artfulness so controlled as to be simultaneously nostalgic and openly commercial. Its paid sponsors, such as Oscar Mayer, Sara Lee, Bordens, Coca-Cola, Smuckers, Elgin-Helbros and Hallmark, vend their wares behind ornate facades labeled emporium and parlor and cafe and confectionary. There is a Fire Department band and a Keystone Kop quartet, a railroad depot, jitneys and omnibuses and horseless carriages, cinemas and penny arcades.

The buildings (really fronts) are carefully fashioned. One is tempted to use the word authentic, but in Disney's world what is authentic is what Disney says is authentic. Main Street is certainly authentic Disney and it sets the tone for the surrounding areas of Disney World as well.

That world, all 43 square miles of it, is into its second year and its achievements and statistics are impressive: $400-million to build it; almost 11 million visitors since it opened on Oct. 1, 1971; 35 major attractions in a 100-acre amusement complex, with more on the way; unparalleled cleanliness as far as amusement parks go; carefully controlled crowds; private highways and airports; the beginnings of a planned city; 11,000 employes; 20 restaurants; 12,000 parking spaces; 1,557 hotel rooms; 700 campsites; $8-million paid to the state in taxes.

While one can spend fair amounts of money — about $80 to $110 on admissions and tickets alone for a family of five for three days — there is value received, if the world of Disney is your cup of tea. Add to this the top of $44 a night at one of the World's hotels, plus food and snacks and souvenirs and air fare, and a flying weekend here could run a family more than $750. But for your money you can not only enjoy the Magic Kingdom, but also look at the bigger-than-big things the Disney organization is doing out here in the scrub pines 20 miles southeast of Orlando.

In the future there will be a city on Lake Buena Vista, completely planned and autoless. Meanwhile, Hilton, Sheraton, Holiday Inn, Howard Johnson, Marriott are all building here and in the surrounding districts, filling hotel rooms with guests as soon, it seems, as their walls are plastered. Before Disney World there were 5,000 hotel rooms in the greater Orlando area. Some 3,000 have been built since the opening of the tourist complex; 7,000 more are under construction and at least 5,000 others are planned. Orlando is already on the verge of crying enough, but there's no stopping Disney now. Disney World has carte blanche from the Florida Legislature to plan, develop, exploit, conserve, police — whatever it wishes — within its borders. It is as close to a kingdom, magic or otherwise, or at least a duchy as we're likely to have in the United States.

In the not too distant tomorrow you'll be able, if you're rich or corporate enough, not only to visit Disney World but to live there. Until then you'll have to be content with the standard three-day visit, an exhausting, often amusing, occasionally irritating tour which, it must be said in retrospect, is worth the time, effort and money as a temporary escape from the living world and a total suspension of everything you know to be real. □

WORKSHOP

SUN-SAUNA CHAISE

By STEVE ELLINGSON

If a man earns his bread by the sweat of his brow, then he can reverse the process to take off pounds that the bread has put on. Saunas have made perspiration very fashionable these days. Many new apartments have built-in saunas as a tenant attraction.

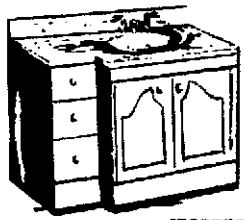

We've got an even better idea. Build a chaise lounge that has sauna benefits and you've got a 2-in-1 combination tailormade for tanning and "sweating it off." The sun-sauna chaise lounge pictured here with Julie Parrish of NBC's Return To Peyton Place is a rather unique device with a revolving cover made of corrugated fiberglass. This lets the dry heat of the sun in while keeping out the wind. As the season becomes cooler you only need lower the top further to retain more heat. No matter how cool the day, you can be warm in the sauna-chaise (as long as the sun shines).

Of course, if you want it cool, just revolve the cylindrical cover to the open position to enjoy the gentle outdoor breezes. When not in use, the Fiberglas top protects the lounge pad from both rain and dust. The sauna is easy to build when using our easy-to-follow plan. Step-by-step pictures and instructions will guide you in every stage of construction.

Remember, you don't have to be Finnish (or rich) to enjoy a home sauna. To build a sun-sauna chaise lounge for your back yard or patio, simply order pattern number 499. Send $1 (add 25 cents extra for airmail delivery) by currency, check or money order to:

Chico, left, and Harpo are dead, but brother Groucho is still going strong at 82.

The zany Marx Brothers' flicks have become trendy again.

Groucho had a slightly Benny Goodman look when this photo was taken at his second marriage ceremony in 1945.

The big, painted-on moustache, the glasses and cigar were Groucho trademarks.

Groucho's third and last marriage was to Eden Hartford in 1954; it ended in 1969.

Today the comedian still has the cigar and glasses, but has added an ever-present beret.

Groucho may be best remembered for his years as host of the television show, "You Bet Your Life."

GROUCHO

By RICHARD TRUBO

He still has a moustache, a loping walk and a cigar tucked in the corner of his mouth. His wit is as sharp and spontaneous as it was 50 years ago. He still ogles young women with the eyes of a lecherous playboy. In fact, the only thing that has changed about Groucho Marx is the size of his audience. It's getting bigger.

At 82, Groucho is as relevant today as he was in 1929 when he and his zany brothers made their first slapstick film, The Coconuts. Their relentless madness carried them through 13 more movies, each one revealing a new facet of their arsenal of clownery.

More than two decades after their last film together, the Marx Brothers have become trendy again. Their movies are being revived in theaters and film festivals around the world. Groucho has emerged from several years of seclusion to perform before capacity audiences at Carnegie Hall in New York and the Music Center in Los Angeles. And he also has a best-selling record album, An Evening with Groucho.

Although Groucho claims that he was pleased with only three of the Marx Brothers movies — Duck Soup, A Night at the Opera and A Day at the Races — he enjoys all the attention the films are getting today. He is delighted when young people approach him and are able to quote the wacky dialogue he spoke while playing characters like Dr. Hugo Z. Hackenbush, J. Cheever Loophole, Wolf J. Flywheel or S. Quentin Quale.

"The kids like our films because they think we're going against the Establishment," says Groucho. "We weren't aware of being anti-Establishment, but that seems to be what a lot of today's youngsters think. But at the time we were just trying to be funny."

Groucho speaks softly and deliberately. When he took time out recently to reminisce about his long career, he was dressed in a turtleneck sweater and some casual dark slacks. His thinning gray hair was covered by a blue beret.

"When we made the movies 30 years ago, we hardly got any fan mail at all," he recalled. "And most of those were threatening. Now I have to have a full-time secretary to handle the mail."

That secretary is Erin Fleming, a Canadian actress and a very close friend of Groucho's. When she first began working for him, she was faced with answering a backlog of 75,000 unopened fan letters.

"The movies today are simply lousy," says Groucho. "There's nothing in them but sex and naked girls. And not that I have anything against naked girls. But they belong in your bedroom, not on a movie screen.

"I actually think sex has lost some of its appeal because it's been so overexposed. It's like standing in front of a candy store when you're young and wishing you could eat all the candy in the store. But if someone offered it to you, you'd lose your appetite for it.

"The kids can have all the sex they want without going to a movie theater for their kicks. It's a bore. They want something funny."

For decades, the Marx Brothers made people smile. They all grew up around the turn of the century in New York City. "We were born on 78th Street," recalls Groucho. "We paid $27 a month rent. My father was a tailor — and a pretty bad one at that — and we generally didn't have money. So every month on the day the rent was due, we would all hide."

Groucho's mother, Minnie, was a woman of unwavering energy and enterprise. Her father had been a magician and she decided quite early that her five sons would be in show business.

Each of the brothers was soon performing wherever there were people to listen or laugh. On a Sunday in 1909, Groucho entered the entertainment world rather unexpectedly on Coney Island. "My folks took me down there," he says. "A guy told me to get on a beer keg and sing a song and he'd give me a dollar. That was the first dollar I ever earned in show business."

When the Marx boys began working as a team, their talents seemed to complement each other. Groucho (whose real name is Julius) was the most literary of the group and his humor was the most irreverent and biting. Chico (Leonard) was quick and clever. Harpo (Adolph) with his clown's mop of hair, said nothing yet communicated so well with his golliwog eyes and a complete glossary of horn honks. Zeppo (Herbert) and Gummo (Milton) left the act after the first few films, having played mostly straight men to their brothers' lunacy.

Minnie also created her sons' stage names. "My name and Harpo's are self-explanatory," says Groucho. "Chico got his name because he was always chasing chicks. Gummo's name came from a pair of gumshoes (rubbers) that somebody had given him. And Zeppo was born when the Zeppelin arrived in Lakehurst, N.I.

When the Marx Brothers were at their best, they were unrivaled on the screen. They became the perennial wise guys of the American cinema. Some of their classic movie lines are unforgettable:

Woman (passionately): "Closer, darling."

Groucho: "If I were any closer, I'd be in back of you."

Then there was the dialogue between the boys themselves.

Groucho: "You love your brother, don't you?"

Chico: "No, but I'm used to him."

Their frivolity carried over into their lives off screen too. One of Harpo's most memorable pranks was the day he walked into Tiffany's in New York and dropped an array of fake diamonds and rubies from under his coat. The store's security personnel moved in to make an arrest until they realized who the famous shopper was.

Groucho, too, was never at a loss for humorous antics. He once resigned from a private club with the statement, "I do not wish to belong to the kind of club that accepts people like me as members."

Then there was the time Groucho encountered a customs agent at the California-Mexico border as he was returning to the United States. The agent fired the normal array of questions at him, but was not prepared for the final answer:

"Are you a citizen?" asked the official.

"Yes," replied Groucho.

"Birthplace?"

"New York".

"Occupation?"

"Smuggler."

Even during difficult times, Groucho called upon his sense of humor. In 1946 Warner Brothers tried to prevent the Marx Brothers from releasing their film, A Night in Casablanca, because of the conflict in names with the original Humphrey Bogart-Ingrid Bergman movie. Amid the heated exchange of charges and countercharges, Warner's lawyers received a memo from Groucho that read, "I am sure the average movie fan can learn in time to distinguish between Ingrid Bergman and Harpo. I don't know whether I could, but I certainly would like to try."

The Marx Brothers humor was contagious. Upon meeting the boys, the most unlikely people would turn into hams themselves. When Harpo met Edward VIII at a London reception, the curly-haired comedian extended his hand — expecting a handshake in return. Instead, he was astounded when the King gave Harpo his leg.

Despite all the comedy films, Groucho probably earned his greatest fame during his 14 years as host of TV's popular quiz show, You Bet Your Life. But his general feelings about the medium of television are still rather negative. "Intellectually, it's a joke," he says of the video tube. "But, unfortunately, it reflects the taste of the U.S. public."

Back in 1960, he wrote a letter to his friend, writer Goodman Ace, which said, "For me, the only good thing about TV is that it has allowed me to earn far more money than I deserve."

Groucho was paid $25,000 a week for hosting You Bet Your Life. It was a quiz show especially designed to showcase Groucho's puns, one-liners and anecdotes. He would leer through his horn-rimmed glasses, balancing his 8-inch cigar between his lips, releasing one gag after another.

When a member of the House of Representatives guested on the show, Groucho inquired, "What do you do for a living?"

"I'm in Congress," was the reply.

"How long have you been incongruous?" asked Groucho.

If the contestants said the "secret word," 18

an odd-looking duck would drop from the sky with a beakful of money. And if they couldn't answer any of the contest questions, Groucho would offer them a consolation prize of $50 if they could give the correct reply to "Who was buried in Grant's Tomb?" At least one contestant gave the wrong answer.

Groucho's face became so familiar that he was recognized wherever he went. One evening, while dining in the Brown Derby, an elderly woman approached him with the greeting, "Oh, do pardon me — but are you Groucho Marx?"

"No," replied Groucho, "are you?"

He recalls another incident that occurred on a street corner in Rome. "I was lighting a dollar cigar when someone bumped into me, knocking the cigar into the street. It was a dollar cigar, so I wasn't going to let it sit there. And as I bent down for it, I said 'Jesus Christ.' When I turned around, there were two priests standing next to me. I was immediately embarrassed, but one of them pulled out two cigars, handed them to me, and said, 'Groucho, you just said the secret word.'"

Unlike other well-known TV personalities, Groucho never seriously contemplated entering politics. But one time some of his fans tried to coax him into running for governor of California. "I asked them how much it paid," Groucho recalls. "When they told me it paid $35,000 a year, I told them to forget it, I made nearly that in a week on TV."

So instead of becoming a politician himself, Groucho was content to just socialize with those in the political world. In 1954, he invited ex-President Truman to visit him on the West Coast. He wrote to Truman, "If you want to come I can put you up. I have a swimming pool and a pool table. I shoot very badly and if you are any good with the cue, you can possibly win enough to pay your expenses."

'Movies today are simply lousy . . .'

In recent years, Groucho has been jolted by several tragic setbacks in his life. His third marriage ended in divorce. "I'll never marry again," he says. "It was just silly." His brother Chico died in 1961 at the age of 70. Harpo died three years later at the same age.

Zeppo and Gummo are still alive and reside in Palm Springs. But Groucho is the only one among them remaining active. His philosophy about humor still remains the same today as it was decades ago. "If you say something and it gets a laugh, you keep on saying it until it doesn't," he explains.

And Groucho intuitively knows what's funny. He still startles people with lines like, "Certainly my moustache is real; it belongs to my maid." And, "I was always awkward, even as a young girl."

In his one-man shows, Groucho relates a lot of stories, sings a few old songs by Harry Ruby and Irving Berlin and shows some clips from the Marx Brothers classic comedies. He is sprightly and quite eager to perform encores after the inevitable standing ovation.

One of Groucho's favorite stories is about the time he was stopped on the street by a middle-aged couple who circled him two or three times. The wife finally came very close and asked, "You're him, aren't you? You're Groucho."

Groucho nodded. The woman touched him affectionately on the arm and said, "Please don't die. Just keep on living."

After more than a half century of making people laugh, Groucho has every intention of granting that woman's request. □

The fat goes into the pan instead of into your husband.

Because you love him, you want to make good things for him to eat.

Also because you love him, you want to make good things for him to eat that aren't bad for him.

Which is where the Farberware Open Hearth® Broiler/Rotisserie can be very helpful.

In addition to being easy on husbands because it eliminates a lot of fat, it is easy on kitchens because it's smokeless and spatter-free.

And because it comes apart into a few pieces that can be cleaned up fast in sudsy water, it's easy on you too.

It comes in two sizes. Both are available with or without a rotisserie. And, on the larger size, the rotisserie is available with or without a shish kabob attachment. So no matter how many of you there are, the Farberware Open Hearth Broiler/Rotisserie is something that will benefit your whole family.

Especially the head of it.

Starting the day with a good deed

Alex and Ralph on the attack

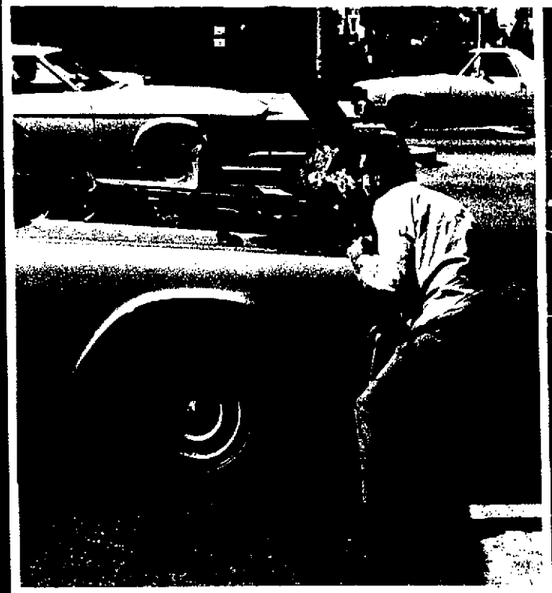

If you've ever wondered what a man of the streets does with his time tag along with Alex for a day.

Alex's real name is Paris T. Ambellas. He's a middle-aged dropout in a world peopled with nuts, winos, hustlers, freaks, the aged, the homeless and the assorted ragged characters who are always on city streets but are seldom noticed. "I was born in Greece," Alex says. "And as you may know, Paris, my namesake, and Alexander were used interchangeably in the Iliad. Since Paris is a French city to most Americans, I go by Alex. A few clods with no imagination call me 'Nick,' you know, like in 'Nick the Greek.'"

ALEX

But whatever you call him, Alex doesn't like to be called a panhandler — although putting the bite on people is one of his fortes. "I'm a scholar with lumps," he says.

The day's action for Alex starts about 10 every morning when he comes to the main post office on Long Beach Boulevard to check his generally empty post office box. This morning a blind woman is standing on the sidewalk playing an accordion and singing. Passersby punctuate her music by tossing an occasional clink into a tin cup affixed to her accordion.

"Hey," Alex says to the accordion player, "here's a dime if you can play all of Mule Train and sing it like Vaughn Monroe."

The woman continues playing somber music.

"OK, you just play and I'll do the vocals but it's only worth a nickel," Alex says.

The woman ignores Alex and his clowning.

"Grouch," Alex says over his shoulder.

"She hasn't been around for quite a while," Alex says. "She must have been hitting the wine. Say, I've got to make some phone calls. Could you lend me some quarters?"

Alex takes the quarters and scampers up the steps to the post office. He reappears a moment later.

"Well, nothing today," Alex says. "I found a Greyhound bus ticket last week, and I expect the refund from 'Frisco momentarily. You never know when your ship will come in."

As usual, Alex is pushing a shopping cart containing newspapers, empty pop bottles, old shoes, books and a tiny four-pound female dog with eyes the size of shirt buttons. The dog's name is Ralph.

An old lady totters over from the curb.

"Listen, young man," the old lady says to Alex, "I'm having a heart attack, and the cab driver I called told me to wait on the Long Beach side of the street. Can you tell ..."

"Lady," Alex says, "you're standing on Long Beach Boulevard, both sides of the street are the Long Beach side."

"Don't get smart with me, young man," the old lady snaps. "I only want to know which side of the street is the Long Beach side."

Alex picks up the tiny dog and points it at the old lady.

"Sic 'em!" Alex says. The dog yaps a tiny bark.

"Smart aleck," the old lady says. She totters across the sidewalks to the bus stop and asks a crowd of people which side of the street is the Long Beach side. Both arms wave and point.

Busses arrive and the benches empty. The old lady hauls herself up into a bus and points and waves at the driver. Alex and dog seat themselves on one end of a bench to plan the day.

"Well, the first thing to do is to get a ball for the dog," Alex says. "She ate the last one."

A grizzled old man sits down next to Alex and reaches over to pet the dog which starts a tiny growl.

"Does the dog have teeth?" the old man asks.

"That's what she uses to bite people with," Alex says. "She also has advanced rabies and a couple of social diseases. I wouldn't get too close if I were you."

The old man shrinks to the other end of the bench. Alex continues mulling over his plans for the day.

"Last week things were a little dull, so I took an impromptu sidewalk survey on what the locals think of constipation. Very interesting day. For now let's get the dog a ball."

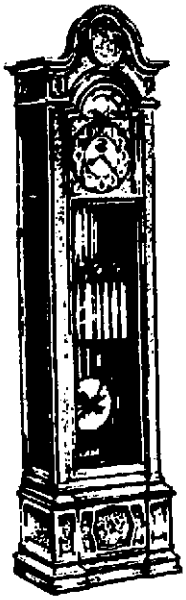

One way to find out a person's life story is to listen. Intertwined with a windy discussion of life in ancient Greece, Alex has summed up his working life: 1941-1945 — Army Air Corps; 1949 — B.A. in education from La Salle College; General Electric in the early 50s; Martin and the Atlas project in Florida the late 50s; writing a school text in the early 60s; editing of a lumber trade publication until 1967. Speaks Greek and French. But since the late 60s, Alex has been a 20th century Greek on a shabby odyssey through the streets and alleys of Long Beach.

You wonder how to separate fact from fiction when a lady comes up to Alex to admire and pet the tiny dog. She has a nasal French accent, and Alex responds in French. They exchange two or three minutes of chatter in French.

Alex kisses the lady's hand, bids her adieu and continues on his ball-finding mission. He stops at a wire trash basket and rummages through its contents.

'They're really treasure chests'

"You may think of these things as ordinary trash cans, but they're really treasure chests," Alex says. "Let's see what's in this one."

He withdraws a wad of aluminum foil, unrolls it and pulls forth four, almost new, serated knives.

"See?" Alex says, tossing the knives into his shopping cart. "I find all types of things... empty wallets which bring rewards from the owners, watches, books, unused tickets, newspapers, half-full bottles...you name it. Some of it I can sell at secondhand stores.

"Ah, I'm not really a panhandler," Alex says again, "because I only bum from people I know. But I do believe in creative panhandling. For instance, tell people you're going to church and don't have any change to put in the collection plate.

"And, of course, the dog is a good come-on. I go to the parks on Sundays where people are having picnics and sooner or later someone throws her a scrap. I say 'thanks, she hasn't eaten for a week' and I end up getting a good feed too.

"There's a few ex-winos I see on the street. I tell them I've just been rolled. Their heart really goes out to you. Or I tell them I've got the D.T.'s bad and I need a buck to buy a couple of shots of whiskey to chase it away."

While Alex isn't an alcoholic, he has enjoyed an occasional bottle of wine.

"I used to sit in the park and sip on a bottle of wine and just enjoy the weather, but you get to be a target. People think you're a helpless wino and you get beat up. I like an occasional drink, but bars aren't any fun either. It's too easy to get caught in somebody else's battle. Can't drink in the park, can't drink in bars, so I just don't drink."

Alex stops the shopping cart in front of a store.

"Say, would you mind going in and picking up one of those rubber balls? I can't take the dog in, so I'll have to stay out here with her."

The store is across from the Greyhound bus station. Alex points to it and reminisces.

"The bus station is sort of dead these days, but I used to go in there about 2 in the morning when the bars were closing and watch the show. There would be people flying through plate glass windows, cops running in and out, two and three fights in the lobby — a real circus. But then the coffee shop closed and it's pretty quiet now.

"How about going down to the Seaside Gym? It's an interesting place to catch a boxing match and they're pretty nice guys. When things get slim, they let me stop in for a shower and a shave. That's another thing — you gotta stay clean. Nothing turns other people off to you quicker than being grubby."

Alex's appearance belies the fact he's spent months at a time living in the streets, in theaters, in all-night coffee shops and in the bus station. His black hair, streaked with gray, is dapper and neatly trimmed. An equally well-trimmed salt-and-pepper moustache rests on his lip. You have to look closely to see several front teeth are missing. His pants end above the ankles, but his mismatched ensemble is clean. His pockets bulge with folders, letters, sunglasses, paperbacks, string, newspapers and cigarette papers.

'You gotta stay clean'

Alex stops on his way to the gym to toss the newly acquired ball for the dog. He spots an acquaintance walking on the sidewalk and calls out, "John! Hey, John! How's the water?"

John is a smiling wino with a kind but weathered face that sprouts three or four days stubble. He wears two pair of Levis and carrys a foot-thick folder of notebook paper. Alex asks about the water because John has made several attempts at suicide by jumping off bridges.

"You still convinced life isn't worth living?" Alex asks.

"Yep," John answers, smiling.

"Well, the weather's warming up," Alex says. "Maybe you'll be able to go in and stay for a while pretty soon."

John says nothing but keeps smiling.

"I also know a fellow who has an airtight garage," Alex says. "He might let you come over and turn on the carbon monoxide or something."

"Aw, go on," John says, walking away.

Why does John carry the thick bundle of paper?

"It makes him look important," Alex says.

Alex ambles into the gym and asks the proprietor, Jake Shuegrue, what he thought of a recent fight.

"Aw, don't mention that to me," Jake says with a gravel voice. Jake is a tough-looking fight trainer who has a thick cigar clamped into his mouth.

"Jake is the guy who trained Mando Ramos, you know," Alex says. "It's quiet this morning, but usually you can catch some training fights. It's also a good place to observe ideal race relations at work. You see black by brown by white and there's never the slightest bit of trouble."

Alex works three crossword puzzles while waiting for something to happen at the gym. The morning drifts away like a lazy day from your childhood.

"Well, how about lunch?" Alex asks. "I know a place where you can eat your fill for $1.35."

DON VERHOEF JOE MESMAN

Thinking of color schemes for your home? What color should the Carpet be? Bright and bold, or traditional, something more pastel and soft? Much of the decision may depend on the type of person you are, temperament wise. Many persons have a color or a group of colors they love, and stick to year in, year out.

For examples, some dark eyed women with olive complexions like intense colors, where a blonde may go for lighter tones which may be on the subdued side.

If you entertain informally, you'll probably feel more comfortable with brighter, more colorful furnishings. For the formal type of social gatherings, a more subtle scheme is advised.

The color of a carpet should set the mood of a room. For a den a softer, more subdued look may be wanted, but for a play room, sparkling with huge blocks of basic colors, a bright, inviting carpet color is needed. Whatever the color you like, when you need carpet ... you will find a wide selection here at ...

A gutsy way to make music

By VALERIE SLOAN

A 9-year-old boy who is not allowed to watch television on Sunday groans about his boredom. His 11-year-old sister grumbles because she has to clean her rabbit's cage. Their father is faced with a myriad of c.l.j's, otherwise known as crummy little jobs.

One way to brighten this Sunday scene considerably is to invite friends in for a musical party. Ask them to bring any instruments they have and encourage teenagers to bring guitars.

As your musical contribution to the festivities, build a gut bucket. This homemade instrument has been around for a long time, but is new and novel to younger generations. It's major component, a 19-inch galvanized washtub, is not always easy to find in modern America. After checking several stores we finally located one at a major hardware chain where the salesman chuckled at his new image as a supplier for gut buckets.

In addition to the washtub, you'll need the following materials: five feet of plastic covered clothesline, one eyebolt and washer, one eyescrew, one 59-inch broomstick.

To begin the construction of your gut bucket, notch the broomstick so it rests on the rim of the tub. Reinforce the notched stick with tape to guard against splitting. Fasten the eyescrew to the top of the broomstick. Drill a hole in the center of the tub slightly smaller than the threaded portion of the eyebolt. Screw the bolt through the hole in the bottom of the inverted washtub. Secure the bolt with the washer on the inside bottom of the tub. Tie ends of the clothes line to both eyehooks, cutting off any excess rope. The gut bucket is now ready for a trial run.

Put your right foot on the rim of the bucket applying enough pressure to hold the tub firmly to the floor. (If you are left handed, put your left foot on the rim of the bucket.) Do not place a foot on the tub center where vibrations occur. With your left hand grasp both the rope and the stick, pulling tautly against your chest. To produce real tub-thumping tones slide your left hand to different positions on the rope and stick. Lean slightly to change the tension on the rope.

The gut bucket makes a great accompaniment for piano, guitar or horn. Anyone from tot to teen-ager can have fun strumming this indestructible instrument. No one need feel left out if he can't play an instrument. Even wallflowers emerge to strum and hum.

"Man, I love that gut bucket," says one teen-ager who automatically puts his guitar and amplifier in the car when invited out.

You're sure to brighten your Sundays with a musical party featuring a gut bucket. □

Public Social Service office.

"Here's another type of free theater," Alex says pointing to the welfare office. "I come down here about twice a month and sit in the waiting room and listen to the phony names being called out. It's a thousand laughs."

At the lunch spot, Alex returns three times to fill his plate.

"My compliments to the chef," Alex says to a glaring waitress on the final trip. By the meal's end, Alex has chicken wings in his socks, breasts in his pockets and legs in his jacket. The smuggled chicken is for the dog waiting outside.

"Say," Alex says, pushing his check over to you. "I forgot my wallet. I'll pick up the next one, OK?"

So far, it's cost $2.30 to find out what Alex does.

"How about a game of basketball?" he asks. "Downtown isn't much fun during the winter and a lot of people have left town. Lincoln Park used to be the main attraction, but now that the library has moved even it's a little slow. I've been spending a lot of time at Bixby Park."

On the way to the park through the city, Alex points out street people who are considered weird even to street people.

"There's a guy who's probably dangerous," Alex says, pointing to a man about 50 who has wild gray hair to his shoulders and beard to his chest. "Everybody calls him 'Wolf Man' because, well, he looks like a wolf and he growls if you try to talk to him. Story is, he used to be an engineer at Hughes."

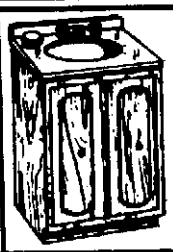

"That one over there," Alex says, pointing to an older woman at a hot dog stand, "is actually a man. He stuffs socks under his shirt for a bustline, puts on high heels and spends all day prancing around downtown. But he's harmless, very harmless."

"That's a guy we call 'Sport,'" Alex says, pointing to a middle-aged fellow with an almost shaven head. "He's another one who wanders and mutters. Takes all kinds, huh?"

"Hey, 'Sport,' what's going on?" Alex calls out.

The man gives Alex a vacant stare. His lips flutter like laundry on a clothes line but not an intelligible word can be heard.

Near the park, a seedy, smelly wino stops Alex.

"Hey, don't I know you?" the wino asks Alex. "Look, brother, do you have any spare change?"

"Yes, as a matter of fact, I do," Alex says, walking on.

"These guys do a couple of days in the slammer with you and they think you've become blood brothers for the remainder of your days. I'd sure be a couple thousand richer by now if I'd never given nickel-and-dime handouts."

Alex arrives at the park and checks out a basketball. Although he's close to 50 and has

'Life should be a long parade'

just stuffed his stomach, an afternoon of basketball doesn't seem to bother him.

A year ago, there was a parade down Ocean Avenue and Alex turned up.

"I love a parade," Alex said. "It brings all the people together in the air and sunshine. Life, in fact, should be a long parade."

Alex was with three of his street cronies; his shopping cart, in addition to the standard flotsam and jetsam, contained a box which hid a half-gallon jug of whiskey. Alex and his buddies took turns wheeling the cart and its potent contents out of sight to a nearby alley. The bottle's contents lowered about twice as fast as the warm afternoon sun.

Alex walked over to the curb to harangue a 6-foot cop policing the parade.

"Ol' Alex has been around the streets for a long time," said one of the cronies. "We all know he's a real smart guy but when we get together, we just concentrate on havin' a good time. I've been run in once or twice with Alex and we even had a good time out of that.

"One thing about ol' Alex, he don't want nobody to get too close to him. He'll just give a wise answer if you ask if he's gotta wife or why he's on the street. I think he gets some type of disability or something."

Alex got bored with the iron-faced cop and fished a golf ball from one of his baggy pockets. He threw it against a wall in a parking lot and the ball bounced high into the air.

"And it's a long one out to Ambellas centerfield," Alex called out, running after the ball. "And he's got it, fans!"

Alex's friend was right. Pinning Alex down is like trying to grab a handful of wind.

Where do you sleep?

"On my back," Alex said.

Were you ever married?

"Ha! No comment. No-o-o comment."

You wonder if Alex enjoys life on the streets and why a seemingly bright person fritters his time away.

But you give up prying questions and leave Alex huffing and puffing on the basketball court. The rush hour traffic is starting to build and for you, a "normal" working person, the day ends at 5. □

Giving new life to your old furniture

By JACKSON ELLIOTT

Despite what most authorities would have you believe, refinishing furniture isn't any more an art than washing the car or cleaning up the yard, and it's far less one than preparing a good dinner.

If you can follow a simple set of rules and suggestions and let the tools and the materials do most of the work, you can easily and professionally refinish a moderate-sized desk, a drop-leaf table or almost anything short of a grand piano in six days. And, except for the first day, only an hour of work each day will be needed.

So that there won't be any misunderstandings about what is involved, let's spell it out. First, we're writing for you, the daring experimenter, not for some wizard who can change a wreck into a priceless heirloom without spilling a drop or a drip and has a spouse who never says, "Clean up that mess!"

And this will be refinishing not restoring. We're going to assume that the piece is in reasonably good condition except for the finish and that it's mostly of flat surfaces, not loaded with gingerbread or other detail. Let's skip the spool beds. This guide promises success if you follow instructions.

So get ready. Get ready to take it day by day, without hurrying. It'll be far more enjoyable.

THE FIRST DAY

The first major step is to remove the old finish and prepare the wood for the new one. This first day will be the only long one. Applying remover, waiting for it to work, removing the old finish, which may be three or four coats deep, takes time.

As to the remover, it's really not important what brand you use as long as it's a general purpose remover such as sold in all hardware and paint stores to strip off old varnish, paint, shellac and most other finishes. Some of them permit you to wash off the softened finish with water, even a garden hose. But using water indoors is inconvenient, and it's risky to use water on furniture which is veneered. Ask the dealer for a remover which is good for all kinds of old finishes and doesn't require any after-wash or clean-up treatment to remove chemical residue.

Before you start, take off knobs, hinges, catches, etc. If you treat these separately, and the places where they were get attention, the finished job will be neater.

Have at hand the can of remover, an old paint brush, a saucer or, preferably, one of those foil dishes meat pies come in, rubber gloves or some plastic wrap for your hands, a putty knife or scraper and a supply of paper bags. The remover is to soften, not remove, the old finish. The saucer is to hold a workable amount of the remover — easier than using it out of the can — and the old paint brush is to put the remover on with. The rubber gloves (or plastic wrap) are for your hands (use them!), the scraper or putty knife, with no sharp edges that would gouge the wood, is to skim off the softened finish and the paper bags are to receive the finish that's lifted off and to serve as "wipes" for the scraper.

Now if there's plenty of ventilation, get to work. Apply the remover to one area, turning the piece so you can work on a horizontal surface if possible. (The legs are the most troublesome part so take care of these first if you can, even turning the piece upside down to do it.) Brush the remover on in one direction — either from left to right or the reverse or from top to bottom. Don't brush it out. Let it be a thick coat.

Now the most important part of all refinishing, or at least the part that can make the work easy: Let it alone for 20 minutes.

In about 20 minutes — often less — the finish will begin to wrinkle or rise from the surface. Different surfaces react differently and removers act differently. Take your scraper in one hand, a paper bag in the other and, working with the grain (as insurance against cross-grain scratches), lightly skim off whatever part of the old surface that has been softened enough to come off.

Don't dig down. Don't gouge. And don't worry if not enough seems to be coming off. A beginner is likely to rush things and be disheartened. We want this to be as easy as we know it can be. We can't emphasize enough that if there's a lot of old finish, the easiest way to remove it is to give it several treatments. Trying to get it all off the first or even the second time can be a headache.

Now turn the piece so you can work on another horizontal surface, put on a coat of remover and then go read a book or watch television. Come back in 20 minutes or in whatever time you found out from your earlier experience is enough for the remover to work and take off the loosened finish. If, after the necessary number of coats of remover, there are still bits of finish left in crevices, carefully work these out with a knife or pick or whatever seems best, being careful not to slip and scratch the nearby surfaces.

When you've applied remover to all surfaces (including the knobs or whatever pieces you've taken off that need treatment) and removed just about all the finish, pour some remover into your dish and dip the steel wool into it. Rub the wood with the grain. You'll find this takes off the little spots you missed before or seemed to slip under the scraper. If there is a spot or two where the old finish is superstubborn, give it a touch with the remover. Wait, then use the scraper or steel wool as necessary. Check the corners, crevices, the whole piece now. This is the only time to take off the old finish. When it's varnished, it's too late.

THE SECOND DAY

Before the first coat of new finish — and you're just about ready for it — there's a thing about getting the wood in the proper condition. On the first day you finished up with steel wool. In all probability the wood was still damp when you finished and it's now dry.

Take a quarter-sheet of No. 150 or any medium-to-fine garnet paper and wrap it around an inexpensive, store-bought sanding block. Give the top surface of the piece and the flat surfaces that will show most, a light sanding, with the grain. Check all the corners, the edges, any places the wood may have been roughed up in the finish-removal process. If there are drawers, go over the top surface of the fronts of the drawers. These show when the drawers are pulled out. And if there are knobs, give these an extra rubbing, but with round surfaces you'll find the steel wool works better.

Of course, if doing-it-yourself has no appeal, you can take the quicker, commercial way out and take your piece of furniture to someone like Gene Peterson who has a dip to take off old finish. Peterson owns Peterson's Furniture and Metal Stripping Co. in Long Beach.

This pre-finish sanding is important because it's the last time you can really lean into your sanding to get it all smooth. From now on there's going to be new finish on the wood and you won't want to sand too deeply or too hard.

All right, it's clean. But kind of bare and the grain doesn't seem to show the way it did before. But it will. Take one of the foil cups or a saucer and pour in a measured amount of white or clear (not orange) shellac, as it comes from the container. Add to that the same amount of alcohol. Mix it up with your new foam rubber brush or the conventional type if you prefer (but not the brush you used for the remover) and start applying the thinned shellac to the first surface.

Try to paint with a light of some kind on the far side of the piece so that you can look along the surface and see if you've missed anything. Apply it just to the horizontal surface now presented to you by the way you've turned the piece. But do every bit that's up.

On most pieces, using shellac thinned down as directed, this application will take little more than 10 minutes. Don't try to patch up places that don't seem quite smooth enough; subsequent treatments of rubbing and recoating will take care of these. But do look around for drips on the edges and wipe them off with the brush.

Then stop and clean up your tools. We'll assume you know how to get this done although you may not like doing it. But when you've cleaned the brush first with alcohol and then with soap and water and tied it up into one of the plastic sandwich bags (at least the brush end of it), you've saved the brush for another day. And this can go on indefinitely and economically.

Put everything away if you're the real neat type. Do nothing more on the table or whatever that day. (Actually you could do the next step in about four hours if you haven't laid on the shellac too thick or left bubbles or drips. But usually the beginner, and even non-beginners, can get impatient and a good job can be ruined. Anyway this is a six-days-and-enjoy schedule. So enjoy it.

Be ready for the kind friend who is sure to drop in and tell you all the terrible things that can happen to a shellac finish.

Shellac goes on easily, dries fast, has a brilliant glow and depth, resists abrasion, has a faculty for leveling off nicely with application, rubs down well with steel wool and is cheap. But it reacts poorly to water, alcohol and kindred spirits. So you're going to seal it with one or two coats of good, conventional varnish. Don't use the polyurethanes which are great under most circumstances but don't always adhere properly to shellac.

THE THIRD DAY

Yesterday you put on a coat of shellac. Today you rub it down and put on another one.

Rubbing it down means taking a pad of steel wool, unwinding it for two or three layers so that you won't use all of it up at once, wrapping a section that you've cut off around the sanding block and vigorously rubbing the new coat of shellac with the grain.

The real purpose of this first coat is to start the build-up of a coat of finish over the bare wood, one which will help you attain a smooth surface. The dents and bumps will gradually disappear as you apply and rub down.

When you've rubbed the first coat down — and you can be fairly ruthless in this rubbing as long as you rub with the grain and not across it — you're ready for a second coat of shellac. Dust your work carefully, check for any hidden bits in the crevices, put on your second coat just as you did the first and quit for the day.

THE FOURTH DAY

The second coat of shellac gets its rubdown now, with the steel wool wrapped around the sanding block. The use of the sanding block helps to insure a level surface instead of an uneven one which might be caused by fingers pushing down too hard to smooth off a seemingly high spot.

Now comes the application of a coat of good high-gloss varnish. Sometime before you're ready to put it on, set the can of varnish in a pan of the hottest water you can come up with, but not on the stove or near it. The heat will thin it down and make it level easier when you apply it.

Use the brush of your choice. We suggest the foam rubber type because it's cheap and has no bristles to fall out. And there'll be fewer brush marks.

Apply a coat of varnish, this time across the grain, in just one relatively small area, say 12 inches square. Work the varnish down into any crevices or depressions there may be. Then move to an abutting area, overlapping the first, always brushing the varnish positively as if you were trying to push it right down into the wood. When you've covered the surface you're working on, dip your brush into the varnish again and, with a full brush, lay a coat of varnish over the entire surface, this time with the grain. Watch the edges carefully, brushing across and off the edges, not from outside and in across the edges. Check the sides to be sure there are no drips.

Don't forget: check for drips

Now go away and leave the finish alone. Don't try to smooth out a place that looks a little higher than the rest. Don't try to take off that little dot of dust. Remember that the varnish will not dry as fast as the shellac — nowhere near — so when you stop, don't go back to the work for about 24 hours.

THE FIFTH DAY

We are now up to the time when the finish begins to show the quality we've built into it, if we have built quality in. It's now that the finishing will begin to reflect the smoothness of careful sanding or rubbing, and will show the depth of the shellac base coats.

But look at the dust spots. Feel the roughness of the varnish. Trouble? No, not at all. Unless you were an expert, using the finest of brushes or sprays in a practically dust-free room, there is bound to be roughness. Now comes the part of refinishing which few books tell you about, which gets rid of the roughness easily and leaves you with a beautiful satin finish which is as smooth as glass.

Take a quarter-sheet section of 4-0 or 6-0 "wet-or-dry" black rubbing paper and cut it into thirds. Take a new saucer or foil cup and put water into it. Hold a strip of sandpaper (it isn't really sandpaper, but it's a familiar term) at right angles with your fingers, much as they may have taught you in school to hold a book. If you face the rough side of the paper toward the surface of your work, your little finger and your thumb should be holding the ends of the paper strip away from the work, making it easy for you to rub the paper on the work with your three middle fingers.

Why all this fancy positioning? So that you can actually feel how rough your work is when you start sanding and feel it get smooth, you'll know when to stop and so it will be easy to do the rubbing in a circle, which is what you're going to do.

Dip the paper in the water, or you can sprinkle some on the surface where you're going to work if you prefer. There's a coat of varnish over the shellac, and the water won't hurt the varnish nor will it get through to the shellac.

Begin to sand the surface gently — g-e-n-t-l-y !!! — in a circular pattern, noting that within seconds usually friction almost disappears and the surface is smooth. Keep water always under the paper and move on to another area.

When you've sanded the entire surface of the piece, wash it off with a soap-and-water solution, dry it with a paper or cloth towel.

When it's thoroughly dry, give it one more — the final — coat of varnish. Use the across-the-grain and then the with-the-grain technique you used before.

THE SIXTH DAY

Sand it exactly as you did before, but this time, instead of using water as a lubricant, use mineral oil or boiled linseed oil. This will provide an even smoother finish than before. Just sand it lightly, then wash it off well with warm soap and water.

When it's dry, use your favorite furniture polish.

You're through.

Enjoy! □

GOURMET

by Tedd Thomey

There's good news for hungry people in and around Belmont Shore.

A somewhat startling change has occurred at Huffstetler's buffet restaurant, 5100 E. Second St. For a dozen years this superpopular restaurant was dark on Mondays, disappointing ravenous folk who were forced to take their appetites elsewhere.

But Forrest (Huff) Huffstetler's large establishment is now open seven days a week from 11:30 a.m. to 8 p.m., offering something for everyone, ranging from huge dinners to smaller a la carte meals.

Cheerful, industrious Huff has made other significant changes recently. He acquired the cocktail lounge next door and put in a doorway to his dining room. The lounge has six tables. If they wish, guests can take their trays into the lounge and have beer, wine or a cocktail with their food.

Huff's expansion includes a new room which can accommodate up to 45 persons for banquets, parties and club meetings. It is available for breakfast meetings starting at 7 a.m. and also for luncheons and dinners. Huff and his staff, including assistant managers Julie Hall and Arlene Metzgar, also do outside catering for banquets and parties at other locations.

Huffstetler's is a booming success because of the quality of Huff's cooking (he's an expert chef who really loves his work) and his generosity to his diners. Featured every Sunday are such delicious entrees as chicken and dumplings, $1.05 a la carte and $2.15 on the dinner; fried chicken, $1.60 and $2.60; round of roast beef, $1.65 and $2.65; baked ham, $1.65 and $2.65; Swiss steak, $1.50 and $2.55; roast turkey, $1.55 and $2.65, and roast leg of spring lamb, $1.65 and $2.75. All are with three salads per person, potato, vegetable, fresh roll and beverage.

Tuesday through Thursday, Huff features special dinners, $1.95 to $2.15. His big daily luncheon specials are $1.35 to $1.95. Others are $1.15. The Executive Luncheon, $1.45, includes soup and salad and a hot beef or ham sandwich.

GUIDE

MOST RESTAURANTS welcome children of all ages. Some don't make any special efforts for the youngsters. Others, such as Love's Barbecue in Lakewood, bend over backwards with ideas designed to fascinate and delight the small ones.

Love's co-owner and manager is tall, slim Stephen Stiefel who loves youngsters because he has some of his own. Near his front door is a container placed low enough so the little people can reach in easily and grab a wrapped lollipop. They're free and the sign says: "For good little girls and boys."

Little people with finicky appetites love Love's because it serves hamburger sandwiches and chocolate sundaes as well as beef, pork, ham or cheese sandwiches. The barbecue items delight them too because the barbecue sauce isn't too spicy and overwhelming; it's just right.

As they munch away, the youngsters look up happily when Stephen or one of his assistant managers stops at the table and hands out a free balloon or two. The menu enticements include soft drinks, barbecue ribs which can be held with the fingers and dinners which include all the items the grown ups get, such as fresh French fries and toasted sesame buns.

The adults love Love's because the food is such top quality, the waitress service is excellent and there's a cocktail lounge — quiet and dim — where they can enjoy their dinner in privacy with their favorite libation.

Many adults have discovered that Love's children's dinners (also offered as light-eater's entrees for grown ups) are generous and modestly priced. The barbecued chicken is $1.95 and barbecued beef, pork, ham or shortribs are all $2.75, with relish tray, barbecued beans, superb coleslaw, French fries, kosher dill pickle and toasted bun.

The regular dinner temptations are $2.95 to $3.95, ranging from barbecued chicken, pork, beef, ham or ribs to the "sampler" which includes portions of all five. Also featured are a la carte green salads, chef's salads, beer and wine on tap, onion rings and sourdough garlic bread.

Love's is on Lakewood Boulevard at Candlewood Street. It is open every day for luncheon and dinner.

Medicine & You

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

An electronic speech aid that filters, clarifies and amplifies the voice can sometimes help the victims of cerebral palsy improve speech disabilities.

The device has aided a 10-year-old boy at the New York State Rehabilitation Hospital for more than eight months. The victim's speech is usually almost incomprehensible.

Thanks to the device, the boy doesn't have to take as many breaths or speak louder. Consequently his speech is more coherent, and he can concentrate on correcting his pronunciation. As a result his speech is clearer.

Researchers estimate that 250,000 to 375,000 cerebral palsy patients in the United States have greatly impaired speech. The new device can help about three of 10 patients.

In addition, about 80 per cent of patients with Parkinson's disease (shaking palsy) can receive some aid from the instrument.

The device eliminates distortion and background noise, filters undesirable frequencies and boosts selected frequencies. The result is to produce sounds more intelligible than the patient's own voice.

The report is in Medical World News, a news magazine for physicians.

A nonmalignant lung condition in coal miners can closely resemble cancer and thus expose miners to unnecessary surgical risk.

Drs. John L. Williams and George A. Moller, radiologists of Danville, Pa., say that correct diagnosis of the nonmalignant condition, progressive massive fibrosis, is important. Reason: Miners are not good operative risks and "can ill afford unnecessary surgery."

The radiologists say that the noncancerous condition is characterized by presence of "satellite nodules," rare in cancer.

A report on the condition appears in Chronic Disease Management, a newspaper for doctors.

Friendships between women are richer than those between men, a new study shows.

However, men have a greater number of friends, says Dr. Alan Booth of the University of Nebraska.

A survey of 800 adults shows that women are more spontaneous and more likely to confide in their friends than are men.

Women are more likely to maintain close ties with relatives and to devote more time to the voluntary organizations to which they belong.

Males have more friends of the opposite sex than do females.

White-collar men have more friendships than their wives and men in the blue-collar group.

Friendship ties of widowed females exceed those of widowers.

The report is in Ob. Gyn. News, a newspaper for doctors.

A little black box called the Alpha Wave Sensor can enable one to relax, reports Industrial Research magazine.

The $100 device, manufactured by Neuronics of Chicago, makes a person's alpha brain waves audible, and in this way the user can use the principles of biofeedback to become tranquil, according to the report.

The alpha wave pattern has been identified by researchers as accompanying a state of mental relaxation. Researchers say that one can achieve relaxation by achieving the alpha rhythm.

The user affixes a headband and then listens for the steady beep of his brain's alpha waves.

A miniature heat engine, used in calves as the power source for an implantable heart-assist system, has performed flawlessly for more than 2,000 hours of continuous operation in a bench test.

Development and testing of the engine is being carried out with support from the medical devices applications program of the National Heart and Lung Institute.

Development of the miniature engine along with necessary auxiliary equipment has been under way for several years at the Donald W. Douglas Laboratories of McDonnell Douglas Astronautics Co., Richland, Wash.

The current model engine and auxiliary equipment — except for the blood pump — occupy a space roughly equivalent to a quart. It weighs about six pounds. Engineers believe an advanced system can be devised in which weight and volume can be cut in half.

A new drug, fenfluramine, appears to be effective in treating the mania (elation) stage of manic-depressive disease, a London doctor reports.

Dr. J. B. Pearce of Maudsley Hospital says patients begin to respond to the drug within 48 hours.

The drug, also known as Ponderax, is customarily used in the treatment of obesity.

The report is in the journal Lancet.

Q. Is it true that two women, Jane Cook and Jessie Cox, own The Wall Street Journal from which they receive $7 million a year in dividends?—Lynn Yates, Orange, N.J.

A. Jane Cook and Jessie Cox are step-granddaughters of Clarence Barron, early owner of The Wall Street Journal. The two sisters along with a family trust own 47 percent of the Dow Jones Corporation, which in turn owns The Wall Street Journal. Mrs. Jane Cook receives $2,932,407 in Dow Jones dividends each year. Mrs. Jessie Cox receives $2,414,645 in annual dividends. The Cook-Cox family trust receives $1,755,450 in annual dividends. The figures are from A. Kent MacDougall, 10-year veteran of The Wall Street Journal, writing in More, a journalism review.

MRS. JESSIE COX (LEFT) AND MRS. JANE COOK

Q. I was at Stanford University with Peggy Rusk, daughter of Dean Rusk, the former Secretary of State. Peggy married a handsome black named Guy Smith. Can you tell me what's happened to them?—R.E., Palo Alto, Calif.

A. Peggy and Guy Smith reside on a horse farm near Stafford, Va. They are the proud parents of a daughter, Samantha Leigh Smith, born Dec. 26, 1972. Guy Smith was a helicopter pilot during the Vietnamese war. They are happily married.

Q. Why is it that Bob Hope has never played Las Vegas? Is it because of the Mafia influence? Is Hope about to change his mind?—Louis Kaufman, Las Vegas, Nev.

A. For years many Las Vegas gaming establishments were controlled by or had ties to the Mafia. Several entertainers, therefore, preferred not to work there. In the past few years, however, Vegas has been appreciably laundered. It is therefore possible that comedian Hope might accept an offer reportedly made to him by hotel-owner Kirk Kerkorian. The offer calls for Hope to be paid $250,000 a week for four weeks each year over a period of five years.

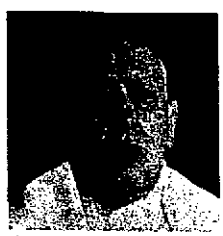

IMELDA MARCOS AND HER THREE CHILDREN

Q. Why has Imelda Marcos, wife of the Philippine President, bought a $300,000 penthouse in London? —Alberto Guittierez, Tucson, Ariz.

A. Imelda Marcos, 42-year-old former beauty queen, is a dedicated Anglophile who insists upon having her children educated in Great Britain. The seventh-floor penthouse which she purchased in the Kensington district of London serves as London headquarters for her and her children.

Q. Actor John Wayne has a long-playing record out called, "America, Why I Love Her." Has John Wayne ever served in the armed forces of the United States in the Spanish-American War, World War I, World War II, the Korean War, or the Vietnam War?—Ted Patrick, Lancaster, Calif.

A. John Wayne, somewhere between 65 and 70, was not yet born during the Spanish-American War of 1898. Neither has he ever served in any subsequent war. He is, however, a super-patriot, proudly, and he wants the world to know it.

Q. Can you please tell me what's happened to Cardinal Mindszenty who refused to leave Hungary several years ago?—Katherine Wolfe, Minneapolis, Minn.

A. Cardinal Mindszenty, 81, who spent 15 years in the U.S. embassy in Budapest after the 1956 Hungarian uprising, resides in Vienna. He plans to tour Canada and the United States.

Q. President Nixon's slogan "Peace With Honor"—has it now been changed to "Beef With Honor?"—T. L. Stratton, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

A. In connection with Vietnam the President has used the words "Peace With Honor." The President has never used the words "Beef With Honor," nor would he, of course.

Q. Can you tell me why Joanne Carson, divorced wife of Johnny Carson, keeps filing lawsuits against him?—Ann Metrano, Hoboken, N.J.

A. Recently Joanne Carson filed two suits against her former husband. The first asks for arbitration over a claimed $40,000 worth of property in the couple's former New York City home. Mrs. Carson claims that under a divorce agreement the properties were to be equally divided. She wants her rightful share.

In her second suit Joanne Carson asks for $12,500 in alimony payments for January and February, 1973. She states that Carson refuses to pay her the agreed alimony, because he claims she talked about him in violation of terms of their divorce agreement which stipulated that neither party could say or do anything which would hold the other up to public ridicule.

GETTING OUT OF A SITUATION: DORIS DAY

Q. I understand that Doris Day is quitting TV. Why? —Lorraine Johnson, Terre Haute, Ind.

A. After five years of starring in a half-hour situation comedy, Miss Day explains: "Doing a film TV series is extremely hard work, and I'm tired. I feel that five years is enough. There are so many other things to be done and said. Doing a situation comedy week after week is no longer fulfilling." Miss Day, born Doris Kappelhoff in Cincinnati almost 50 years ago, has been in show business more than half her life.

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES.

CREEP In retrospect, if there was ever an organization Richard Nixon never needed, it was the Committee for the Re-Election of the President.

That committee, founded on May 1, 1971, with Jeb Stuart Magruder as its first head, and former Attorney General John Mitchell, as its second, caused more trouble, scandal and loss of reputation to the Nixon Administration than any other single political organization.

Staffed by former Justice Department, White House, FBI, Cabinet and CIA employees, it acted stupidly, intemperately, incompetently and dishonestly.

To hire a group of men to burgle and wiretap Democratic headquarters in Watergate, to hire young men to infiltrate the political opposition, to accept huge campaign contributions from executives and organizations with obvious favors to demand, to compromise the FBI -- to hire security guards to keep Martha Mitchell incommunicado -- all these moves reflect incredible stupidity, poor judgment and complete lack of prudence by a staff which charitably may be described as inept.

The purpose of the Committee for the Re-Election of the President has been accomplished. It is time for the committee to call it quits before it brews more trouble. There is no further reason for its existence. It has already done enough harm, much of it irreparable.

WHEN ENGLAND BRIBED SPAIN Little by little the secret papers of Great Britain's World War II activities are coming to light.

George Bilainkin, 70, well-known English historian, author of 14 books, the most popular of which was "Diary of a Diplomatic Correspondent," recently revealed that it was "an astronomical bribe in 1940" which kept Franco's Spain from entering the war against Britain.

According to Bilainkin who pored through thousands of letters, documents, and communications in the London public records office, "It was Sir Samuel Hoare, our ambassador to Madrid, who negotiated the coup. Hoare had previously bribed Mussolini--that was following World War I--so the old boy was quite adept at that particular maneuver.

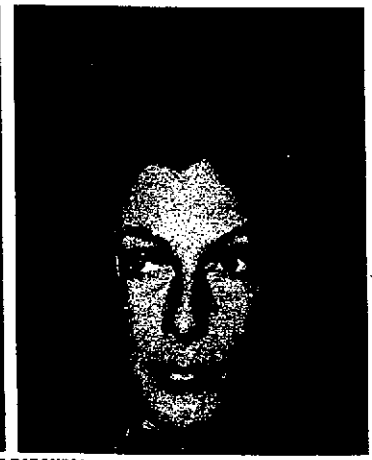

"The conclusive evidence about the Spanish bribe," Bilainkin told Intelligence Report from his home in Kent, "can be found in the correspondence between Lord Halifax, then our Foreign Secretary, and Hoare. The correspondence, once marked 'Personal and Secret' but no longer a secret, contains such juicy historical tidbits as Halifax writing to Hoare and saying, 'Neither Winston [Churchill] nor Kingsley [Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer] raised an eyebrow over your secret request [for money] except a flicker of approval!"

Other letters to Hoare which Bilainkin has discovered refer to the "special money grant that we have undertaken to make available to you."

Bilainkin says that just before Lord Vansittart died in 1957--Vansittart was chief adviser to the British Foreign Office--Bilainkin ran into him in the Dorchester Hotel. "I asked Van how much it had cost us to bribe Spain in 1940 to stay out of the war. That was a critical period for us. France had fallen, and you Americans had not yet joined us. And Lord Van raised his hand to his head, then pointed to the sky and said, 'It was astronomical, astronomical.' "

Bilainkin has just finished a book, tentatively entitled "Joseph P. Kennedy, The Wartime Years," which he imagines hopefully will arouse a good deal of interest in the United States.

ALEXANDER ONASSIS AND THE BARONESS FIONA VON THYSSEN

ONASSIS' SON'S WILL Although Alexander Onassis, 24, only son of Aristotle Onassis, was killed in an air crash in Athens several months ago, details of his will have not yet been made public.

Intelligence Report learns from private sources, however, that one of his beneficiaries will be Baroness Fiona von Thyssen, 40, the woman he loved. She is the former Fiona Campbell-Waterman, once the leading model in Great Britain. She will probably inherit $500,000.

Although Alexander Onassis, 16 years younger than Fiona, reluctantly complied with his father's request not to marry Fiona on the grounds that she could not provide him with an heir, young Alexander refused to break with Fiona. She was the great love of his life.

TALL STORY WRITER: BEATRICE WELLES

CITIZEN KANE'S DAUGHTER Orson Welles has a daughter Beatrice who very much resembles him. She is 6 feet 1 inch tall, which makes it rather difficult for her to obtain modeling jobs. She has therefore decided to become a journalist and is working for "Vogue" magazine in London.

TRUE STORY Many of the apartheid laws of South Africa are both cruel and criminal. Apartheid, of course, is Afrikaans for apartness and encompasses the racial segregation policy enforced by the government of South Africa.

A few weeks ago in Cape Town, Dawn Swart, 24, a white woman married to a white man, Nicholas Swart, 25, accidentally stabbed him.

She was washing her hair in the bathroom when her husband quietly moved up behind her and tickled her back. He had just come from the kitchen and had a breadknife in his hand. Dawn, startled, suddenly swung around, and somehow the knife lodged in her husband's stomach. He staggered into the living room and collapsed on the floor.

Mrs. Swart pulled the knife out of his stomach, ran to her neighbor who called for the police and an ambulance.

"When the ambulance arrived." Mrs. Swart recalls, "my husband was lying on the floor in a pool of blood. I begged the attendant to take Nicholas to the hospital. I pleaded with the police sergeant, who was also there, to help. He said he couldn't. I was told that whites and non-whites cannot be transported in the same ambulance, and there were already two non-whites in the ambulance. I begged and I pleaded, but I was given to understand that the law is the law and had to be obeyed. And so my husband died."

THE HIGH COST OF DENTISTRY Dental costs in the United States have become so outrageously high in many cases, a consumer publication contends that "If you are facing the prospect of a dental bill of $1000 or more, chances are you can fly to Europe, stay two weeks or more, have the work done by a thoroughly competent dentist and end up spending less -- the trip included -- than the dental work alone would have cost in the United States."

One reason dental costs are so astronomical in this country is that there is a shortage of dental manpower, especially in rural areas. U.S. dentists, who are generally excellent, continue to do well financially. The 1970 average net income for dental specialists in private practice was $43,853.

CATHOLIC POPULATION According to the Vatican's new Statistical Yearbook there are now 659 million Roman Catholics in the world.

Of the total world population of 3589 million, 18.4 percent are Catholics. The Vatican says it counts as Catholics all persons who have been baptized in the church whether they practice their religion or not.

WEIGHT AND BABIES Ladies, if you're pregnant or plan on having a child, send for a 56-page booklet, "How Children Grow," single copies of which are available free from: Information Office, Division of Research Resources, National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md. 20014.

The booklet, informative and authoritative, points out that the survival rate of infants is closely related to their birth weights. The lower the weight, the greater the danger the infant faces.

It is possible, according to the booklet, to decrease by 50 percent the infant death rate in the U.S. and possibly eliminate a major cause of brain damage in children by studying the problems of underweight babies.

There is a new technique which determines whether an unborn baby is developing normally. The expectant mother has her estriol hormone level measured. A low excretion of estriol, which is an estrogen found in the mother's urine, usually means there is a constricted blood supply to the uterus. Frequently this leads to the birth of an underweight baby.

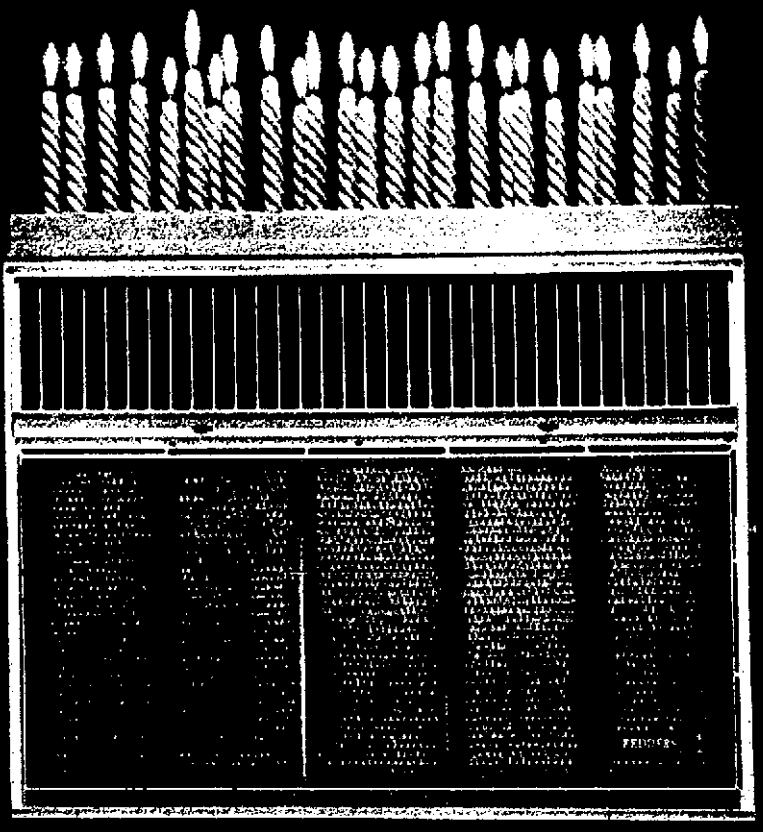

The booklet also includes excellent chapters on hormones, nutrition, obesity, the emotional problems of growing up and the development of adolescents. It is one of the most outstanding publications made available by the government.

PETER FINCH WITH MOTHER AND ELETHA AT FILM PREMIERE

CHURCH WANTED It's been no secret in show-biz circles that for years London-born actor Peter Finch, star of the remake of "Lost Horizon" has been living with Eletha Barrett, 30, a Jamaican beauty operator.

The black Jamaican beauty, 30, is the acknowledged mother of Diana, Finch's 3-year-old daughter. At a recent royal command film performance in London, Finch, 56, still handsome but growing paunchy, confided to reporters: "I have a couple of broken marriages behind me, and I don't think a piece of paper means anything, but women somehow think differently. I love Eletha, and if marriage will make her happy, I'll be glad to do so if we can find a church that will have us."

Who's Boss Around Here, Dad?

by James Lincoln Collier

Back in the good old days, which took place the year I was 10, if I had ever told my father he "had" to do something, a gasp would have swept the room, and my mother would have washed my mouth out with soap. The rule was that he gave the orders and I took them, and the best I could do was look forward to the time of revenge when I would have some young people of my own to boss around. That time has now arrived, but something seems to have gone wrong. I can't exactly explain it, but a kind of Children's Lib has intervened. Today I take the line, "You have to" with my daily bread.

'I want to talk to you'

Probably the most common use of the refrain goes like this: "Dad, you have to drive me over to . . ." As an example of the dialogue that follows, written by somebody of no particular literary talent, take what happened last Saturday. I was about to leave for my tennis date with Alex Sheppard, and was searching in the back of the closet for some balls when a 10-year-old voice behind me said, "Daddy, turn around I want to talk to you."

I straightened up so fast that I banged my head on the closet shelf, causing me to utter a word I use in front of children only occasionally. "What do you mean, 'Turn around?' "

"I thought you said swearing was the sign of an immature mind," the boy said.

'That's illogical, Dad'

"Grown-ups are allowed to swear sometimes to relieve their feelings."

"That's illogical," he said. "Kids have feelings, too, and . . ."

"Yes, and I've got a feeling I'm about to paddle a 10-year-old behind."

"Okay," he said with admirable resignation. "Let's not get into an argument about it. All I wanted to tell you is, you have to drive me over to Little League."

"I have to?"

"Yes."

"Why can't you walk?" I demanded. "It's only a mile. When I was your age . . ."

"I have too much stuff to carry."

"A glove and a bat?" I said. "That's too much? Hang the glove from the bat and carry it over your shoulder. When I was a kid . . ."

"It's the whole equipment bag."

"I don't see any equipment bag around here. Anyway, when I was a . . ."

"It's over at Randy Sheppard's."

I snorted. "Then why doesn't Mr. Sheppard drive?"

"Randy says he can't," the boy responded. "His father's playing tennis with somebody."

I lunged for the phone. But Judy Sheppard informed me that Alex was just going down the drive. "I'm furious with him," she said, "he was supposed to take Randy to Little League, but he didn't want to be late to meet you."

I don't suppose I would have been quite so sore at Alex, but as we got into the car the boy said, "See, I told you you had to drive."

It was a perfect instance of Children's Lib at work. Today's child is not only utterly ruthless, but equipped with a low cunning that enables him to figure everything out a week before you do. For example, not long ago, as we were sitting at the table over a meatloaf, I was peremptorily informed, "You have to come to the Cub Scout picnic on Sunday."

From past experience I knew that this meant striking out in front of 50 jeering 9-year-olds, as well as burning my hand on the hot dog grill. As the episode of the Little League still rankled, I decided to make an issue of it, proving once and for all who was boss. "I don't suppose I have a choice in the matter," I said.

"No. You have to."

I pulled myself upright in my seat over the meatloaf. "If you'd asked politely I might have said yes. But just to teach you a lesson, I'm not going."

"Give one good reason," he said promptly.

Keeping a careful grip on my temper, I said, "Because I'm father around here, and I'll do what I want."

"That reason isn't any good."

"I don't care," I snarled. I was beginning to sweat a little. "Anyway, I don't have to give you a reason."

"Why not?"

'Tell him he has to, Mom'

"Because I'm father around here. . . ." With a sudden sinking sensation I realized that my logic was flying to the winds. At this juncture the boy realized that he was in danger of losing his command over me. Heedless of the damage he might do to the marriage relationship, he swung around to face his mother. "He has to—doesn't he, Mom?"

"I'm sure your father wouldn't go back on a promise," she said, calmly dipping her fork into the meatloaf.

I blinked. "Promise?"

"Don't you remember? Last year you couldn't, so you said you would this year."

I felt betrayed. Fundamentally I didn't believe I had made any such promise, but I didn't want to call her a liar, either. Somewhat desperately I snapped out, "Promises don't last a whole year."

She shrugged somewhat sadly. "Well, if you don't want to keep a promise to your own son . . ."

I went. And I burnt my hand, too.

Episodes like that, while demeaning, are not actually painful. Another one was. It began about a month ago when the 10-year-old member of the family said at breakfast, "Daddy, you have to start getting up at 6:30 on Saturday."

'Who's blowing up!!?'

"Huh?" I said with my usual quick wit, my spoon halted in midair over my Corn Crunchies.

"Now don't blow up yet," my wife said nervously.

"Who's blowing up?" I said wrathfully. "All I said was 'Huh' and everybody jumps on me."

"Shush," she said soothingly. "Nobody's jumping on you."

"Anyway," the cause of my internal fires interposed, flinging coals on the flames, "Don't forget, you have to get up at 6:30 on Saturdays."

At this point it began to sink in that the wolves were gathering around the cottage door and that unless I pulled together what little cunning I possessed, my Saturday mornings abed would go glimmering. Bitter experience told me that only the verbal dexterity of an encyclopedia salesman would let me wriggle out of this. Proceeding with care, I said, "I don't suppose I can ask why?"

"Sure. Because the high school gets the pool from 9 so we better get there at 7:30, so we'll have enough time."

'Teach me the crawl'

I nodded judiciously. "Okay, I've got you so far. Now tell me, time for what?"

"You have to teach me to swim the crawl."

"I have to?"

"Now don't get cross again," my wife said.

"What do you mean again?"

"Shouting like that."

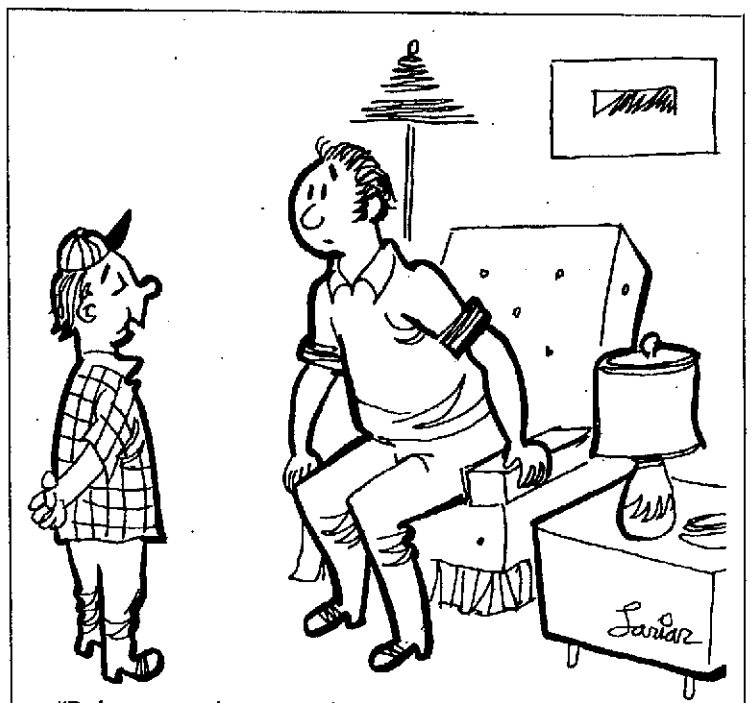

"Who's shout . . ." I sucked in a pillowful of wind and flapped my cheeks. "Now why do I have to teach you the crawl? What happened to that lifesaving course you're supposed to be taking that's costing me five dollars a minute?"

"See, that's the thing, I can't take lifesaving until I learn the crawl."

"Well, then you can wait till this summer when we're up at Lake Chabungagungamog. I'm not getting up at 6:30 . . ."

"Well, okay," he said. "I just figured since you paid the $20 deposit on the lifesaving course . . ."

Actually, it isn't so bad getting up at 6:30 once you get used to it. And there's always this: a 10-year-old with his head under water doesn't have much chance to give orders.

"Dad, you gotta take me surf riding, or to a baseball game, or to the movies, or the circus, or the amusement park, or the hockey match or the rodeo. Or would you rather give me ten bucks and let me shift for myself?"

Back in the good old days, men didn't buy appliances. They married them.

Ten little losers, standing in a line. One bought our magazine. Then there were nine.

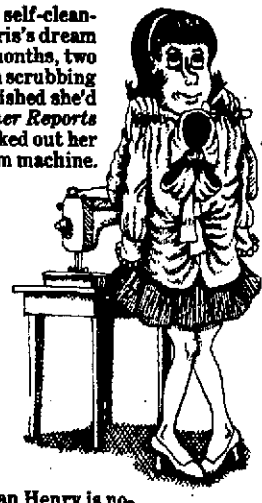

Since hamburger prices went through the roof, Alice feeds her kids hot dogs instead. She doesn't know that ground beef may be a better buy for nourishment, or that a plain old peanut-butter sandwich could be better yet.

Bill didn't trust his thermostat, so he bought a $5 household thermometer to check it. Now he's completely confused—and he could have solved his problem for 69¢.

A range with a self-cleaning oven was Chris's dream come true. Six months, two burns, and a tough scrubbing later—she wished she'd checked Consumer Reports before she picked out her dream machine.

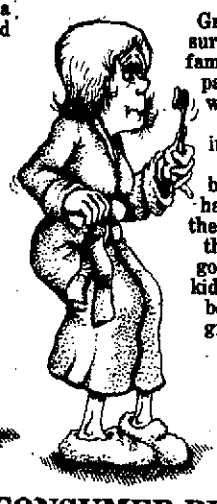

Debbie's motto was, "you get what you pay for," so she paid $400 for a zig-zag sewing machine. She didn't know that her nylon tricot blouse would have turned out better on the $250 machine she bypassed.

When Ed decided to refinish his boat, he spent $3.20 a quart for paint remover. If he'd known better, he could have saved 55¢ a quart—and stripped it cleaner in half the time.

Frank's pride and joy was the new single lens reflex camera he'd bought for $460. Too bad he didn't hear about the one Consumer Reports rated just as good for $140 less.

Handyman Henry is nobody's fool; he knew that the $45 saber saw the salesman was pushing was no better than the $24 model he bought. Unfortunately, he didn't see the $17 saw that was better than both of them.

Ida listened to a half dozen compact stereo systems before she chose her $250 set. How could she guess that a model that cost just $1 more would give her a lot more value for her money.

Going her way: A minibus that comes when called enables this commuter to leave her own automobile at home.

Beat the Traffic—Phone for a Minibus

by Sherry Kahan

ANN ARBOR, MICH.

Like many commuters, Mrs. Nancy McCann hates to drive to work in bad weather. But unlike most, she has a handy alternative. When the winter snow flies, or the springtime rain beats against the windows, she steps to her phone and calls Dial-A-Ride. In about 10 minutes a minibus painted a fetching shade of purple is at her door.

Stepping aboard, she greets driver Dave O'Dine, who has called for her so often they're almost old friends. Along with any other passengers who may be aboard, she and Dave discuss the weather and the driving conditions as they move along. "For 60 cents one way, I am spared the hassle of fighting the weather and the traffic, and I don't have to look for a parking place or pay for one," says Mrs. McCann.

Dial-A-Ride systems are currently operating in about a dozen American and Canadian cities. They represent the latest attack on the steadily mounting problem of urban transportation in our traffic-choked cities. Among localities using Dial-A-Ride-type systems are Mansfield and Columbus, Ohio; Columbia, Md., and Rochester, N.Y. New York City's Regional Plan Association has recommended it for the area around Kennedy Airport. And in Haddonfield, N.J., the U.S. Department of Transportation is helping to finance a continuing demonstration of the program.

Ann Arbor introduced its Dial-A-Ride operation in the autumn of 1971 as part of an attempt by a new, aggressive Transportation Authority to restructure the city's failing bus system. The system is simple: when you want a bus, you dial 663-4292. Calls are received by a dispatcher who's in touch with small, 10-seat buses via two-way radio.

As set up experimentally in a 2100-home area in southwestern Ann Arbor, Dial-A-Ride covers a prescribed loop that includes downtown banks, stores, restaurants, and government offices, as well as the university, the hospital, the "Y" and the intercity bus station. You can pay for rides individually, or buy a family pass for $15 a month.

A satisfied customer

A satisfied monthly customer is Mrs. Mona Walz who takes the bus daily to classes at the University of Michigan. For $180 a year—less than the cost of insurance on a second car, not to mention the car itself—the Walz family is entitled to unlimited rides.

Every Saturday, for example, Mrs. Walz's two daughters, aged 10 and 6, hop the minibus for a morning at the "Y," and then ring up for a ride home. There's even a special Dial-A-Ride phone in the downtown area on which you can call toll-free for a ride home. "There's a friendly atmosphere that I like," says Mrs. Walz. "Once when the children were overdue I phoned in and the dispatcher said: 'We're running a little late, Mrs. Walz, but the girls were just picked up on Main Street.' "

Even operating on a limited scale, Ann Arbor's Dial-A-Ride system is expensive. The budget for the first year was $180,000, of which one-third was returned from fares. The rest was put up by the Transit Authority, with help from the Michigan Bureau of Transportation. From a start of 200 passengers a day in the first year of operation, the system is now up to 250 a day.

More in Haddonfield

A similar acceptance is reported in Haddonfield, N.J., where Dial-A-Ride was launched Feb. 19, 1972, by the then Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe. Haddonfield's system is more extensive than Ann Arbor's; an average of 350 persons a day rode it during its first week of operation.

Studies of Dial-A-Ride have been made by Ford, General Motors, and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, with all concluding that the system is technically and economically feasible for many areas. Ford has given technical backing to the Ann Arbor setup by designing the dispatching system and service layout, and providing a test vehicle.

Comments one Ann Arbor resident: "Everyone is always telling city people that the only way we can lick the traffic problem is for commuters to give up coming to work by car. Well, I think the only way to do that is to give them other transportation that provides the same comforts and conveniences as the car. That's what Dial-A-Ride is doing around here, and that's why it's working."

My Favorite Jokes

by Julie DeJohn

EDITOR'S NOTE: Julie De John started her career singing with her younger sister Dux. As the De John sisters, and after only six months in the business, they had a million-seller recording called "No More." Since her sister left show business, Julie's career has gone through many phases, with much of the emphasis on comedy. To audiences on the Johnny Carson, Dinah Shore, and Mike Douglas shows her food cravings and "portly" figure are sources of jokes and merriment.

Julie has appeared in clubs across the country, will be at the Harmer House in Pittsburgh next month. She lives with her husband, Dave Patterson, and their two sons outside Philadelphia. Her husband's an ardent golfer, and the sport presents a definite challenge to Julie. "When I put the ball down where it's supposed to be I can't see it, and when I put it where I can see it, I can't reach it."

Here are some of Julie's jokes and comments:

Some things happened to me which still break me up. I was with my sister Dux, when we were still a team. We were on Eighth Avenue in New York City and it was raining so hard we couldn't see a thing. We were trying to hail a cab; I'm standing on one side of the street, she on the other. Finally she hailed one, got in, and I came from the other side and started opening the door.

The driver said, "Miss, I saw her first." I said, "I don't care, I'm sitting down anyway." "Look," he said, "I saw her first, now get out. Do you want me to call a cop?" Finally, my sister said, "Wait a minute, please, where do you live?" I said, "I'm at the Gorham Hotel." She said, "Oh, I am, too." And the driver said, "Thank God."

He started to drive, and I moaned, "You got me so upset, and when I'm nervous, if I don't sing, it's all over." He said, "Go ahead, lady, sing, do whatever you want, I don't care." So I started to sing. But I stopped abruptly, "I feel like an idiot singing by myself, at least sing with me." So he starts singing and shaking his head, thinking what's he gotten into. Now Dux joins in and he said, "Hey, you two sound good together." I then asked her what she was doing in New York, and she said, "Well, my father's getting aggravated because I want to be a singer." I said, "Gee, my parents are getting angry, too, because it costs quite a bit of money. I have an apartment in the hotel. I'm on the sixth floor." "So am I," she said. The driver said, "This is unbelievable, in my cab it happens."

Now, we're in front of the hotel and I said to my sister, "You hailed the cab, you pay." She said, "Why should I?" Then the cabby said, "You know what, good luck to both of you, it's on me." And we didn't pay. We got out of the cab, and as we looked back we could see him slowly shaking his head.

It's hard for me to get insurance because of my weight. An insurance agent said to me, "I want to sell you this policy. I realize it's expensive, but it's because of your weight. Now, I'm not going to pressure you, or scare you into buying it. Take this policy home, sleep on it tonight, and if you wake up in the morning, call me."

There was a guy in a bar and another guy comes in and says, "I think somebody's stealing your car." So he runs out and comes right back in again. The guy asks, "Did you stop him?" And he says, "No he was too fast, but I got his license plate number."

A passenger said to the conductor, "What's the use of your timetable, the trains are never on time, anyway." And the conductor said, "If we didn't have a timetable, how would you know they were late?"

This guy is on the 14th green ready to tee off. The green happens to run parallel to the main road, and in the middle of his backswing a funeral entourage passes by. He stops his swing, removes his hat and places it over his heart. His golfing partner, quite impressed, compliments him on his show of respect. "Gee, Harry, that was very nice of you." And Harry says, "Why not? She was a great wife for 28 years."

Fresh asparagus is plentiful right now, so it's a good time to try Asparagus Pie, a new way to serve a delicious vegetable. Cooked, cut asparagus spears are combined in a pre-baked pie shell with diced ham in a flavorful sauce—and then topped with tangy grated cheese. When fresh asparagus is out of season, you can substitute two packages (10 oz. each) of frozen asparagus.

Asparagus Pie

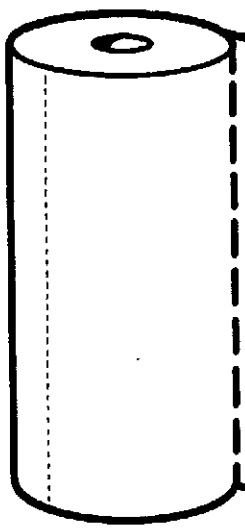

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon cornstarch
¾ teaspoon salt, divided
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup milk
¼ cup mayonnaise
2 cups diced cooked ham
1 pound hot cooked asparagus
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 baked 9-inch pastry shell
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Melt butter or margarine in a 2-quart saucepan over medium heat. Stir in cornstarch, ¼ teaspoon salt, and pepper. Remove from heat. Gradually stir in milk, mixing until smooth. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until sauce comes to boil and boils 1 minute. Stir small amount of cornstarch mixture into mayonnaise, then stir into mixture in saucepan. Add ham; cook over low heat about 5 minutes or until ham is heated. Cut all but 6 asparagus spears into halves or thirds; toss with lemon juice and ½ teaspoon salt. Line pastry shell with asparagus pieces. Cover with the ham mixture. Arrange remaining whole spears of asparagus on top. Sprinkle with grated cheese. Broil about 4 inches from heat, 2 to 3 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes six servings.

The "two-together" laxative!

(It's made with smaller doses of two laxatives.)

Some single ingredient laxatives work on the "Sunday punch" theory. One big dose of a strong laxative that can knock your system for a loop.

Caroid & Bile Salts Tablets are made up of two separate laxatives that combine the surety of a strong laxative with the gentleness of a mild one.

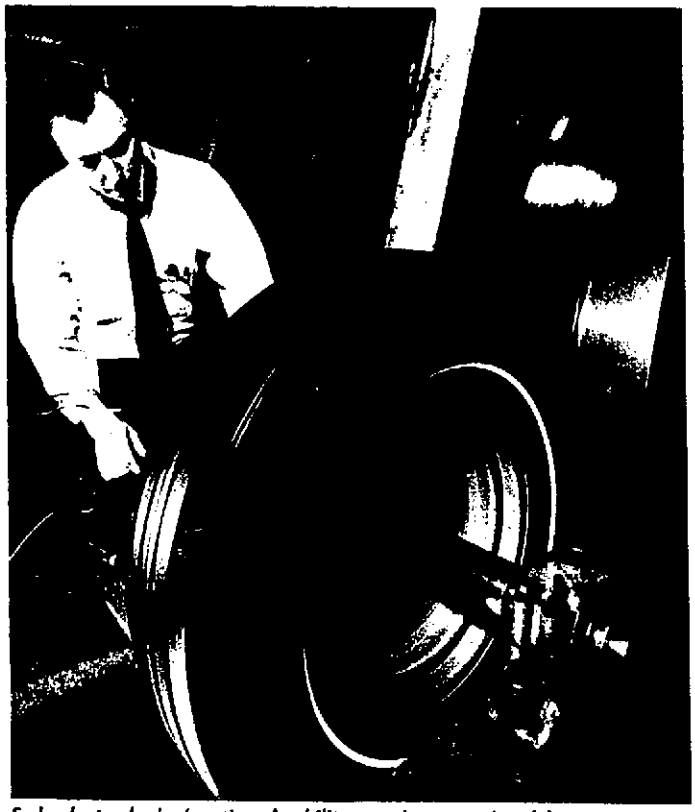

Together they help ease you to regularity without sudden urgency upset.

And because the dosage is pre-measured, Caroid & Bile Salts Tablets are thorough and so predictable you can almost set your watch by them. Take two tablets at bedtime. Get a good night's sleep. And you can expect to be back on schedule in the morning.

Gentle Caroid & Bile Salts Tablets—the 'two-together' laxative—to help put your system back on schedule.

Federal standards for tire durability require extensive laboratory testing like this, where laser beams and computers measure high-speed performance.

Consumer Watch by Ralph Morse

A Guide to Buying Tires

A welter of conflicting claims confronts anyone who shops for tires. Competing ads show tires crunching glass, smashing rocks or driving over sharpened axes. Some tires sell through catchy slogans, others advertise lower prices. But how does the buyer really know which tires offer the best value, or which are safest? The government is getting ready to solve at least part of this problem.

Under proposed new regulations—on which consumers' comments are invited—the U.S. Department of Transportation would rate tires for treadwear, traction and high-speed performance. Says Douglas Toms, recent head of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration: "There has been much confusion, both in the industry and among individual consumers on how to differentiate between high- and low-grade tires." The new, simple rules aim at minimizing the confusion.

Laboratory tests

The government proposal calls for molding a tire's grade into the sidewall as well as displaying it on a tread sticker.

Government testers will compare tires in laboratories against a control tire to determine ratings as follows:

- Treadwear would be measured in seven grades from "less than 60" to "200." The figures would represent the actual percentage of the test tire's wear relative to that of the control tire.
- Traction will be symbolized by stars or asterisks. A three-star tire would have achieved 110 percent of the traction of the control tire. Two stars would signify the same traction as the control tire, while one star would indicate 90 percent of the control tire's traction. A dash would symbolize traction of less than 90 percent of the control tire's.
- High-speed performance grades will be designated "A," "B" and "C," with "A" indicating the best performance, up to 105 mph without separating because of heat. Grade "B" would indicate durability at up to 95 mph, while "C" would indicate the minimum level of performance meeting federal tire-safety standards, holding up at a sustained 85 mph.

The standards would go into effect Sept. 1, 1974. Information on tires then would be available both to buyers of replacement tires, and of new cars.

The new rating system was not designed to include information about how many miles a motorist could expect from tires, but officials say this was impossible to measure because different road conditions around the country and individual vehicles and driving habits cause mileage to vary widely.

Americans will be buying about 175 million replacement tires between now and the time the new regulations would go into effect. There are some things buyers can do to get the best deal.

1. Have in mind the plans for the car. Is the car used only around town to run to the grocery store, or is it driven thousands of miles a month on highways at high speeds? How long do you intend to keep the car—a year, three years or more?
2. Read the owner's manual for the car. It may have valuable information.
3. Generally, radial tires, though most expensive, provide the longest mileage and the best handling and traction. But not all radials are better than some belted bias-ply tires. The traditional tire, the bias-ply, is still the standby.
4. Match use of the car with tire characteristics. If the car is scheduled to be sold in a year, don't sink an extra $25 a tire into radials.
5. Not all cars have been engineered to take radials, which sometimes are thought to give a "harsher" ride than the belted bias-ply tires, for instance. Some dealers offer free trials on new radials, because the only way to know whether the radials suit your car and taste is to put them on and test-drive.
6. There have been no standard designations for tire quality. "Premium" or "first-line" may really mean little.
7. Government standards already in effect have eliminated many generally unsafe tires. A tire with "DOT" molded into the side indicates compliance: that is the tire will not disintegrate from the heat at somewhat more than sustained normal freeway speeds. The new regulations would supplement present standards.
8. Not all dealers charge the same for the same tires or have equal service facilities. Likewise, different dealers and brands have different warranty plans. Find a dealer who gives straight answers to questions and inspires confidence. Shop around.

YOUR NERVES CAN CURE THEMSELVES

once you learn how to de-sensitize them, this doctor's ingenious new way...

If You Suffer From A Single One Of These Torturous Symptoms Of Nerves, Tension Or Chronic Anxiety, THEN THE FACTS BELOW MAY BE THE MOST IMPORTANT YOU HAVE EVER READ IN YOUR LIFE!

Because they reveal, for the first time, how your nerves have tricked you into the following mental symptoms:

constant nervousness and over-irritation...indecision...depression ...loss of confidence in yourself and others...feelings of unreality... overwhelming obsession with one or two horrible thoughts...

a hopeless feeling that your entire personality is coming apart...that your identity is dissolving...or that you may be helplessly drifting into a nervous breakdown!

And—equally as bad—how your nerves have tricked you into the following physical symptoms:

chronic fatigue, that starts in the morning, and grows worse as the day goes on...

"missed" heartbeats—"racing" heart—palpitations—or sudden sharp pains under the heart...

sweating hands—or "pins and needles" in either your hands or your legs...

"churning" stomach...nausea...choking feeling in the throat... inability to take a deep breath...tight band of pain around the head..."ready to jump out of your skin"...strange tricks of vision ...weak spells...insomnia, that goes on night after night after night...

hand shaking...panic spasms...knots in your chest...dizziness... difficulty in swallowing...vomiting...and all the other physical tortures that turn your life into one continuous hell!

And Every One Of These Nervous Symptoms Can Be Controlled...And Then Diminished ...And Then Eliminated—OFTEN BY AS LITTLE AS THIS ONE SINGLE INSIGHT INTO THEIR HIDDEN CAUSE!

And that insight is this:
If you suffer from any of the nervous symptoms listed above, then you must understand at once that your nerves are not ill...they have not deteriorated...they have not lost their true physical health in any way! What has happened to them instead is that they have simply become OVER-SENSITIZED..."rubbed raw" by too much outside irritation ...and are now ready to discharge the emotional and physical symptoms of panic at even the slightest thing that goes wrong!

Thus, the depression...indecision...loss of confidence and all the other emotional symptoms you feel are all caused by OVER-SENSITIZED nerves! And the churning stomach...palpitating heart... never-ending headaches and all the other physical nervous-symptoms you feel are—again—all caused by OVER-SENSITIZED nerves!

And therefore the way to treat ALL these symptoms is NOT with drugs...NOT with shock...NOT with medical formulations or hospitalizations at all! The way to treat these nerves is to change the poisonous-thoughts that are rubbing them raw!

And this is done (as proven by this internationally-famed physician on thousands of patients) in four simple steps! The first of which stops nervous symptoms (both physical and emotional) from multiplying from that moment on! The second of which serves to tranquilize and quiet down those over-sensitized nerves far more powerfully (and permanently) than any drug a pharmacist could ever give you!

The third of which lets you stop fighting those symptoms (which only intensifies them in an ever-increasing spiral of sheer torment), and—instead—leave them alone in an ingenious way that lets them start healing themselves!

And the fourth of which—the great reward—brings you slowly-but-surely back to the person you used to be! With a new, enduring feeling of control and confidence that nothing can destroy! So much so that this doctor actually comes right out and states bluntly: "The advice given here will definitely cure you, if you only follow it"!

In Fact, Case History After Case History Proves That Cure May Be So Dramatically Quick That Your Friends And Family Will Beg You To Tell Them Your Secret!

Once again, it doesn't matter what physical or emotional symptoms you are now suffering from...how "deeply entrenched" they are... how long you have been plagued by them...how "old" or "weak" or "out-of-control" you may feel today! Here is specific, step-by-immediate-step advice that will (again to quote directly from the doctor) "banish every unwelcome sensation and regain peace of mind and body"!

For example:

The two-minute self-treatment (you perform one ingenious little action with your chest) that ends sudden panic seizures on the spot—including all their side effects such as dizziness, pins and needles, involuntary stiffening of the joints, inability to breathe, and all the rest.

That "lump in the throat that won't go away"—how to banish it in minutes...and enjoy eating any food you wish to once again!

Physical weakness—perhaps the most dreaded of all symptoms—and (surprisingly) perhaps the fastest of all to banish!

How to deal with the twin monsters of fatigue and guilt! And leave behind emotional exhaustion...morning depression...thoughts that once raced around and around in your mind without cessation! (And leave them all behind—for good!)

Why so many patients who tried these simple techniques actually came out of their nervous sicknesses as far finer, and stronger people than they ever were before!

How to recover from chronic tension caused by an insoluable problem! The only sane way to overcome it! How to avoid unnecessary suffering, for both yourself and others! And, perhaps, actually turn your worst defeat into crowning success!

The surest and most permanent way to cure obsessions!

How to tap the forces of Nature, every morning, that are just waiting to cure you!

How to bring happiness back into your everyday life! Not by waiting for some great event or reward...but simply by developing the eyes to see joy in the little things all around you!

How to beat insomnia! Again, specific, proven step-by-step instructions! Ten different aids that may have you waking up tomorrow morning as fresh as a baby, with eight full hours of blissful sleep replenishing every cell in your body!

And—the final goal: How to develop the kind of nervous control that automatically turns panic off the instant it starts! That frees you forever from "nerve-crutches" such as drugs or alcohol! That lets you pick up your life again from the point where over-sensitized nerves forced you to abandon it, with absolute confidence that you now have the poise and self-possession to accomplish the goals you have always wanted!

No Wonder This Great Self-Help Volume Is Already A Best-Seller In Nine Foreign Nations, As Well As The United States! And It Is Yours To Read From Cover To Cover—Entirely At Our Risk!

The choice is yours. This is a book for people who mean business. It costs you nothing! We take all the risk! Fair enough? Why not send in the coupon—TODAY!

WHAT OTHERS SAY:

"...helped me so much and released me from the particular hell I have been living in since my breakdown six years ago."

"I think of Dr. Weekes with admiration and deep gratitude, as I am sure thousands of other people are doing."

"Looking back now I am amazed at the progress I have made in such a comparatively short time."

"It would be no exaggeration to add that your book saved my life."

"The method you give for cure of nervous conditions is so effective—and so simple—I cannot think why, out of all the professional people I have seen and all the books I have read in an effort to find a cure, nothing remotely like your system has been suggested to me.

"The great reassurance you give about the distressing physical symptoms of a disturbed nervous system is one of the greatest benefits to be derived from your book."

"You cannot possibly imagine what a relief it is to be able to view life normally again, instead of fear-panic all the while."

"I cannot describe the emotion I felt to find, at last, someone who really understood the problem, and to hear her say the condition can be cured....If only this understanding person had the time to take all sufferers under her wing."

"I would like you to know that my nervous condition has so greatly improved through the advice gleaned from your most precious and invaluable book...that all symptoms have now disappeared and I rarely need Librium or sleeping capsules."

"My physician is amazed at my progress and of course I showed him your book which he borrowed and read thoroughly and is now recommending to other patients in like circumstances."

"My wife has made a vast improvement since using your book and now feels for the first time like getting away from the hospital altogether. I'm sure if she had had your treatment in earlier years she would never have had to go into the hospital at all."

WHAT THE PUBLISHER SAYS:

HOPE AND HELP FOR YOUR NERVES has sold over 250,000 copies and has been endorsed by medical and mental-health associations throughout the world. Millions of Americans have heard Dr. Weekes on television and radio shows and have read excerpts from the book which recently appeared in Reader's Digest. If you are one of the many whose nerves are on edge and who sometimes feel panic and don't know why, this remarkable book was written for you. The reader discovers the simple treatment the author recommends for the dreaded and mystifying experiences known as "nerves"—indecision, suggestibility, feelings of panic, sleeplessness, loss of confidence, unreality, depression, and countless other recognized feelings of ill health.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

DR. CLAIRE WEEKES became interested in the problems of nervous illness when she observed in her medical practice that those who suffered most suffered "nervously." Dr. Weekes is Consulting Physician to the Rachel Forster Hospital in Sydney, Australia. She has written articles for popular magazines in England and has appeared widely on English television.

Dr. Weekes has appeared with Mike Douglas, Arlene Francis, Barry Farber and many other U.S. radio and TV shows.

PARADE OF PROGRESS

TAKE A LOOK AT THESE NEW IDEAS FOR YOUR HOME AND FAMILY ■ BY PETER DRYDEN

SAIL BICYCLING: All you need for a new sport—bicycling before the wind, no need for pedaling—is a clear plastic sail (left) on the handlebars and a favorable breeze. The record to shoot at: 0 to 22 mph from a standing start in ¼ mile. The 16 sq. ft. sail fits an aluminum mast with a tiller. Mast steps into a bracket permanently attached to handlebars on any size or make of bike. To stop, you turn tiller forward to dump wind out of the sail. When not in use, sail, mast and supports fold into compact package secured to top bar frame of bike. $19.99. Viking Bicycle Sail, Dept. PP, Box 603, Oregon City, Oreg. 97045.

SHARPENING STEEL: Here's a new sharpener (above) that's useful around the house and easy to carry with you in a belt scabbard on hunting and fishing trips. The leather thong on the 6" steel becomes a holder to help hone knives, axes, fish hooks, etc., safely and at proper angle. Use the steel, too, for scissors, chain-saws. With leather belt scabbard, snap-on extension handle: $9.95 ppd. Metal Masters, Dept. PP, 10837 Central Ave., South El Monte, Calif. 91733.

You get more than paint. You get help.

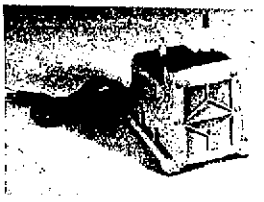

Sherwin-Williams gives you much more than paint and decorating products. We give you people. Knowledgeable, helpful people. People with ideas. People with information. People who are willing to take the time to teach you how to complete a terrific little decorating project or an entire room. Whether you buy our products or not.

That may sound like a strange way to run a paint store. But then, we're much more than a paint store now.

COVER THE EARTH

Sherwin-Williams. More than a paint store.

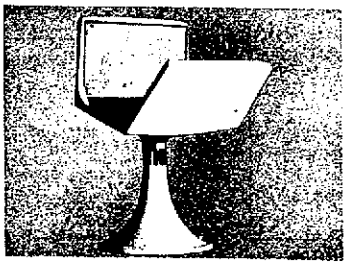

CLEAN YOUR SPARKS: You can use this new machine (above) to clean and prolong the life of car, mower and other spark plugs. Its 1200 rpm electric motor drives an impeller that imparts high velocity to small glass shot. Use of glass shot, claims the maker, avoids damage to plug electrodes and prevents insulator chipping. With supply of shot and thread-cleaning brush: $19.95 postpaid. Jaycraft Corp., Dept. PP, 760 N. Marshall Ave., El Cajon, Calif. 92020.

FOR YOUR CAR: With a new kit, you can minimize alternator whine and ignition noise on your car stereo tape player or FM radio. Kit contains choke coil and capacitor designed to be installed quickly without special tools. $1.69 in stores. Radio Shack, Dept. PP, 2617 West Seventh St., Fort Worth, Tex. 76107.

PICTURE STABILIZERS: With simple little stays you apply to their backs, you can keep pictures hanging straight and let air circulate behind. Just press a self-stick stay to each corner on the back side of a picture (or poster), press corners to wall; and the picture is anchored firmly. Properly used, the stays do not damage wall surfaces, claims maker: 24 stays: $1 ppd. Clarke, Dept. PP, Box 8201, Wichita, Kans. 67208.

SECURING YOUR BOAT: Especially useful at busy launching ramps, a new heavy-duty tie down strap (right) lets you securely fasten a stern-drive boat to a trailer in a minute or two and is even more quickly removable. A special fastener locks automatically; it also opens easily to release tension when you pull up on the strap's free end. Strap adjusts from 14 to 39 inches, has S-hooks at each end. $7.95 in marine stores. AGM Cargo-Ties, Dept. PP, 3544 E. Ft. Lowell Rd., Tucson, Ariz. 85716.

EYE MIRROR: This one (left) —three mirrors in one—is designed to be a special aid when you apply eyelashes, eyeliner, shadow, mascara or contact lenses. Center mirror provides a magnified full frontal view of eyes; in top and bottom mirrors you see, simultaneously, full views of upper and lower lids. 5¼" high, 4½" wide; pedestal base, 3⅛" diameter. $5 postpaid. Franklin Products, Dept. PP, Box 1343, Bismarck, N.D. 58501.

Rowing for Radcliffe: Girl crewmembers propel shell smoothly and swiftly along the Charles River in Cambridge, Mass., as part of preparations for big races ahead. Coeds at many colleges are eagerly taking up once all-male sport, despite the arduous training and strenuous workouts required.

College Girls Make a Splash

by Herbert Kupferberg

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Women are putting their oar into still another previously all-male activity.

Coeds at Radcliffe, along with other colleges, have taken up crew racing, once deemed the domain of brawny, six-foot males.

"Girls' rowing has mushroomed tremendously in the last three years," says Harry Parker, Harvard University's head crew coach. "It must be the fastest-growing intercollegiate team sport in the country."

Every weekday, starting at 6 a.m., the Radcliffe crew members hustle down to Weld Boathouse on the Charles River to get in a couple of hours of practice before their classes begin. "I've never seen so many sunrises in my life," says Cathy Barbash, a 21-year-old junior from Bay Shore, N.Y. "I also never was in such shape before."

Coach of the Radcliffe crew is John Baker, a 23-year-old bachelor who rowed No. 5 on the Harvard varsity for four years prior to his graduation last year. Baker, an economist by trade, isn't paid for his coaching, but that doesn't temper the rigorousness of his workouts.

All winter long, when the river was unusable because of ice or cold, he worked the girls daily in the "tank," an indoor rowing pool. When they aren't on the water, he has them do special conditioning exercises, including running up the concrete tiers of the Harvard football stadium. It's 28 steps from bottom to top, and the girls make it in anywhere from 7 to 11 seconds. Sometimes they go up and down 50 times before Baker calls it quits.

Good for the legs

"It puts their cardiovascular systems and lungs under wind stress," he explains. "And it's great for their legs."

Baker finds that girls take to rowing extremely well. "Few of them have any athletic background, and they bring an open mind to it," he says. "They listen a little harder and pick it up quickly. They also have an exceptional attitude to competition. With men, the human element is often lost—winning is so important that they forget the personal experience that sports is supposed to be. Girls don't make that mistake. Why do they row? Because they like the exercise, they like sports. It's no different from what the men do, but no one asks a man why he rows. Enjoyment of sports is sex-blind."

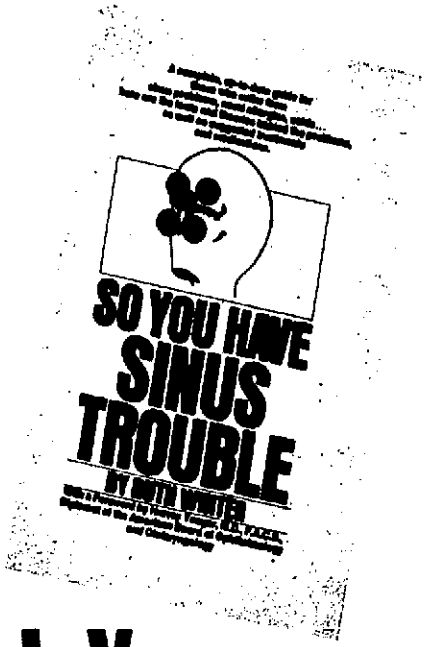

continued

Maximum effort and a minimum of spray are the hallmarks of an accomplished oarsman—or woman. These girls strive their best to provide both.

For this she went to college? Crewmember inspects her hands, carefully bandaged to prevent blisters.

This Book Can Help You

■ "My sinuses are killing me!" How many times have you heard that cry of anguish—or uttered it yourself?

Fortunately, sinuses don't actually kill people. But they cause great pain, unending discomfort and loss of work time. They also cost money—a recent survey showed that Americans pay more than $30 million a year for over-the-counter sinus medications.

Sinus suffering

But although millions suffer from the headaches, eye pains, stuffed nose and other disorders associated with a "sinus condition," very few people know much about these curious head-chambers or their workings.

Now, a book called So You Have Sinus Trouble is being made available to PARADE readers who suffer from sinusitis, or who know someone who does. It's written by Ruth Winter, who has done long and thorough research into the latest medical findings in the area. In his introduction, Dr. Harvey P. Yeager calls it "the first major contribution in the field of sinus disease to be presented to the lay public."

So You Have Sinus Trouble tells you things you never knew before about your sinuses—where they are, what they do, why they flare up. It'll help you recognize the difference between true sinusitis and the various other conditions that resemble it.

Mrs. Winter's book will also give you some candid, straightforward advice about the common cold—which so often leads to a painful bout of sinusitis. "For more than 2000 years," she writes, "medical men have been trying to fight the common cold, and so far, the battle has been lost."

Nevertheless, she details the newest data on the causes and proper treatment of common colds. It may not keep you from catching a cold, but it should help you cope with it better—and save a lot of money on useless remedies.

What to look for

The book is similarly useful and practical when it comes to sinuses. It will help you distinguish a sinus headache from a tension headache; it enumerates the indications that mean you should consult a doctor about what you think is a simple "sinus condition"; it gives the warning signals to look for in a child who complains of head pains or other problems. And it contains a comprehensive list of the sinus treatment drugs that are on the market, with their brand names and ingredients carefully spelled out—so you'll know what you're buying.

So You Have Sinus Trouble costs only a dollar. If you're a sinus sufferer, you'll find it's an investment that pays off many times in better health and peace of mind.

The Sand Dollar (Holy Ghost Shell)

THIS IS A REAL SAND DOLLAR PRESERVED FOREVER IN 24 KARAT GOLD

This most unusual of marine life specimens has markings that symbolize the Life of Christ. The five narrow openings represent the four nail holes and the wound in the Crucified Body of Chirst. On the front side, the outline of the Easter Lily is clearly seen with the five pointed Star of Bethlehem in the center. The back reveals a Christmas Poinsetta. Legend has it that when the Sand Dollar is broken, the shell releases five little Doves of Peace. Some say these are the Angels that sang to the shepherds the first Christmas Morning.

This striking piece of jewelry is designed by nature and then "frozen in gold." And because each is cast from a real sand dollar, every detail is held intact...the way nature desired it.

CREW continued

The Radcliffe coeds agree that they get great satisfaction from crew.

"It's a neat feeling, the sensation that the boat is moving and you're helping to do it," says 18-year-old Anne Robinson, a freshman from Princeton, N.J.

Says captain Charlotte Crane, a 21-year-old senior from Plymouth, N.H., who expects to go on to law school: "I think the crew is perhaps less Women's-Lib-oriented than other groups on the campus—all we ask is equality on the kind of equipment they give us. But crew represents one of the few chances women have to participate in a sport."

"I like the hard physical exercise," says Jennifer Getsinger, 20, a Maryland junior who's studying social anthropology when she isn't rowing. "But most of my friends up here think I'm stark raving mad to be getting up at 5:30 a.m. every day for this."

Most of the girls depend upon alarm clocks or clock radios to awaken in the dark of a Cambridge morning, and they've also learned to turn them off in a hurry so as not to disturb other occupants of their houses. Crew assignments and practice schedules are posted the day before, according to an old Harvard tradition, in the window of the Leavitt and Pierce tobacco store on Massachusetts Avenue, just across from the campus.

There's no training table or dietary restrictions for the girls' crew, which was first organized three years ago. "We

There's a whole world of pleasure out there and Van Camp's wants some of it to be yours. That's the idea behind our "What's Your Pleasure Sweepstakes." We're giving away thousands of dollars worth of pleasure in six different categories. To enter, all you have to do is follow the simple sweepstakes rules.

The reason? Well, through the years you've made Van Camp's Pork and Beans one of life's biggest selling simple pleasures. So we thought we'd express our appreciation by offering you an opportunity to win a complete home entertainment center, or maybe an automobile, or even two weeks on the Mediterranean (see entire prize list below) . . . a world of prizes to choose from. So for the chance of a lifetime enter our "What's Your Pleasure Sweepstakes." And remember this, the pleasure's on us.

all eat our regular food, just more of it," says Robin Chase, a 19-year-old freshman from Worcester, Mass., who sometimes is an oarswoman, sometimes a coxswain. "Has it improved my appetite? 'Improved' isn't the word—it's made it work."

The principal physical complaint the girls come up with are calluses on their hands. Says premed student Judy Levine, a junior from Brookline, Mass.: "I can't touch my stockings without getting a run in them. But I find that the crew fills my need for something besides studies. If all you have is books, it's a real drag."

The average weight of the Radcliffe crew is 135, with the lightest girl 110 pounds and the heaviest 170. Until now they've used a borrowed racing shell from the 150-pound male crew, but they have just been given their own boat, slightly smaller. Rather than paying the $2200 cost out of university funds, Harvard's Board of Overseers chipped in. The shell, believed to be the first specially designed for women, has been named "The Liberator."

Colleges in the Northeast and Northwest have taken the lead in establishing women's crews in the last few years. Last year the New England Association of Women's Rowing Colleges (NEAWRC) was organized to set up a competition schedule. This year Radcliffe is rowing against, among others, Syracuse, Yale, Wesleyan, Princeton, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Wellesley. On May 13 they'll race in the sprints held on Lake Quinsigamond at Worcester, Mass., and June 15-17 they'll be in the National Championships in Philadelphia. Girls' rowing will become an Olympic event for the first time in Montreal in 1976, and some of the Radcliffe girls say they'd like to compete.

Almost as fast

How do female crews compare against male? John Baker, who observes his girls closely from a motor launch (in the early days he used to ride a bicycle along the shore) estimates they are 10 to 15 seconds slower over 1000 meters—or about three boat-lengths behind. On the ergometer, a machine that measures the strength of an oarsman's pull, the average Radcliffe crew member registers 230 units as against the average Harvard man's 300. "That's not bad," says Baker. "Besides, a crew depends much more on coordination than on strength."

Kathy Sullivan, an 18-year-old freshman from Portland, Oreg., who says she's been on the river on mornings so cold that her pigtails froze from the spray, believes that in some ways women rowers are better than men.

"It's like women drivers are supposed to be more careful than men," she says. "When you get with the male crew jocks they tell you about the boats they've sunk, bridges they've hit and sailboats they've run down. We don't do that—we haven't lost a shell yet."

Fewer catcalls

One sign of increasing respect for the Radcliffe rowers is the diminution of catcalls and wisecracks from male passersby along the Charles.

"There's less flak than there used to be," says Captain Crane. "People used to stand on bridges and yell, 'Hey, girls, you're gonna get muscles,' or, 'That ain't pretty, girls.' But now there are so many colleges on the river that they're kind of cutting it down. I guess they're getting used to us."

Assisted by police and members of hospital staff, crewmen of an Army helicopter rush a seriously ill woman into San Antonio's Santa Rosa Hospital. This rooftop landing area was especially designed for helicopters, but was seldom used until the military began to help.

How Military Airborne Ambulances Are Saving Civilian Lives

by Donald Robinson

In Washington state's rugged mountains, an Army crew helps prepare injured hiker, a 21-year-old coed, for evacuation by air.

Nineteen-year-old Bill Wagner was hit by an agonizing aeroembolism —air in his blood—while scuba diving near Austin, Tex. He was rushed to an Austin hospital, but doctors there said his life depended upon immediate emergency treatment in a special decompression chamber—and the nearest one was 80 miles away in San Antonio. To move him by highway ambulance would be too costly in time. It would mean his death.

But Bill was lucky—a beneficiary of an extraordinary service provided by the U.S. Army and Air Force. A helicopter from Fort Sam Houston swooped down, picked him up and raced him to San Antonio at 115 miles an hour. The decompression chamber did the rest. Bill lived.

This drama is by no means unique. At most recent count more than 2000 civilians have been saved by Army and Air Force chopper pilots who speeded them to sophisticated medical treatment.

The project is called MAST—an acronym for Military Assistance to Safety and Traffic—and the military currently provides it free of charge in five areas of the nation —San Antonio, Phoenix, Denver, Northwest Washington state and Boise, Idaho. But it has achieved such vital, life-saving perform-

Speedy, tender care for three young patients

Helicopter men use a cardboard box to carry a critically ill infant.

At Santa Rosa, Dr. Dale Wood works on a baby with serious breathing problem.

Helicopter saved this hours-old baby needing emergency blood exchange.

AIRBORNE CONTINUED

ances that the Department of Defense is considering a plan to include the entire nation. As Air Force Brig. Gen. Edmund B. Edwards puts it: "Our helicopter men have to fly these hours anyway as part of their training. Why not put them to good use in saving lives?"

Young and old

To small towns, MAST is a godsend. Little Floresville Hospital, 30 miles north of San Antonio, has called upon MAST more than 75 times. The youngest patient was a baby born two months prematurely. The oldest was an 89-year-old man. Says Dr. Sam Nixon of the Floresville staff: "We don't have the facilities here for major surgery. But MAST makes up for that. In an emergency it lets us use the big San Antonio hospitals as an extension of our capabilities. It gives us a big-city know-how way out here in the country."

The Air Force mans the Arizona and Idaho runs, and the Army the other three. At each site a helicopter and crew are kept on 24-hour alert, ready to take off on two minutes' notice. The choppers, marked with big red crosses, will land just about anywhere to pick up a patient—rooftops, city streets, parking lots, country highways, plowed fields, even rugged canyon pits. Not long ago one put down in a cemetery. Each aircraft carries a highly trained paramedic, usually a Vietnam veteran. These men can do any kind of first aid. They know, for example, what it is to give intravenous transfusion to a dying patient in a shaky helicopter far aloft or to administer mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to an infant fighting for life. And they are armed with every type of emergency equipment from oxygen resuscitators to cardiac monitors.

MAST men are involved in both heroics and tragedy. There was the time when a busload of football players from Gunnison, Colo., plunged off the road and turned over three times. Five boys and a teacher were killed outright. Thirty-one others were injured, 15 critically. The nearest hospital at little Salida, Colo., was overwhelmed. An SOS went out to MAST.

Three choppers came on the run from Fort Carson, near Colorado Springs. When a helicopter pilot radioed that an electric power pole was dangerously close to the proposed landing zone, local residents yanked it out of the ground. The 15 worst injured boys were flown to St. Luke's Hospital in Denver. Two of them died, but a St. Luke's Hospital official told PARADE: "It is quite possible that the other 13 also would have died, had not MAST got them to us so quickly."

Hospitals which take part in the MAST program are expected to provide their own landing places for the choppers. These run to great variety, from the night-lighted, $60,000 site, atop the 12-story Santa Rosa Medical Center in San Antonio, to temporarily roped-off sections on country roads. At little Floresville, population 3500, the only illumination for the choppers at night is automobile headlights. When an emergency crops up, citizens ring it with their cars.

MAST crews frequently fly prematurely born babies who need special treatment to get started in life. Says Capt. Edward MacDonald, a pilot in San Antonio: "When you're carrying one of these little kids weighing only a few pounds and you've got to get him to a good hospital, you really feel for him. He can't do anything for himself—at the moment you're all he has going for him."

A breath of life

Paul Simes, a medic from Columbus, Ohio, working out of San Antonio, recently picked up a premature baby girl from Cotulla, Tex. She was seriously afflicted by hyaline membrane, an often fatal respiratory disease which cost the life of a child of the late President John F. Kennedy. During the chopper ride Simes had the baby in a portable incubator. But suddenly she stopped breathing. Simes, a big burly man, cradled the infant in his arms and began mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. It was dangerous, because his mouth was much larger than hers; if he breathed too hard, he could overwhelm her tiny lungs and kill her. Happy ending: He did it right, and she survived.

Statistics involving MAST's treatment of premature babies are even more dramatic than some of their rescues. Dr. John J. Hanlan, assistant surgeon general of the U.S. Public Health Service, reports that the death rate among the prematures in MAST-participating hospitals has dropped from 50 per 100 to 4 per 100.

Tragedy—and triumph

Inevitably, there have been casualties among MAST men. One Army chopper in Washington state crashed into a tree while answering a call for help. Four crewmen were killed. But not one MAST patient has been lost through chopper accident.

Understandably, families of the aided victims have been very grateful for the service. A typical letter followed the rescue of Patti Sue Graham, 16, who was kicked in the face by a horse near Kenedy, Tex. A MAST chopper rushed her the 60 miles to a San Antonio hospital just in time to save her life—and her looks. Her family wrote MAST: "The skilled hands of the surgeons restored Patti's features. But you saved her life. Thank you."

I didn't want to lose him, so I lost 59 pounds.

By Shirley Gallagher—as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

I really had something to be sober about at 160 pounds. I had tremendous arms and a great big sit down.

Ever go to a company picnic and find that you've got competition? Well, I did. I looked at those petite girls my husband works with and I suddenly saw myself as I was: the fat wife. That's when I turned into 160 pounds of fear and jealousy.

It wasn't as if I hadn't known what all my eating was doing to me over the years. But I had always loved to cook and bake and Larry could put it away without gaining. Some husbands are like that. Me? I just blossomed out — on submarine sandwiches, pizzas, pies, cakes, and homemade cookies. Why, that fellow on television who said, "I ate the whole thing!" had nothing on me.

Sometimes Larry and I would even get up in the middle of the night and I'd make pancakes or we'd hop into the car and go out for ice cream. I wasn't pregnant, either.

Next day, though, I'd hate myself. I wouldn't even stand in front of a mirror. Just like I wouldn't go to church without a sweater or coat on to hide my heavy arms.

Larry never said anything about my gaining. He didn't want to hurt me. But I got the message another way. When he saw me in the cow-size clothes I had to buy, he just stopped giving me compliments. That crushed me. But it really took those slender, attractive women at the picnic to convince me a wife can't sit back and get fat. Not if she wants to hold her own.

I had tried to reduce, of course, a number of times with liquid meals, grapefruit diets, reducing pills, skimmed milk. But they didn't work for me, especially the liquids. I needed something to chew on.

Thank goodness I'd read those stories of people who had taken those reducing-plan candies, Ayds®. I finally decided to try them, so I went to the drugstore and bought the plain chocolate fudge kind. I carefully read the direction folder in the box and learned that Ayds contain vitamins and minerals, but no drugs. That made me feel even better about starting the Ayds plan.

At breakfast, I took a couple of Ayds with tea—you can have any hot drink—about 15 minutes before eating. Cereal or an egg and toast for me. At lunch, I'd take my Ayds and tea again and have soup, sometimes a sandwich or a lettuce and tomato salad. Then at dinner, Ayds and tea again and a small portion of whatever the rest of the family was having. Meat loaf, corn, even some mashed potatoes.

I'll tell you, those Ayds really helped curb my appetite. They taste so good, too, that I used to eat a couple in the afternoon and in the evening, watching television. They contain only 26 calories apiece, which was much better than eating a slice of my own homemade "Wacky" cake. This is covered in chocolate and layered with cherry pie filling. Yet as delicious as it is, I could give it up for Ayds.

The plan worked beautifully for me. I began to lose pound after pound. Each time I went down, I'd run out of the bathroom and say: "Come look. I've lost again!" Well, by the time I'd come down to 101 pounds, everybody in my hometown, York, Pennsylvania, was looking. That's when the truth really comes out. Like this friend of mine. I used to complain to her about being fat. But she'd say: "Oh, you're not heavy." Comforting words. But now that I'm slim, she introduces me this way: "Would you believe that Shirley was once pudgy?"

Larry, of course, is just as proud as he can be. Picks me up these days like I'm one of the kids. I'd never let him attempt it when I was fat. But that's all changed now, just like the company picnic was entirely different this year. Thanks to the Ayds plan, I heard someone say: "Wow! Here comes Larry and his 'new' wife."

Here, in my husband's arms, you can see there's a lot of fun in losing 59 pounds.

Keeping Up... With Youth

by Pamela Swift

Forecast

The U.S. Census Bureau in a special report forecasts a dramatic drop in the number of high-school-age Americans by 1985.

The number of high-school-age youths, 14 to 17, is expected to drop to 14.3 million in 1985, down from the 1972 figure of 16.4 million.

The forecast predicts a similar decrease in the college-age group.

The special census report deals primarily with young Americans, 14 to 24, who were born following World War II, which was a period of high birthrates.

The era of the high birthrate, however, is over. American couples are marrying later and producing fewer children.

Other trends in the report show that

(1) Black and white youths are better educated than before, with an "especially dramatic" improvement for blacks.

(2) Young adults like to move around. They are highly mobile. More than 40 percent of those in the 22-24 age-group moved at least once between March, 1970, and March, 1971.

(3) In 1971 about one-half of all family heads in the 22-24 age bracket were employed full time and earned a median income of $8822.

(4) The proportion of young adults, 25 to 29, who were high school graduates increased from 38 percent in 1940 to 80 percent in 1972. The number of college graduates in the same period increased from 5.8 percent to 19 percent.

Americans are getting better educated all the time.

Wayward Youth

The Russians have begun to publish a series of articles on wayward Russian youth. The first article appeared recently in "Ogonyok" magazine and consisted of an interview with Interior Minister Boris T. Shumilin.

Said Shumilin: "Unlike the problem in capitalist countries, juvenile delinquency in the Soviet Union is not a natural phenomenon stemming from the social system.

"It is a result of our mistakes in the education of youth and an inability to use all existing opportunities for the formation of higher moral quality."

According to Shumilin, juvenile delinquency in the Soviet Union is caused by indifferent parents, boredom, and vodka. He pointed out that 40 percent of the minors arrested, committed their crimes while drunk.

Young Soviets have not only been warned about the dangers of alcohol, but Soviet pop singers have been ordered to avoid jazzy renditions of Russian folk songs and to stop catering to "vulgar tastes."

A front page editorial in Pravda recently warned Soviet vocalists to meet the "high ideological and aesthetic demands" of Soviet audiences.

JULIE CHRISTIE AND WARREN BEATTY: IT'S ALL OVER NOW.

Julie and Warren Split

In Hollywood, it has been hushed around for years that any girl who "goes" with actor Warren Beatty should have her head examined. Beatty as a lover is not exactly famous for constancy.

But vanity is, of course, a human trait, and each young lovely who enters Beatty's life believes that it is she who will finally seduce him into marriage or at least an enduring relationship.

Latest of Beatty's amours who tried and failed is Julie Christie, 29, the diminutive British actress who starred in Darling and Dr. Zhivago. Julie and Warren went "steady" for three years, so steady in fact that Beatty in a fit of gallantry once announced, "If Julie and I ever split up, I'll pay her alimony." Then he added more soberly, "If she wants or needs it."

Beatty and Christie have split, and for the first time in more than two years Julie has returned to the cameras. She is filming in Venice opposite Don Sutherland in a movie, Don't Look Now, based on an offbeat short story by Daphne du Maurier.

It concerns a couple who lose their daughter by drowning and then encounter a medium who claims to be in contact with the child in heaven.

The film is serving as heart balm and work therapy for Julie who doggedly refuses to discuss her affair with Beatty. No doubt she will get over him and move on to the cares and passions of some other handsome young man. She has always been in love with love. As for Beatty, the Casanova of our time, he is now in the process of concentrating on Liv Ullmann, the Scandinavian actress and former mistress of Swedish director Ingmar Bergman. These days Liv seems to star in every other Hollywood production.

The Drug Users

High school kids who use drugs are relatively easy to spot. They tend to be spectators rather than activists. They generally refrain from taking part in extracurricular school activities. They earn lower grades than non-drug users. They suffer from a flock of psychological difficulties.

These are the conclusions of John Gossett, Jerry M. Lewis, and Austin Phillips of the Timberlawn Psychiatric Center in Dallas who interviewed in depth a cross-section of 100 Dallas high school students.

Meet a friend.

At New York Life, we meet most new policyowners through our old ones. Significant?

You have to think highly of something to recommend it to a friend—a restaurant, a movie, a book. And when it comes to a personal service, something as basic as life insurance, most people are even more reserved with their recommendations.

That's why, at New York Life, we think it is highly revealing that most of our business came last year from men and women introduced to our Agents by existing policyowners—and from existing policyowners themselves who returned for additional life insurance.

Since we wrote our very first policy 128 years ago, we've acted on the principle that excellence of service is the surest way to secure people's confidence and trust.

We've placed special stress, too, on the careful selection of men and women of integrity and ability to serve as New York Life Agents.

Maybe that's why over seven million people depend upon us today for life insurance protection.

Why not find out what so many people see in us. Talk to your New York Life Agent. Next thing you know you'll be introducing him to a friend.

WEAR A SMILE.

Wear one on your back. Wear a Kool-Aid™ Knapsack.
Wear one on your side. Wear a Kool-Aid™ Camping Kit.
Or wear them both, wherever you go this summer. The park. The beach. Even if you stay right in your own backyard.

They make a great day outdoors even greater. Because the things you like don't have to stay indoors.

See, the Knapsack is like a big pocket on your back. Big enough for books or a baseball glove.

The Camping Kit is like a small toy chest or a lunch box. So you can take along model cars, bananas. You'll think of something.

And inside the Camping Kit, you'll find a plastic container with a snap-lock top. So make up some Kool-Aid® Soft Drink Mix, and you can take that along too.

One more thing. Both the Knapsack and Camping Kit are durable. That just means they'll last. You see, we want your parents to wear a smile too.

And now that we've told you all about them, the coupon will tell you how to get them. Free.

HI, ROY!

I WONDER IF HE'LL NOTICE ANYTHING DIFFERENT ABOUT ME!

4-29

HI, PETE! WHAT'S IN THE BOX?

WHY WOULD HE NOTICE THE BOX AND NOT ME?

LET'S SEE IF MY OWN FAMILY NOTICES I BOUGHT A NEW HAT!

HI, JIM! HOW'S THE BOY?

FINE, DAD! WHAT'S IN THE BOX?

THAT'S ALL THEY WANT TO KNOW! "WHAT'S IN THE BOX?" "NOBODY LOOKS AT MY NEW HAT!

HI, DADDY!

HI, JILL!

SOMETHING IN THAT BOX YOU'RE CARRYING FOR ME?

GUESS AGAIN!

HI, SWEETIE! SORRY I'M LATE, BUT I DID A LITTLE SHOPPING!

WHAT'S IN THE BOX, PETER?

I HOPE YOU HAVEN'T GONE AND BOUGHT ME AN EXPENSIVE GIFT!

THAT'S TOO MUCH! NOW I WANT YOU TO LOOK AT ME!

DO YOU SEE ANYTHING DIFFERENT?

YOU FORGOT TO TAKE OFF YOUR NEW HAT!

...AND YOU STILL WANT TO KNOW WHAT'S IN THE BOX!

TAKE UP CONCH SHELL TO GREAT WHITE FATHER, CHIEF WOT-AH-PUNUM!

"THE BROAD-MINDED SEE THE TRUTH IN DIFFERENT RELIGIONS; THE NARROW-MINDED SEE ONLY THE DIFFERENCE"
—CHINESE PROVERB

THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE HAS JUST BEEN SHOWN PROOF THAT QUEEN ISABELLA'S CLAIM TO N. AND S. AMERICA IS GENUINE!!

YOU'D BETTER NOT HANG AROUND HERE, KID!

I'M WAITIN' FOR MY BUDDY, CHIEF WOT-AH-PUNUM! AN' WHAT HE'S BRINGIN' COULD MAKE THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN YOU AN' ME AN'...

WHITE HOUSE

...LIVIN' A FREE LIFE... AN' BOTH OF US PLUS THE REST OF THE COUNTRIES UP HERE AN' DOWN THERE BENDIN' OUR KNEES T' AN OLD WITCH WHO COULD WIND UP THE BIG MUCKYMUCK O' HALF THE WORLD!

CAN YOU READ THEM CRAZY MIXED UP PICTURES, CHIEF?

ME READ! YOU JUST GET GREAT WHITE FATHER TO LISTEN! THEN YOU NOT THINK THEM "CRAZY MIXED UP"!

WHITE HOUSE

ONLY ONE MOVE T' MAKE... AN' THAT'S T' HEAD INSIDE THE WHITE HOUSE!

YOU SAY THIS NOTE WAS GIVEN TO YOU FOR ME BY A CHILD AND AN OLD INDIAN?

YES SIR! THEY SAID WHEN YOU READ IT, YOU'D SEE THEM IN A HURRY!

OH-OH... THE MARINES ARE LANDIN'... AN' IT DON' LOOK SO GOOD FOR OUR SIDE, CHIEF!

OLD INDIAN SAYING... "WHEN IN DOUBT, REMEMBER CUSTER"... ME REMEMBERIN' CUSTER REAL HARD!

GETTIN' SHOT AT DAWN STILL GIVES US A FEW HOURS T' TRY AN' CONVINCE FOLKS IN THIS HOUSE THAT YOU GOT THE ANSWER T' QUEEN ISABELLA ON THAT CONCH SHELL, CHIEF! RIGHT?

MEBBE GIRL-WITH-HEAD-ON-FIRE RIGHT, BUT ME GET PAIN IN HEAD WHEN IT THINK ABOUT HOW YOU GONNA MAKE BIG TALK WITH GREAT WHITE FATHER IF HIM THERE AN' US HERE!

LOOK, MISTER... IF YOU'RE DEAD SET ON SHOOTIN' ME, HOW'S ABOUT GIVIN' THE CHIEF A BREAK? HE WAS ONLY TRYIN' T' HELP ME SAVE THE COUNTRY!

DON'T WASTE YOUR PLEAS WITH ME, YOUNG LADY...

...THE PRESIDENT IS WAITING TO TALK TO YOU!

FREE MONEY!

It's a safe bet that you, like the average American, are completely unaware of the incredible bonanza recently granted you by Congress in the form of whopping new Social Security benefits.

Item: When today's average worker of 22 retires, he and his wife, according to Social Security actuaries, will receive an annual pension of $38,000. Moreover, the total amount of Social Security he and his wife can expect to collect will surpass half a million dollars!

Item: The average American doesn't know it, but the single most valuable asset he now possesses is his Social Security. It is equivalent, in maximum brackets, to a guaranteed 5% income on cash in banks, stocks or real estate worth over $100,000. Moreover, every cent of this bounteous income is TAX FREE!

Item: Most Americans still believe, mistakenly, that Social Security is a dole exclusively for the aged. The fact is, however, that 10 million Americans under the age of 60 (and averaging a mere 30) are now collecting Social Security. These non-old-age pensioners receive $13 billion annually, and both their number and the amounts of money they collect are bound to increase in years ahead. So generous has Social Security for younger Americans become, in fact, that it amounts to Free Money.

The biggest problem in connection with Social Security—as the government itself is first to admit—is giving the money away. That is, the public's woeful ignorance of the availability of funds has prevented its full distribution. Over one billion dollars, according to experts, remains undistributed in U.S. Treasury vaults simply because no one steps forward to claim it.

To help overcome this shocking public ignorance, and see that you get your share of the Social Security largesse, the editors of Moneysworth, the authoritative new consumer-affairs and personal-finance fortnightly, have prepared—as a public service—a comprehensive, lucid, savvy, astonishing new manual entitled STAKE YOUR CLAIM! How to Work the Social Security Gold Mine. A copy is yours ABSOLUTELY FREE with a subscription to Moneysworth.

STAKE YOUR CLAIM! How to Work the Social Security Gold Mine is more than just an encyclopedic reference work; it is a personal adviser in a field of finance where impartial advice is otherwise almost impossible to obtain (the government, of course, is biased, and lawyers are almost never willing to accept Social Security cases because they are not permitted to charge more than about $10 per case). STAKE YOUR CLAIM! is, therefore, virtually the only trustworthy, definitive guide available on what may well be your single most valuable financial asset. It is 12,000 words long, handy in format, indexed for fast reference and embellished with a glossary that translates Bureaucratese. In a special section it anticipates, and answers, the most unabashed—even Fagin-like—questions. Among the priceless nuggets of information you will pick up from this guide are answers to such questions as:

- How can you qualify for a pension even though you have never worked a day in your life, or contributed a cent in Social Security taxes, or even nearly reached the age of 65?
- How can you arrange to collect Social Security from both Canada and the United States?
- Why, under Social Security, does it often pay for a couple to "live together" rather than get married?
- Why is it crucial to check the balance of your Social Security account periodically, even though almost no one ever does?
- Does it ever pay to take out two Social Security cards?
- What colossal goofs of the Social Security Administration have jeopardized individual accounts?
- How can an ex-wife collect the same benefits as if she had remained married?
- Is it true, as some say, that you should "shop" for a pension at different Social Security offices since different interpretations of regulations can result in pensions of different amounts?
- Since, as studies have shown, many workers *over*pay their Social Security taxes, how can you check on your payments and possibly obtain a refund?
- Has your Social Security become so valuable that you should, as some people have done already, tattoo your account number somewhere on your body?
- When does it pay not to work in order to maximize your Social Security benefits?
- What is the "hobby" that can qualify you to collect Social Security even though you've never worked a day in your life?
- What forms of deception have people employed in order to maximize Social Security benefits and what are the penalties for such deception?
- How can a husband collect a pension based on his wife's earnings?
- What essential documents do most people fail to preserve for presentation when filing a claim?
- What steps, if any, are necessary to protect your pension from attachment by creditors?
- What tragic mistakes are most often made by the self-employed?
- How can a parent collect Social Security on a child's earnings?
- When does Social Security cover mental illness?
- How should you alter your investment, savings and insurance plans in light of Social Security's lavish new benefits?
- If you're a woman, how can you collect without revealing your age to your husband?
- What governmental retirement programs are even better than Social Security?
- What should you do if, as often happens, you change jobs during a year and both employers withhold maximum Social Security taxes?
- What federal program helps retired persons get jobs to supplement Social Security?
- What can a widow do to retain her benefits if she wishes to remarry?
- By retiring to which foreign countries can you make Social Security go farthest?
- Under what circumstances can the government cancel your pension?
- What happens to your pension if an employer deducts Social Security taxes but fails to forward them to Washington for credit to your account? What special steps should you take if the firm you work for is financially shaky?
- How do you go about getting one of Social Security's huge "lump sum" payments?

In short, STAKE YOUR CLAIM! How to Work the Social Security Gold Mine is a treasure map to the Social Security mother lode, telling what pitfalls to avoid, what tools to use, how to find your way through the maze of regulations and how to hit pay dirt. Its editor and compiler is Ralph Ginzburg, the 43-year-old publisher of Moneysworth, who himself collects $99.40 in Social Security every month and has been getting Social Security since he was 25. To repeat, a copy of STAKE YOUR CLAIM! How to Work the Social Security Gold Mine is yours ABSOLUTELY FREE with a subscription to Moneysworth.

In case you're not familiar with Moneysworth, let us explain that it is America's most ingenious periodical dealing with personal finance and consumer affairs. It will positively flabbergast you with its inventiveness for making and saving money. In less than three years of publication it has bestowed the Midas touch upon nearly a million ecstatic readers and has become the most widely read newsletter IN THE WORLD. Perhaps the best way to describe Moneysworth is to list the kinds of articles it prints:

In sum, Moneysworth is a shrewd, trustworthy financial mentor. It is the quintessence of sophisticated gainsmanship.

The staff of Moneysworth is a team of hard-nosed, experienced journalists with a record of genius in the field of consumer affairs and personal finance. Its publisher, as we mentioned, is Ralph Ginzburg, creator of the daring and flamboyant magazines Fact, Eros and Avant-Garde (Mr. Ginzburg was first to publish Ralph Nader). Moneysworth's editor-in-chief is Parker Hodges, a former top editor of Show and writer for Emergency Medicine, Forum, Cavalier. The art director of Moneysworth is Herb Lubalin, the world's foremost graphic designer. Radiating from this nucleus of editorial energy are reporters, researchers, and product-testers throughout the United States. Together they create America's first—and only—consumer periodical with charisma.

Moneysworth is available by subscription only. The cost of a year is ONLY $5! This is A MERE FRACTION of the price of familiar, old-fashioned consumer publications—which, compared to Moneysworth, are boring, ponderous, confusing and nearly unusable. Moreover, we are so confident of Moneysworth's value to you that we are about to make what is probably the most generous money-back guarantee in publishing history: We will absolutely and unconditionally guarantee that Moneysworth—in combination with STAKE YOUR CLAIM! How to Work the Social Security Gold Mine—will increase the purchasing power of your income by at least 15% or you get your money back IN FULL. In other words, if you now earn $10,000 a year, we guarantee that Moneysworth and the Social Security manual will increase the value of your income by at least $1,500—or we'll refund your money. Meanwhile, you will have enjoyed a full year of Moneysworth ABSOLUTELY FREE and you may keep STAKE YOUR CLAIM! How to Work the Social Security Gold Mine WITH OUR COMPLIMENTS!! What could be more foolproof?

To enter your subscription and obtain your free copy of STAKE YOUR CLAIM!, simply fill out the coupon below and mail it with $5 to: Moneysworth, 110 W. 40th St., New York, N.Y. 10018.

Then sit back and prepare to receive your first copy of a gleeful, irreverent, wallet-fattening periodical whose motto is: "Ask not what you can do for your country, but what your country can do for you."

MONEYSWORTH

110 W. 40TH ST. NEW YORK 10018

I enclose $5 for a one-year subscription to Moneysworth, the shrewd, authoritative new consumer fortnightly. I understand that I am paying A MERE FRACTION of the going rate for such a publication. Also, I will receive ABSOLUTELY FREE a copy of STAKE YOUR CLAIM! How to Work the Social Security Gold Mine. If Moneysworth and STAKE YOUR CLAIM! do not increase the purchasing power of my income by at least 15%, I will get my money back IN FULL! Moreover, I may keep STAKE YOUR CLAIM! with your compliments and enjoy a year of Moneysworth ABSOLUTELY FREE!!
